U.S. Official Alters Views On Viet Nam

May Have Made Situation Seem Too Optimistic

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Asst. Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester said Friday night he may have gone too far in his optimistic appraisals of the Vietnamese war as seen through the eyes of his chief, Robert S. McNamara.

Sylvester is giving daily press briefings on Defense Secretary McNamara's visits to outlying Vietnamese areas to find out for President Kennedy how the American-backed struggle against Communist rebels is going.

WAR PROGRESSING

Sylvester has been telling newsmen that, "by all previous indices," the war is progressing well and can be won in a reasonably short time.

Newsmen asked him Friday if McNamara was briefed during a visit to the central highlands about some combat hamlets established by U.S. special forces teams that are reported to have caved in to Communist guerrillas after they were handed over to control of the Vietnamese army.

Sylvester declined to answer on the ground that McNamara's visit here is a fact-finding mission and that reports on the situation will be handed first to Kennedy.

Newsmen asked how this squared with his optimistic reports of McNamara's first two days in Viet Nam. They cited a New York Herald Tribune editorial on the subject.

The Herald Tribune said, "The public must be forgiven if it's confused."

"A few days ago Washington spokesmen, beginning with President Kennedy, were telling us that we were losing the war against the Communists in South Viet Nam because of the Diem regime's internal troubles, ignited by Buddhist self-immolations," it said. "Now Arthur Sylvester . . . tells us we're winning the war!

"Is this a relapse into Mr. Sylvester's former practice of using news as part of his arsenal of weaponry? Or is it that Washington, from the President downward, simply goofed?

"We're inclined to the latter version."

Sylvester said: "We are in very great difficulties on this matter. They—press briefings—were pro-

Soviets Cause Gold To Take Another Drop

LONDON (AP) — Another drop in the price of gold on the British bullion exchange was generally attributed Friday to heavy selling of the metal in Europe by the Soviet Union to pay for huge imports of Western wheat.

British sources estimated the Russians had sold more than $45 million worth in Western Europe in two days, and predicted there is more to come as the Soviet Union seeks dollars and sterling to pay for wheat purchased recently from Canada and Australia and probably for a further expansion of trade with the West.

Friday's gold price drop was more than half a cent an ounce, compared to normal fluctuations of an eight-or quarter-cent.

The London exchange price Friday morning was marked down from $35.0725 an ounce to $35.0658, a fall of 67 of a cent. Thursday, the London price fell 1.5 cents—to make a decline of four cents an ounce since the end of August.

The world official prices of gold—what the U.S. Treasury is prepared to pay for it—is $35 an ounce.

Edith Reported Losing Power

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Hurricane Edith seemed to peter out over the Dominican Republic on Friday, but weather officials warned she might pick up steam again over the ocean.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in San Juan, Puerto Rico, hoisted gale warnings for eastern portions of the Dominican Republic, but did not mention a hurricane. It canceled previous warnings for the west coast of Puerto Rico.

Alberto Arvelo, director of the Dominican Weather Bureau, said Hurricane Edith lost her center while passing over the island republic.

There were fresh winds and heavy rains here, but little or no damage. Highest gusts were 75 miles per hour and the hurricane was moving north-northwest at about 10 miles an hour.

TFX CONTRACT CASE

Federal Agency Clears Korth Of Interest Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth was cleared Friday of any violation of the conflict of interest law in the TFX contract case, but not to the satisfaction of the congressman who demanded the investigation.

The clearance came from the Justice Department, which said "there was no violation of the statute" when Korth voted to approve the award of the warplane contract to General Dynamics Corp. Korth, a former president of the Continental Bank of Fort Worth, Tex., still owns stock in the bank, which once made a loan to General Dynamics.

But Rep. Bill Stinson, R-Wash., wrote a letter to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy on asking for "an explanation of how you arrived at your decision."

UNSATISFIED

Stinson made it clear that the Justice Department's investigation so far did not satisfy him.

"I believe it is essential that the Justice Department conduct a thorough investigation," he wrote Kennedy.

Stinson, a first-term congressman, represents the Seattle area, home of the Boeing Co., which lost out in the competition for the multimillion-dollar contract.

Stinson first asked for an investigation in mid-August after Korth testified before the Senate Investigations subcommittee about his relationship with Continental Bank. The subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., has conducted a lengthy probe into the controversial award of the contract—an award defended firmly by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Stinson sent two letters to Atty. Gen. Kennedy demanding an investigation, and he received a reply last Sept. 9. He said he did not make this reply available to the press generally until newsmen asked about it.

The reply was written by Norbert A. Schlei, an assistant attorney general, who told Stinson the department had not replied earlier because it "wished, before expressing a view, to review carefully the available information."

"The department has now done so," Schlei continued, "and has determined that there was no violation of the statute by Secretary Korth."

Stinson asked to have a conference with the department on the subject of Korth. He also asked that representatives of the Senate subcommittee be present.

OBSERVER EXCHANGE

Big Three Study Post Treaty Step

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — British, U.S. and West German foreign ministers scanned the East-West horizon Friday and concluded that an exchange of military observers stands the best chance of being the next cold war agreement to follow the limited nuclear test-ban treaty.

They saw dim prospects for any quick agreement on a nonaggression pact between the Atlantic and Warsaw military blocs.

Diplomatic sources said this was the consensus after a 2½-hour session between Secretary of State Dean Rusk, West Germanys Gerhard Schroeder and Britain's Lord Home in which the three allies found themselves in general accord.

EAST-WEST PARLEY

Rusk and Home see Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on Saturday in the first high-level, East-West parley since the test ban signing Aug. 5 in Moscow. The Western ministers expect Gromyko to bring up the Soviet proposals for the nonaggression pact and the observer exchange.

Schroeder told newsmen that West Germany believes a nonaggression pact should come last, after settlement of other questions. Other sources said Rusk and Home also felt the nonaggression pact would be a long time in coming.

The West wants guarantees for Berlin included in any such deal, and the Germany-Berlin issue is still a tough cold war problem, with no solution in sight. The West wants nothing done to harm prospects for eventual German reunification.

'MIND-TO-MIND'

Spacemen Consider Telepathy Contacts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. space official reported this week that Soviet and Western scientists are studying the possibility of using something like telepathy to establish "mind - to - mind" communication between people on earth and, say, astronauts on the moon.

The subject of "information transfer" without discernible means of physical support was touched upon in a paper by Dr. Eugene B. Konecci at a meeting of the International Astronautics Federation (IAF) in Paris on Thursday.

Konecci is director of biotechnology and human research in the office of advanced research and technology of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). He also is chairman of the IAF's bioastronautics committee.

The U. S. government has no projects afoot to test scientifically the validity of "information transfer," a subject which embraces such different matters as levitation, clairvoyance, telepathy, and extra-sensory perception.

But according to report, Konecci said, Soviet scientists are pursuing "biological radio communication" with top priority in connection with the Russian manned spaceflight program.

Konecci did not discount the worth of such studies. He called the matter of mind-to-mind information transfer "a highly interesting problem in modern science." He said the main difficulty is finding a way to attack the problem scientifically in the laboratory.

"If the results of conducted experiments are half as good as the Soviets claim," Konecci told the IAF, "then they may be the first to put a human thought in orbit or achieve mind-to-mind communication with humans on the moon."

Among U.S. investigators of what the Russians call "thought transference over distance" is Dr. Andrija Puharich, a neurophysiologist who also is medical director of the Intellectron Corp. of New York.

U.S. Studies Policy For Wheat Sale

Denies Soviets Tendered Offer To Buy Grain

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department said Friday that it is reviewing its export policy in anticipation of a formal Soviet offer to buy American wheat.

The department's press officer, Richard I. Phillips, stressed however that no such offer had been received, nor had prospective Soviet buyers or American wheat dealers asked for approval of a sale.

EXPORT LICENSE

The State Department's word on policy would weigh heavily in the Commerce Department's decision on whether to issue the export license that would be required for a Soviet wheat deal.

The State Department statement came as James Patton, president of the National Farmers Union conferred with White House aides about the situation.

Patton reportedly urged the administration to decide in favor of U.S. wheat exports to the Soviet Union at world prices. He told newsmen that opposition to payment of the federal export subsidy of 50 cents a bushel for wheat was "political bunk."

Theodore Sorenson, counsel to President Kennedy, was reported to have met Patton along with others. A final administration decision was expected to be delayed until after the President returns Monday from his Western tour.

The administration and Congress have traditionally opposed sale of federally subsidized surplus goods to "unfriendly" Communist bloc nations. Nothing in law specifically prohibits such sales for cash. But it is interpreted as banning extension of long-term credits to nations which have defaulted on earlier obligations.

The Treasury Department reported it was closely watching European financial markets after reports from London that the Soviet Union was selling considerable quantities of its gold in return for dollars and sterling. Such gold sales do not affect the U.S. balance of payments deficit, the treasury said.

Man Survives 20-Story Fall

DETROIT (AP)—A maintenance worker plunged 20 floors down an elevator shaft Friday and suffered only a fractured ankle and hand cuts.

Glen Roberts, 39, of suburban Warren, was helping to install an elevator at an apartment building under construction when he apparently slipped.

"All of a sudden I was going down the shaft, and I could see the floors going by real fast," Roberts said.

He said he partially broke his fall by grabbing a rope that extended down the shaft and "riding it down."

Auto, Truck Collide Near Ft. Necessity

WINNSBORO (Special) — Three area persons were fatally injured and a fourth hurt critically in a car-truck collision at an intersection east of Fort Necessity Friday afternoon.

State troopers said two women, Mrs. Annie Bennett, 75, of Rt. 1 Wisner, and Mrs. Albert Payne, 49, of Fort Necessity, were killed instantly. A 62-year-old Fort Necessity man, Matt Herriage, died around 7:30 p.m. in a Monroe hospital of injuries received in the crash.

ONE CRITICAL

Albert Payne, 64-year-old husband of one of the victims, of Fort Necessity, was reported in critical condition at St. Francis hospital in Monroe Friday night. He suffered a fractured collarbone, a severe laceration of the right leg and his right lung was punctured when the right rib cage was crushed, according to his son.

A California woman who was driving the car, Mrs. Myrtle Crum, 44, of San Diego, suffered a crushed knee and fractured jaw, but was reported in good condition at St. Francis hospital Friday night.

Investigating troopers indicated that Payne was driving the truck northeast on Louisiana highway 4 with his wife and Mr. Herriage as passengers when the tragic collision occurred. Mrs. Crum and her passenger, Mrs. Bennett, were traveling west on Louisiana Highway 126.

The highways at the intersection, known as the Jigger-Fort Necessity intersection, meet at an angle about one mile east of Fort Necessity. Highway four is designated as having the right-of-way at this intersection. No charges had been filed by troopers late Friday, pending completion of

Heat Grips California For 3rd Day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A tropical torpor gripped Southern California on Friday as record high temperatures struck for the third day.

A score of schools shut down, hundreds of others freed students early, and most reported a one-third absentee rate.

At Van Nuys High School there was a brief revolt by 300 students, who refused to go to classes in the 100-degree heat. Later they did.

The pace of business faltered, pedestrians deserted the streets, and city officials sent workers home from offices lacking air conditioning.

FIRE MENACE

The menace of fire hung heavy on the foothills. Three days of readings of over 100 degrees left miles of brush dry as tinder.

The heat disabled countless cars, jamming freeways. One man stepped from his stalled car and was killed by another auto.

Farmers reported heavy losses among poultry. Avocados and lemons were damaged. Up to 10 per cent of the coastal area's vegetables have been scourged by the heat.

There were 35 reports of persons being treated for heat exhaustion, 25 of them in the city of Los Angeles.

The temperature hit 103 in Los Angeles at noon. It was a record high for this date, exceeding the 99 recorded Sept. 27 in 1917 and 1921, and the mercury still rose.

It was just as hot along the seashore. The deserts, curiously, were cooler. The heat rode across the coastal plain on Santa Ana winds — the sirocco-like flow of desert air which gets hotter as it heads to sea.

Some slight cooling trend was noted by the forecaster. The high reading today are expected to be about 10 degrees cooler in coastal areas. But it will be warmer inland.

Area Showers On Tap Again

Residents of the Twin Cities and area may be in for more wet weather today.

The forecast calls for scattered showers today. Yesterday's light precipitation was swallowed up quickly by a thirsty earth, with heavy showers needed to alleviate extended drought conditions.

SHOWERS

No important temperature changes are called for as the high today is forecast somewhere in the low 80s, possibly not getting out of the 70s. The mercury crested at a cool 74 Friday. Lows tonight are expected to be between 55 and 60.

The weatherman predicts Sunday to be generally fair and mild with no mention of rain.

Winds will continue from the east at a gentle 4 to 10 m.p.h.

'KISS OF DEATH'

Vengeful Valachi Begins Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gravel-voiced gangster Joseph Valachi told investigating senators Friday of the underworld jungle where syndicate bosses wield the power of life and death — even inside prison walls.

The stocky convict never batted an eyelash when he told of the death assignments he once carried out for Cosa Nostra — the under-world organization he served for 30 years.

'KILL FOR THEM'

"I just go out and kill for them," Valachi said.

But 17 months ago, Valachi told the Senate Investigations subcommittee, the syndicate turned on him as an informer, and marked him for death in a federal prison.

That began the chain of events that led Valachi to the witness chair in an ornate Senate caucus room lit by the glare of television floodlights.

Neatly clad in a gray suit and black and white necktie, the red-haired Valachi told of "the kiss of death" that marked him for syndicate slaying, of prison yard efforts to set up his murder, of solitary confinement in "the hole" at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary—and of beating another inmate to death with an iron pipe.

Valachi's hair once was white and bushy. Now it is close-cropped—and the mobster said he dyed it red to help disguise himself. The crime syndicate is said to have offered a $100,000 reward for the man who murders the gangland turncoat.

For Valachi, the path to the witness chair began in 1960, when he was sentenced to 15 years in prison on a narcotics charge.

It was his first big fall after a life of crime that stretches back to 1918. Valachi said he was in on numbers, slot machine and juke box operations. During World War II, he said, he sold ration stamps, and made $150,000 at it.

"We don't regard that as crime," he told the senators.

Valachi, who went through the seventh grade in school, said he spent "about a year, all told" working in his native New York

Man, 71, Buys Jet Airplane

HOUSTON (AP) — An elderly man poked a finger at a twin jet plane.

"I want that," he said.

The price tag: $1 million.

"I want to fly it home myself," the man explained. "Logged 3.5 million miles in the air."

And that is the way Arthur D. Knapp, 71, bought an airplane Thursday at the convention of the National Business Aircraft Association.

He's from Jackson, Mich. He has no job. He sold out his electronics business five months ago.

The plane will fly 600 miles an hour.

SOME REFUSE EXAMS

Political Hopefuls Get Aptitude Tests

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Aptitude tests for political candidates?

"Certainly," says a newspaper editor who tried it, "I know it made a lot of people think."

The payoff came in primary elections for city officials of Covington and nearby Newport, chief cities in the northern Kentucky area near Cincinnati.

"I frankly don't know exactly how to interpret all the scores," said Editor Vance Trimble, of the Kentucky Post & Times-Star. "One or two of those who refused to take the tests did well—like Johnny Peluso nominated for mayor in Newport.

"But it looked like some of those who scored low didn't have much to offer as candidates.

"The tests certainly merit more use. However, I think it may be harder another time to get as strong a majority to take them."

Last June, Trimble said he had a sample copy of a personnel aptitude test from a wire service—The Associated Press—on his desk when a candidate came to see him.

"This candidate didn't seem too sharp to me," Trimble said, "and I wondered and worried and pondered how to tell the voters more about the candidates. Then I saw that IQ test.

"We decided we shouldn't do it unless we had a heavy majority of the candidates."

There were 50 candidates; 40 took the test.

"We wanted to do our campaign reporting three ways," said Trimble. "We told them we wanted to have a reporter interview them and ask each the same questions for a profile. We wanted to make a new picture of them. And we asked them to take a standard personnel aptitude test. It went off pretty much without a hitch.

"Of course, by the third day, the word got around about the tests and some of the candidates found it inconvenient to show up.

Bosch Appeals To Dominicans For Democracy

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Deposed President Juan D. Bosch sent an appeal to the Dominican people from his detention quarters in the National Palace Friday urging them not to let their fledgling democracy die.

A niece of the president brought out the handwritten message after visiting Bosch. He was overthrown two days ago by military leaders who charged that he had plunged the nation into chaos, was soft on communism and risked war with neighboring Haiti.

"In seven months of government, not one drop of blood was spilled or one person tortured," Bosch wrote. "Men may fall but principles do not."

The provisional government swore in a 14-man Cabinet, made a bid for U.S. recognition and expressed hope that a decision will be taken today on what to do with Bosch.

His wife, who returned here Wednesday from Puerto Rico and issued sharp statements against the plot leaders, took asylum in the Chilean Embassy.

A newspaper, El Caribe, said national police had arrested a brother-in-law and a newphew of the president. A police official said he had no knowledge of the arrests, but the families of the two men said they were seized.

Bosch's Cabinet ministers are prisoners with him in the National Palace.

Konecci did not discount the worth of such studies. He called the matter of mind-to-mind information transfer "a highly interesting problem in modern science." He said the main difficulty is finding a way to attack the problem scientifically in the laboratory.

"If the results of conducted experiments are half as good as the Soviets claim," Konecci told the IAF, "then they may be the first to put a human thought in orbit or achieve mind-to-mind communication with humans on the moon."

Among U.S. investigators of what the Russians call "thought transference over distance" is Dr. Andrija Puharich, a neurophysiologist who also is medical director of the Intellectron Corp. of New York.

U.S. Studies Policy For Wheat Sale

Denies Soviets Tendered Offer To Buy Grain

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department said Friday that it is reviewing its export policy in anticipation of a formal Soviet offer to buy American wheat.

The department's press officer, Richard I. Phillips, stressed however that no such offer had been received, nor had prospective Soviet buyers or American wheat dealers asked for approval of a sale.

EXPORT LICENSE

The State Department's word on policy would weigh heavily in the Commerce Department's decision on whether to issue the export license that would be required for a Soviet wheat deal.

The State Department statement came as James Patton, president of the National Farmers Union conferred with White House aides about the situation.

Patton reportedly urged the administration to decide in favor of U.S. wheat exports to the Soviet Union at world prices. He told newsmen that opposition to payment of the federal export subsidy of 50 cents a bushel for wheat was "political bunk."

Theodore Sorenson, counsel to President Kennedy, was reported to have met Patton along with others. A final administration decision was expected to be delayed until after the President returns Monday from his Western tour.

The administration and Congress have traditionally opposed sale of federally subsidized surplus goods to "unfriendly" Communist bloc nations. Nothing in law specifically prohibits such sales for cash. But it is interpreted as banning extension of long-term credits to nations which have defaulted on earlier obligations.

The Treasury Department reported it was closely watching European financial markets after reports from London that the Soviet Union was selling considerable quantities of its gold in return for dollars and sterling. Such gold sales do not affect the U.S. balance of payments deficit, the treasury said.

Man Survives 20-Story Fall

DETROIT (AP)—A maintenance worker plunged 20 floors down an elevator shaft Friday and suffered only a fractured ankle and hand cuts.

Glen Roberts, 39, of suburban Warren, was helping to install an elevator at an apartment building under construction when he apparently slipped.

"All of a sudden I was going down the shaft, and I could see the floors going by real fast," Roberts said.

He said he partially broke his fall by grabbing a rope that extended down the shaft and "riding it down."

Auto, Truck Collide Near Ft. Necessity

WINNSBORO (Special) — Three area persons were fatally injured and a fourth hurt critically in a car-truck collision at an intersection east of Fort Necessity Friday afternoon.

State troopers said two women, Mrs. Annie Bennett, 75, of Rt. 1 Wisner, and Mrs. Albert Payne, 49, of Fort Necessity, were killed instantly. A 62-year-old Fort Necessity man, Matt Herriage, died around 7:30 p.m. in a Monroe hospital of injuries received in the crash.

ONE CRITICAL

Albert Payne, 64-year-old husband of one of the victims, of Fort Necessity, was reported in critical condition at St. Francis hospital in Monroe Friday night. He suffered a fractured collarbone, a severe laceration of the right leg and his right lung was punctured when the right rib cage was crushed, according to his son.

A California woman who was driving the car, Mrs. Myrtle Crum, 44, of San Diego, suffered a crushed knee and fractured jaw, but was reported in good condition at St. Francis hospital Friday night.

Investigating troopers indicated that Payne was driving the truck northeast on Louisiana highway 4 with his wife and Mr. Herriage as passengers when the tragic collision occurred. Mrs. Crum and her passenger, Mrs. Bennett, were traveling west on Louisiana Highway 128.

The highways at the intersection, known as the Jigger-Fort Necessity intersection, meet at an angle about one mile east of Fort Necessity. Highway four is designated as having the right-of-way at this intersection. No charges had been filed by troopers late Friday, pending completion of

Bosch Appeals To Dominicans For Democracy

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Deposed President Juan D. Bosch sent an appeal to the Dominican people from his detention quarters in the National Palace Friday urging them not to let their fledgling democracy die.

A niece of the president brought out the handwritten message after visiting Bosch. He was overthrown two days ago by military leaders who charged that he had plunged the nation into chaos, was soft on communism and risked war with neighboring Haiti.

"In seven months of government, not one drop of blood was spilled or one person tortured," Bosch wrote. "Men may fall but principles do not."

The provisional government swore in a 14-man Cabinet, made a bid for U.S. recognition and expressed hope that a decision will be taken today on what to do with Bosch.

His wife, who returned here Wednesday from Puerto Rico and issued sharp statements against the plot leaders, took asylum in the Chilean Embassy.

A newspaper, El Caribe, said national police had arrested a brother-in-law and a newphew of the president. A police official said he had no knowledge of the arrests, but the families of the two men said they were seized.

Bosch's Cabinet ministers are prisoners with him in the National Palace.

Heat Grips California For 3rd Day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A tropical torpor gripped Southern California on Friday as record high temperatures struck for the third day.

A score of schools shut down, hundreds of others freed students early, and most reported a one-third absentee rate.

At Van Nuys High School there was a brief revolt by 300 students, who refused to go to classes in the 100-degree heat. Later they did.

The pace of business faltered, pedestrians deserted the streets, and city officials sent workers home from offices lacking air conditioning.

FIRE MENACE

The menace of fire hung heavy on the foothills. Three days of readings of over 100 degrees left miles of brush dry as tinder.

The heat disabled countless cars, jamming freeways. One man stepped from his stalled car and was killed by another auto.

Farmers reported heavy losses among poultry. Avocados and lemons were damaged. Up to 10 per cent of the coastal area's vegetables have been scourged by the heat.

There were 35 reports of persons being treated for heat exhaustion, 25 of them in the city of Los Angeles.

The temperature hit 103 in Los Angeles at noon. It was a record high for this date, exceeding the 99 recorded Sept. 27 in 1917 and 1921, and the mercury still rose.

It was just as hot along the seashore. The deserts, curiously, were cooler. The heat rode across the coastal plain on Santa Ana winds — the sirocco-like flow of desert air which gets hotter as it heads to sea.

Some slight cooling trend was noted by the forecaster. The high reading today are expected to be about 10 degrees cooler in coastal areas. But it will be warmer inland.

Area Showers On Tap Again

Residents of the Twin Cities and area may be in for more wet weather today.

The forecast calls for scattered showers today. Yesterday's light precipitation was swallowed up quickly by a thirsty earth, with heavy showers needed to alleviate extended drought conditions.

SHOWERS

No important temperature changes are called for as the high today is forecast somewhere in the low 80s, possibly not getting out of the 70s. The mercury crested at a cool 74 Friday. Lows tonight are expected to be between 55 and 60.

The weatherman predicts Sunday to be generally fair and mild with no mention of rain.

Winds will continue from the east at a gentle 4 to 10 m.p.h.

'KISS OF DEATH'

Vengeful Valachi Begins Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gravel-voiced gangster Joseph Valachi told investigating senators Friday of the underworld jungle where syndicate bosses wield the power of life and death — even inside prison walls.

The stocky convict never batted an eyelash when he told of the death assignments he once carried out for Cosa Nostra — the under-world organization he served for 30 years.

'KILL FOR THEM'

"I just go out and kill for them," Valachi said.

But 17 months ago, Valachi told the Senate Investigations subcommittee, the syndicate turned on him as an informer, and marked him for death in a federal prison.

That began the chain of events that led Valachi to the witness chair in an ornate Senate caucus room lit by the glare of television floodlights.

Neatly clad in a gray suit and black and white necktie, the red-haired Valachi told of "the kiss of death" that marked him for syndicate slaying, of prison yard efforts to set up his murder, of solitary confinement in "the hole" at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary—and of beating another inmate to death with an iron pipe.

Valachi's hair once was white and bushy. Now it is close-cropped —and the mobster said he dyed it red to help disguise himself. The crime syndicate is said to have offered a $100,000 reward for the man who murders the gangland turncoat.

For Valachi, the path to the witness chair began in 1960, when he was sentenced to 15 years in prison on a narcotics charge.

It was his first big fall after a life of crime that stretches back to 1918. Valachi said he was in on numbers, slot machine and juke box operations. During World War II, he said, he sold ration stamps, and made $150,000 at it.

"We don't regard that as crime," he told the senators.

Valachi, who went through the seventh grade in school, said he spent "about a year, all told" working in his native New York

Man, 71, Buys Jet Airplane

HOUSTON (AP) — An elderly man poked a finger at a twin jet plane.

"I want that," he said.

The price tag: $1 million.

"I want to fly it home myself," the man explained. "Logged 3.5 million miles in the air."

And that is the way Arthur D. Knapp, 71, bought an airplane Thursday at the convention of the National Business Aircraft Association.

He's from Jackson, Mich. He has no job. He sold out his electronics business five months ago.

The plane will fly 600 miles an hour.

SOME REFUSE EXAMS

Political Hopefuls Get Aptitude Tests

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Aptitude tests for political candidates?

"Certainly," says a newspaper editor who tried it, "I know it made a lot of people think."

The payoff came in primary elections for city officials of Covington and nearby Newport, chief cities in the northern Kentucky area near Cincinnati.

"I frankly don't know exactly how to interpret all the scores," said Editor Vance Trimble, of the Kentucky Post & Times-Star. "One or two of those who refused to take the tests did well—like Johnny Peluso nominated for mayor in Newport.

"But it looked like some of those who scored low didn't have much to offer as candidates.

"The tests certainly merit more use. However, I think it may be harder another time to get as strong a majority to take them."

Last June, Trimble said he had a sample copy of a personnel aptitude test from a wire service—The Associated Press—on his desk when a candidate came to see him.

"This candidate didn't seem too sharp to me," Trimble said, "and I wondered and worried and pondered how to tell the voters more about the candidates. Then I saw that IQ test.

"We decided we shouldn't do it unless we had a heavy majority of the candidates."

There were 50 candidates; 40 took the test.

"We wanted to do our campaign reporting three ways," said Trimble. "We told them we wanted to have a reporter interview them and ask each the same questions for a profile. We wanted to make a new picture of them. And we asked them to take a standard personnel aptitude test. It went off pretty much without a hitch.

"Of course, by the third day, the word got around about the tests and some of the candidates found it inconvenient to show up.

What are the values of these coins?

Here are the coins and their values according to Monroe Coin Dealer Marvin L. Phillips. A one cent piece dated 1864 is hard to judge because there were about three different varieties of this type coin, a copper - nickel cent, the first type of a bronze penny and a bronze penny with an L on the ribbon of the Indian. The most common type is the first type of bronze. It is valued at $1.25 retail. The copper nickel is worth about $4 in good grade and the penny with an L on it is worth about $14, Phillips said. A one cent piece minted in 1940 is only worth another penny. An 1896 Indian head penny is worth about 30 cents.

Two-and-one-half dollar pieces minted in 1878 and 1846 are not particularly scarce. An 1878 piece in extra fine condition, the usual grade, is worth about $35. Four types of two-and-one-half dollar pieces were made in 1846. The price usually ranges between $30-$35.

A large one cent piece minted in 1846 is worth from $2 to $5. A two-cent piece dated 1871 is one of the more scarce varieties. It would probably be worth $4 in average condition.

An 1825 fifty-cent piece is worth from $4 to $8 depending upon the grade. A silver Thrip with 111 on the back is also called a three-cent nickel piece. The date 1865 is more or less common and was the first date they were minted. They are valued at about $1 or $2.

Dimes dating 1811, 1858 usually range from between $1.25 to $3.50 depending upon their grade, Phillips said.

How is perfume from flower petals?

The separation of the natural odoriferous materials from the petals of flowers is no easy task. It is effected by distillation — by either boiling the vegetable organism with water in a closed apparatus when the source of heat may be an open fire or a steam-heated coal or jacket in the bottom; or by blowing live steam through the material. In each case, the still is connected at the top with a condenser through which the steam passes. It carries with it in suspension the fine particles of essential oil, the condensed steam and oil emerging from the lower orifice. On standing aside, the oil floats to the top and is separated. Distillation with an open fire is the oldest process and in places far distant from modern factories, this is resorted to by the peasants. It is dangerous, however, because if the water in the apparatus gets low the material is burned, then the odor resulting is impaired.

In some parts of Bulgaria this method is used for preparing rose otto and in some parts of India for distilling palmerosa oil. When steam is used for distillation, a separate boiler is erected nearby and the question of damaging the oil by burning is therefore eliminated. Generally the raw material does not touch the bottom of the apparatus but is supported upon a false bottom or perforated sheet of metal and sometimes placed in an open wire basket suspended inside. In some cases the water used for distillation dissolves part of the oil or its constituents.

In Louisiana there are two towns named Oak Grove—One in West Carroll Parish and one in Cameron Parish. If a letter is received by the post office addressed to someone in Oak Grove, La., how do they determine which Oak Grove to send the letter to?

The post office in Monroe tells us that there is no post office in the town of Oak Grove in Cameron Parish. Further, they said that in most instances, no post office will be commissioned in a town where there is already one by that name in a state. The information that there is no post office in Cameron's Oak Grove was determined by referring to a post office directory listing all post offices in the U. S. It lists only one Oak Grove in Louisiana.

The Police Jury elects a parish treasurer for a term of two years. The amount of salary is set by the jury. If the treasurer becomes ill and is unable to perform duties for several months, is it a violation of state law for him to collect his salary during his absence from duty without the authorization of a majority of the police jury members?

L. B. Pettit, president of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury said that this has never happened during his tenure on the Police Jury. He said, however, that it would have to be approved by the jury before salary during illness could be paid. He also said that when other workers for the jury are absent, they are not paid.

When a Police Juror draws a salary and on each check it is stated that the payment is for one regular meeting and one bridge inspection, if he becomes unable to perform his duties for a long period of time, is he paid?

Again, Jury president L. B. Pettit said that jurors are paid only for meetings attended. He said they must answer roll call in order to draw their salary. He further stated that jurors must sign a certificate showing that they have actually conducted a road inspection before they can be paid for it. The certificate states the condition of the roads inspected and what needs to be done. Jurors draw $30 per meeting attended and $30 per inspection. They also get milage for meetings but none for the inspection.

Are there any federal funds involved in the improvements now in progress in Monroe?

Monroe Secretary - Treasurer Mel Cook said that federal funds were obtained for the construction of the sewer treatment plant. He said the money, although allocated to the city through the State Department of Public Health, was still from the federal government. He said some small allocations were received to assist in the planning of the proposed new city hall and the auditorium. He said that federal money was refused by the city for recreation facilities. But Cook said that the money will be paid back in lump sum before the facilities are erected so that when they care completed, there will be no federal money involved.

He might be guilty of the crime of bigamy. Any law enforcement agency can tell you what might be done about it. We wonder how he commutes.

Could you tell me if it is possible to get your draft registration changed from one state to another? My husband was living in California at the time of his 18th birthday and he registered out there. He moved, back here, married and now has a daughter, which was reported to the California board. He has never received another card or any other word that he was reclassified. Aren't they supposed to give him another card now showing his classification? And if he should be drafted, would he have to go back to California for a physical or something? He will be 21 in March.

You have no problem. In the first place, both his marriage and his child are grounds for exemption from the draft. However, to answer your question: A spokesman for the draft board said that the California board should send him a card indicating his reclassification; if he feels that it hasn't received the information, then he should bring his marriage license and the child's birth certificate to the local board and it will see to it that he is reclassified and gets a new card. If he should ever be called for examination, he also should report to the local board and his transfer will be arranged. In the meantime, however, he will remain under the jurisdiction of the California board. It boils down to this: "On paper" he'll remain under the jurisdiction of the California board until such time as he is called for preinduction examination (if ever) actually, however, any dealings he'll have with the draft board can be handled locally.

McKeithen Says 'Deadheads' On State Payroll

Gubernatorial candidate John McKeithen, on a three - day stumping tour of north Louisiana, lashed out Friday at "deadheads on the payroll in the Davis adminsitration."

"I'm against these deadheads who take taxpayers' money, and against government by the Ted Dunhams, the Buddy Billups, the Chris Fasers and the Wilson Abrahams, who are all behind Kennon," McKeithen said.

Calling for a return of state pride and morality, the Public Service Commissioner continued: "Never has there been a more crying need for men who take their oath of office not as a bunch of words but as a sacred obligation taken before God and man."

McKeithen assured voters that he was actively campaigning throughout the state and South to "get Bobby and Jack out of Washington."

"It's obvious from the tremendous support I'm getting that I'm the man who has the best chance to keep Kennedy's chosen two, Morrison and Long, out of the runoff, and I'm directing all my energies toward that goal," McKeithen said.

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard of Monroe, who is accompanying McKeithen in the Fifth District, urged voters to help avoid a split of independent votes which would pave the way for Morrison and Long to go into the second primary.

"All polls taken throughout the state by other candidates show McKeithen is consistently in the number two position," Howard said.

Also appearing with McKeithen on the tour are Ashton Mouton, Lafayette, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Senator Speedy O. Long, candidate for insurance commissioner. The group is stumping today in St. Joseph, 9 a.m.; Newellton, 9:30 a.m.; Tallulah, 10:30 a.m.; Lake Providence, 11:30 a.m.; Delhi, 2:30 p.m.; Rayville, 3:30 p.m.; Winnsboro, 4:30 p.m.; and Columbia, 6 p.m.

UNITED GIVERS AGENCY

U.S.O. Brightens Life Of Servicemen

(Editor's Note: This is the tenth in a series of stories on agencies aided by the United Givers Fund).

It's a long way from Monroe to Manila. For a boy or girl of 19, away from home for the first time, it may be disastrously far from friends and family.

Yet every day thousands of service people from Monroe and Manhattan and Montgomery and all the cities of the United States are picked up and put down in spots all over the world and told to stay there and hold the line.

They do it because it's their duty and they want to. They're the best-trained, best-equipped, best-fed Army, Navy, and Air Force personnel of all times, but the finest food and equipment can't overcome that strange phenomenon known as homesickness.

That's where the U.S.O. comes in. Ask any serviceman about the U.S.O. and you'll get a quick smile and a "they're okay!" The U.S.O. has meant entertainment, relaxation, hope and cheer to millions of American servicemen and women for dozens of years.

At least 1,000 servicemen and women from this area are being helped right now by U.S.O. installations throughout the world, but U.S.O. needs funds to maintain its many services.

In this time of cold war tension, the U.S.O. is even more important and every citizen of Ouachita Parish can do something for our young people "over there." Through donations to the United Givers, you can personally give a happy answer to the haunting question: "Does anybody know I'm here?"

SUPPLY DEPOTS

U.S. To Shut Down Bases In France

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department said Friday it is closing down a group of military supply bases in France, firing their 6,200 French civilian employes and shipping home 5,400 U. S. Army troops who manned the base.

The troops to be returned home were identified as the Fourth Logistical Command, headquartered at Verdun. There was no estimate as to when the reorganization might be completed, but similar operations have sometimes taken 12 to 18 months.

The Pentagon said action was being taken to close the port and depot facilities in France because "shorter, more economical routes of supply . . . will permit forward positioning of military stocks."

The troops being brought home presumably are in addition to 40,000 by the end of this year.

The depots have served U.S. NATO troops in both France and Germany," the announcement said. "The arrangements have been discussed with the French and German governments."

The bases will be closed "over a period of time," the department said, "with full consideration given to the problems created for approximately 6,200 French civilians whose services will no longer be required at the sites affected."

A Defense Department spokesman said friction with the government of French President Charles de Gaulle had nothing to do with the decision which it said was taken purely in the interests of economy.

The announcement said the bases were being closed because "U.S. capabilities for massive sea and airlift make it feasible to reinforce these installations if this becomes necessary."

The Pentagon disclosed earlier this week that 240 huge transport planes will be used next month to fly 16,000 trooops to Germany for a week of maneuvers in "operation big lift." The operation will be the largest overseas airlift ever undertaken."

The streamlining of supply lines to U.S. forces in Europe is "part of a program to effect improved logistics management on a worldwide basis," the department said.

Army Secretary Cyrus Vance has said that when this "readjustment" is completed the United States will still have in Europe several thousand more than the 228,000 who were there at the beginning of the Berlin crisis.

Briton Editor Of 'Express' Dead At 59

LONDON (AP) — Arthur Christiansen, for 25 years editor of Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, suffered a heart attack in a Norwich television studio Friday night and died. He was 59.

Christiansen was regarded as one of the great British newspaper editors of this century. He was also Fleet Street's youngest top editor.

Two years ago he published an autobiography, titled "Headlines All My Life."

Christiansen was an advocate of the common touch in news writing and often told his staff there were too many stories about things and not enough about people.

Born July 27, 1904, at Wallasey, Cheshire County, he was the son of a Liverpool shipwright and grandson of a Danish fisherman.

He began his newspaper career at 16 as a reporter for the Wallasey newspaper. He came to Fleet Street at 21 as London editor of the Liverpool Evening Express.

At 29, he was appointed editor of the Daily Express, Fleet Street's largest newspaper. During his 25 years at the helm of the Express he is credited with increasing its circulation from 1.8 million to 4.1 million.

He was regarded as a master craftsman. Many of his methods of news presentation have since been adopted throughout the world.

Christiansen retired as editor in 1957 but remained a member of the board of directors of Beaverbrook newspapers and continued as executive director and consultant of editorial matters. He was also director in charge of the development of new publications.

He finally severed all connections with Beaverbrook newspapers in 1959, saying, "I finally felt I wanted to express myself in new fields of endeavor while I was still young, or at any rate youngish.

"I do not wish to edit a newspaper again. My heart is with the Daily Express and always will be."

He is survived by his widow, the former Brenda Wray, and two sons and two daughters.

To The Voters of Caldwell Parish

I read and hear a lot about me voting against the Unpledged Electors Bill in the past session of the Legislature. I would like to point out that it was not my vote alone that kept this Bill from passing. I made it my business to do considerable checking on this Bill before voting on it either way. I was told by several good Lawyers that we would elect a man from each district in the state and two at large to do our voting at National Presidential Convention. We would be represented by ten Electors and the President would be taken off the ballot in the state of Louisiana. I for one will vote against President Kennedy and I believe that most of Caldwell Parish will too. I do not want to send someone else to do my voting for me. I want to do it myself, and I feel that the majority of the people of this parish want to do their own voting too.

I introduced a Bill in the House of Representatives in 1962 for an Open Primary Law in the State of Louisiana and it was killed. Louisiana and six other states are Solid Democrats (called the Deep South Democrats). All other states have an Open Primary Law which I think is right. I think a man or woman should be able to register for any party they want to and vote in all elections. I will put this bill in again and keep trying to get it passed.

If elected again I am going to have a Bill in the House for $100 per month for each person over 65 that is eligible to draw the Old Age Pension. They now get $82 per month for one and $76 per month each for two in the same family. I will have a Bill for all those who are drawing the Old Age Pension to have a Medical Card to pay for their Medicine and Hospital Bills.

I am also going to have a Bill to raise the tax on Sulphur back like it was. As you know Huey Long put this tax on and Robert Kennon took it off. It was $3 per ton and it is now $1 per ton. Additional tax on sulphur in the State of Louisiana will help more than it will harm the state. Insecticides are exempt from this tax. Since 90% of our sulphur is shipped out of the state and we only use 10% in the state (most of it used for Insecticides) the tax would be very helpful. I think to raise this sulphur tax will be the best way to help the old people of our parish and state.

I send a house Calender to the Police Jury, School Board and our Local News Paper, every day of the Legislature. They know every day what I do. I have nothing to hide. I have voted for every Segregation Bill that came up in the House of Representatives but all of our Bills were killed by the Federal Judges.

I have four opponents running against me as you already know. I have nothing to say about any of them. I would like to have the opportunity to be your Representative for the next four years. I have worked hard in the past to help improve our Parish. Everyone knows that none of us can accomplish everything we set out to do. I feel that I have helped our parish in a number of ways, and I would like the opportunity to continue doing so. Any help from you the VOTERS OF CALDWELL PARISH will be appreciated very much.

Your Representative,

W. C. STEEN, JR.

What are the values of these coins?

Here are the coins and their values according to Monroe Coin Dealer Marvin L. Phillips. A one cent piece dated 1864 is hard to judge because there were about three different varieties of this type coin, a copper - nickel cent, the first type of a bronze penny and a bronze penny with an L on the ribbon of the Indian. The most common type is the first type of bronze. It is valued at $1.25 retail. The copper nickel is worth about $4 in good grade and the penny with an L on it is worth about $14, Phillips said. A one cent piece minted in 1940 is only worth another penny. An 1896 Indian head penny is worth about 30 cents.

Two-and-one-half dollar pieces minted in 1878 and 1846 are not particularly scarce. An 1878 piece in extra fine condition, the usual grade, is worth about $35. Four types of two-and-one-half dollar pieces were made in 1846. The price usually ranges between $30-$35.

A large one cent piece minted in 1846 is worth from $2 to $5. A two-cent piece dated 1871 is one of the more scarce varieties. It would probably be worth $4 in average condition.

An 1825 fifty-cent piece is worth from $4 to $8 depending upon the grade. A silver Thrip with 111 on the back is also called a three-cent nickel piece. The date 1865 is more or less common and was the first date they were minted. They are valued at about $1 or $2.

Dimes dating 1841, 1858 usually range from between $1.25 to $3.50 depending upon their grade, Phillips said.

I have a song copyrighted. What is the best way to get it published?

The reference section of the Ouachita Parish Library in Monroe has a couple of books on song-writing and article marketing which include chapters dealing with publishing songs.

A chapter in a book "Writer's Market," lists several markets for songs. Another book, "A Practical Dictionary of Rhymes" by Lawrence Holoscener also has a chapter titled the "Business End of Songwriting." This chapter discusses in detail, agents, pblishers, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP), and another society known as the Broadcast Music, Inc. (BMI). Both these books can be obtained at the library's reference section.

How is peffume from flower petals?

The separation of the natural odoriferous materials from the petals of flowers is no easy task. It is effected by distillation — by either boiling the vegetable organism with water in a closed apparatus when the source of heat may be an open fire or a steam-heated coal or jacket in the bottom; or by blowing live steam through the material. In each case, the still is connected at the top with a condenser through which the steam passes. It carries with it in suspension the fine particles of essential oil, the condensed steam and oil emerging from the lower orifice. On standing aside, the oil floats to the top and is separated. Distillation with an open fire is the oldest process and in places far distant from modern factories, this is resorted to by the peasants. It is dangerous, however, because if the water in the apparatus gets low the material is burned, then the odor resulting is impaired.

In some parts of Bulgaria this method is used for preparing rose otto and in some parts of India for distilling palmerosa oil. When steam is used for distillation, a separate boiler is erected nearby and the question of damaging the oil by burning is therefore eliminated. Generally the raw material does not touch the bottom of the apparatus but is supported upon a false bottom or perforated sheet of metal and sometimes placed in an open wire basket suspended inside. In some cases the water used for distillation dissolves part of the oil or its constituents.

In Louisiana there are two towns named Oak Grove—One in West Carroll Parish and one in Cameron Parish. If a letter is received by the post office addressed to someone in Oak Grove, La., how do they determine which Oak Grove to send the letter to?

The post office in Monroe tells us that there is no post office in the town of Oak Grove in Cameron Parish. Further, they said that in most instances, no post office will be commissioned in a town where there is already one by that name in a state. The information that there is no post office in Cameron's Oak Grove was determined by referring to a post office directory listing all post offices in the U. S. It lists only one Oak Grove in Louisiana.

The Police Jury elects a parish treasurer for a term of two years. The amount of salary is set by the jury. If the treasurer becomes ill and is unable to perform duties for several months, is it a violation of state law for him to collect his salary during his absence from duty without the authorization of a majority of the police jury members?

L. B. Pettit, president of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury said that this has never happened during his tenure on the Police Jury. He said, however, that it would have to be approved by the jury before salary during illness could be paid. He also said that when other workers for the jury are absent, they are not paid.

• • •

When a Police Juror draws a salary and on each check it is stated that the payment is for one regular meeting and one bridge inspection, if he becomes unable to perform his duties for a long period of time, is he paid?

Again, Jury president L. B Pettit said that jurors are paid only for meetings attended. He said they must answer roll call in order to draw their salary. He further stated that jurors must sign a certificate showing that they have actually conducted a road inspection before they can be paid for it. The certificate states the condition of the roads inspected and what needs to be done. Jurors draw $30 per meeting attended and $30 per inspection. They also get milage for meetings but none for the inspection.

Are there any federal funds involved in the improvements now in progress in Monroe?

Monroe Secretary - Treasurer Mel Cook said that federal funds were obtained for the construction of the sewer treatment plant. He said the money, although allocated to the city through the State Department of Public Health, was still from the federal government. He said some small allocations were received to assist in the planning of the proposed new city hall and the auditorium. He said that federal money was refused by the city for recreation facilities. But Cook said that the money will be paid back in lump sum before the facilities are erected so that when they care completed, there will be no federal money involved.

Could you tell me the requirements for the old age pension and who to contact?

It would be much simpler if you would contact the Department of Public Welfare in Monroe. Since the letter was mailed in Monroe, we assume you live in Ouachita Parish. If not, contact the welfare department in your home parish. They can readily tell you the details of qualification which are numerous and vary according to the individual case.

I read your column. I have a question. Can you tell me the law and what can be done about this? I know a man who has a wife and grown children in one state. He also has a wife and family in another state. He is known in one state by his wife's name, which is a false name for him.

He might be guilty of the crime of bigamy. Any law enforcement agency can tell you what might be done about it. We wonder how he commutes.

Could you tell me if it is possible to get your draft registration changed from one state to another? My husband was living in California at the time of his 18th birthday and he registered out there. He moved, back here, married and now has a daughter, which was reported to the California board. He has never received another card or any other word that he was reclassified. Aren't they supposed to give him another card now showing his classification? And if he should be drafted, would he have to go back to California for a physical or something? He will be 21 in March.

You have no problem. In the first place, both his marriage and his child are grounds for exemption from the draft. However, to answer your question: A spokesman for the draft board said that the California board should send him a card indicating his reclassification; if he feels that it hasn't received the information, then he should bring his marriage license and the child's birth certificate to the local board and it will see to it that he is reclassified and gets a new card. If he should ever be called for examination, he also should report to the local board and his transfer will be arranged. In the meantime, however, he will remain under the jurisdiction of the California board. It boils down to this: "On paper" he'll remain under the jurisdiction of the California board until such time as he is called for preinduction examination (if ever) actually, however, any dealings he'll have with the draft board can be handled locally.

Local, Ruston Gun Safety Clinics Today

Northeast Louisiana youngsters can be groomed for the coming hunting seasons today at two gun safety clinics at Monroe and Ruston featuring instruction from professional gun handlers.

The Monroe Optimist Club's Second Gun Safety Clinic will be conducted in two sessions beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Bancroft Camp outside West Monroe.

In case of rain, the clinic will be moved inside the Bancroft Camp.

Meantime, a similiar clinic, sponsored by the Woodmen of the World and the Lincoln Parish Wildlife Federation, will be held at 9:30 a.m. at the Ruston Rifle Range.

Both clincis are open to all youngsters, including both boys as well as adults who wish to attend.

The Ruston clinic will offer instructions on the methods of handling firearms from members of the Lincoln Parish Sheriff's Department, State Police and Ruston City Police. An archery demonstration by the Louisiana Tech Archery Club will be included on the program.

At Monroe, personnel of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, joined by members of the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department, will drill youngsters on the Ten Commandments of gun safety.

The Optimist program also will consist of skeet and trap shooting by members of the Pine Hills Gun Club, plus gun demonstrations by Otis McCullom of Memphis and Art Hill (Winchester-Western) of Pineville.

Youngsters needing transportation to the Monroe clinic can ride a city bus to the Bancroft Camp. The bus will depart from City Hall at 8:30 a.m. for the morning session and 1 p.m. for the afternoon session.

Locally, the morning session will run from 9:30 a.m. until noon with the afternoon session from 2-4:30 p.m., according to chairman Gordon Surguine.

Youngsters need not attend both sessions, but will receive certificates of participation from the Optimist Club.

The Ouachita Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, is support the clinic.

McKeithen Says 'Deadheads' On State Payroll

Gubernatorial candidate John McKeithen, on a three - day stumping tour of north Louisiana, lashed out Friday at "deadheads on the payroll in the Davis adminsitration."

"I'm against these deadheads who take taxpayers' money, and against government by the Ted Dunhams, the Buddy Billups, the Chris Fasers and the Wilson Abrahams, who are all behind Kennon," McKeithen said.

Calling for a return of state pride and morality, the Public Service Commissioner continued: "Never has there been a more crying need for men who take their oath of office not as a bunch of words but as a sacred obligation taken before God and man."

McKeithen assured voters that he was actively campaigning throughout the state and South to "get Bobby and Jack out of Washington."

"It's obvious from the tremendous support I'm getting that I m the man who has the best chance to keep Kennedy's chosen two, Morrison and Long, out of the runoff, and I'm directing all my energies toward that goal," McKeithen said.

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard of Monroe, who is accompanying McKeithen in the Fifth District, urged voters to help avoid a split of independent votes which would pave the way for Morrison and Long to go into the second primary.

"All polls taken throughout the state by other candidates show McKeithen is consistently in the number two position," Howard said.

Also appearing with McKeithen on the tour are Ashton Mouton, Lafayette, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Senator Speedy O. Long, candidate for insurance commissioner. The group is stumping today in St. Joseph, 9 a.m.; Newellton, 9:30 a.m.; Tallulah, 10:30 a.m.; Lake Providence, 11:30 a.m.; Delhi, 2:30 p. m.; Rayville, 3:30 p.m.; Winnsboro, 4:30 p.m.; and Columbia, 6 p.m.

UNITED GIVERS AGENCY

U.S.O. Brightens Life Of Servicemen

(Editor's Note: This is the tenth in a series of stories on agencies aided by the United Givers Fund).

It's a long way from Monroe to Manila. For a boy or girl of 19, away from home for the first time, it may be disastrously far from friends and family.

Yet every day thousands of service people from Monroe and Manhattan and Montgomery and all the cities of the United States are picked up and put down in spots all over the world and told to stay there and hold the line.

They do it because it's their duty and they want to. They're the best-trained, best-equipped, best-fed Army, Navy, and Air Force personnel of all times, but the finest food and equipment can't overcome that strange phenomenon known as homesickness.

That's where the U.S.O. comes in. Ask any serviceman about the U.S.O. and you'll get a quick smile and a "they're okay!" The U.S.O. has meant entertainment, relaxation, hope and cheer to millions of American servicemen and women for dozens of years.

At least 1,000 servicemen and women from this area are being helped right now by U.S.O. installations throughout the world, but U.S.O. needs funds to maintain its many services.

In this time of cold war tension, the U.S.O. is even more important and every citizen of Ouachita Parish can do something for our young people "over there." Through donations to the United Givers, you can personally give a happy answer to the haunting question: "Does anybody know I'm here?"

SUPPLY DEPOTS

U.S. To Shut Down Bases In France

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department said Friday it is closing down a group of military supply bases in France, firing their 6,200 French civilian employes and shipping home 5,400 U. S. Army troops who manned the base.

The troops to be returned home were identified as the Fourth Logistical Command, headquartered at Verdun. There was no estimate as to when the reorganization might be completed, but similar operations have sometimes taken 12 to 18 months.

The Pentagon said action was being taken to close the port and depot facilities in France because "shorter, more economical routes of supply . . . will permit forward positioning of military stocks."

The troops being brought home presumably are in addition to 40,000 by the end of this year. The depots have served U.S. NATO troops in both France and Germany," the announcement said. "The arrangements have been discussed with the French and German governments."

The bases will be closed "over a period of time," the department said, "with full consideration given to the problems created for approximately 6,200 French civilians whose services will no longer be required at the sites affected."

A Defense Department spokesman said friction with the government of French President Charles de Gaulle had nothing to do with the decision which it said was taken purely in the interests of economy.

The announcement said the bases were being closed because "U.S. capabilities for massive sea and airlift make it feasible to reinforce these installations if this becomes necessary."

The Pentagon disclosed earlier this week that 240 huge transport planes will be used next month to fly 16,000 trooops to Germany for a week of maneuvers in "operation big lift." The operation will be the largest overseas airlift ever undertaken."

The streamlining of supply lines to U.S. forces in Europe is "part of a program to effect improved logistics management on a worldwide basis," the department said.

Army Secretary Cyrus Vance has said that when this "readjustment" is completed the United States will still have in Europe several thousand more than the 228,000 who were there at the beginning of the Berlin crisis.

To The Voters of Caldwell Parish

I read and hear a lot about me voting against the Unpledged Electors Bill in the past session of the Legislature. I would like to point out that it was not my vote alone that kept this Bill from passing. I made it my business to do considerable checking on this Bill before voting on it either way. I was told by several good Lawyers that we would elect a man from each district in the state and two at large to do our voting at National Presidential Convention. I for one will vote against President Kennedy and I believe that most of Caldwell Parish will too. I do not want to send someone else to do my voting for me. I want to do it myself, and I feel that the majority of the people of this parish want to do their own voting too.

I introduced a Bill in the House of Representatives in 1962 for an Open Primary Law in the State of Louisiana and it was killed. Louisiana and six other states are Solid Democrats (called the Deep South Democrats). All other states have an Open Primary Law which I think is right. I think a man or woman should be able to register for any party they want to and vote in all elections. I will put this bill in again and keep trying to get it passed.

If elected again I am going to have a Bill in the House for $100 per month for each person over 65 that is eligible to draw the Old Age Pension. They now get $82 per month for one and $76 per month each for two in the same family. I will have a Bill for all those who are drawing the Old Age Pension to have a Medical Card to pay for their Medicine and Hospital Bills.

I am also going to have a Bill to raise the tax on Sulphur back like it was. As you know Huey Long put this tax on and Robert Kennon took it off. It was $3 per ton and it is now $1 per ton. Additional tax on sulphur in the State of Louisiana will help more than it will harm the state. Insecticides are exempt from this tax. Since 90% of our sulphur is shipped out of the state and we only use 10% in the state (most of it used for Insecticides) the tax would be very helpful. I think to raise this sulphur tax will be the best way to help the old people of our parish and state.

I send a house Calender to the Police Jury, School Board and our Local News Paper, every day of the Legislature. They know every day what I do. I have nothing to hide. I have voted for every Segregation Bill that came up in the House of Representatives but all of our Bills were killed by the Federal Judges.

I have four opponents running against me as you already know. I have nothing to say about any of them. I would like to have the opportunity to be your Representative for the next four years. I have worked hard in the past to help improve our Parish. Everyone knows that none of us can accomplish everything we set out to do. I feel that I have helped our parish in a number of ways, and I would like the opportunity to continue doing so. Any help from you the VOTERS OF CALDWELL PARISH will be appreciated very much.

Your Representative,

YOUNG NEW YORKERS

Judge Indicts 4 For Cuban Trip

NEW YORK (AP)—Four young New Yorkers were indicted Friday as organizers of last summer's trip to Cuba by 50 American students. The junket was carried out in defiance of a State Department ban.

In the first criminal prosecution of any of the students, Brooklyn U.S. Dist. Judge Walter Bruchhausen issued bench warrants for arrest of the four on charges of violating immigration laws.

Among those indicted by a federal grand jury in Brooklyn of illegally conspiring to arrange the trip was one of the promoters, Anatol Schlosser, 26, who did not actually go to Cuba.

The other three, who made the trip, included Lee Levi Laub, 24, and Phillip A. Luce, 26, leaders of the group, and Stefan Martinot, 24.

The students flew to Havana last June by way of Czechoslovakia, after U.S. authorities had refused permission for the trip. The State Department warned them in advance that they faced possible imprisonment if they went ahead. Fifty-eight of the students returned in late August, after their U.S. passports had been withdrawn. The other drowned in a hotel swimming pool in Cuba.

Several of the students explained that, besides yearning for a first-hand look at Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuba, they wanted to test the State Department travel ban.

The Brooklyn indictment, although the first involving the student group, was the third of its kind.

The ban currently is being tested by William Worthy of Baltimore, who is appealing a three-month sentence for violating regulations pertaining to Cuban travel.

Besides Worthy, Helen Maxine Levi Travis, Los Angeles, is awaiting trial on charges of making illegal trips to Cuba.

The multiple-count indictment charges Laub, Luce and Martinot of leaving and re-entering the United States without valid passports. They are liable to a maximum 15 years in prison and fines of up to $20,000 each if convicted. Schlosser could get five years as a promoter of the trip.

The State Department in 1961 issued regulations requiring a specially validated passport for travel to Cuba. The indictment charged that the three defendants who made the trip lacked such validation.

The Brooklyn federal court acquired jurisdiction over many of the students because they came back to Idlewild Airport by way of Europe.

U.S. Atty. Joseph P. Hoey said the four defendants formed a committee a year ago to recruit students for the Havana trip. They had been invited by the Cuban Student Federation, which supposedly paid air fares and basic expenses.

Applications for the trip were distributed in this country by Laub, Hoey said, and the defendants held meetings on the promotion in the United States, France and Czechoslovakia.

Laub, who described himself as a student at Columbia University, was a witness in mid-September when a near riot broke out at Washington hearings of a House subcommittee.

Another witness at the same hearing was Luce, who said he is an Ohio State University student. He testified he and his wife made the trip to Cuba because he knew of no law against such travel—only regulation.

Civil Defense Test In Area Slated Today

Exercise "Test Run" will be held today by the Area 4 Civil Defense in conjunction with the Louisiana Civil Defense Agency to determine the ability of the local unit to operate under conditions of simulated nuclear attack.

Area 4 Emergency Operations Center at 400 Stone Ave. in Monroe controls a section of north Louisiana which includes Caldwell, East Carroll, Franklin, Jackson, Lincoln, Madison, Morehouse, Ouachita, Richland, Tensas, Unoin and West Carroll parishes.

Participating in the exercise will be representatives of 12 state agencies and departments, as well as the Area 4 Civil Defense staff composed of volunteers from the Monroe and surrounding area.

The exercise will be held under the assumption that several nuclear detonations have occurred within the state, causing vast destruction of property and killing and injuring thousands. Within a few hours after this imaginary attack, radioactive debris, carried by upper winds, will be assumed to have contaminated a large part of the state with radioactive fallout.

Existing communications in the area and state networks will be used to relay information to the emergency operating centers, where it will be coordinated and posted on maps from which participating agencies will make decisions and simulate action.

The general public will not participate in the exercise.

Members of the Area 4 Civil Defense staff include A. B. Clarkson, Monroe, director; Mrs. Helen Agneu, Monroe, deputy director; Mrs. Bobbie Stewart, West Monroe, executive secretary; Jack Hover, Monroe, communications officer; Marvin Hill, Monroe, radio officer; Bell Bell, Ralph May and Clarence Gibson, Monroe, RACES members.

Also taking part in the exercise will be the alternate state Civil Defense staff of Area 5 at Camp Beauregard, and six other state agencies, including Area 1-A New Orleans, Sub-Area 1-A Thibodaux, Area 1-B Baton Rouge; Area 2 Mansfield, Area 3 Kinder and Area 6 Lafayette.

State agencies and departments participating are the Department of Public Safety, Department of Highways, Public Works, Public Welfare, Hospitals, Agriculture and Immigration, State Board of Health, Fire Marshal, Division of Employment Security and the Forestry Commission.

In announcing the one-day test, State Adjutant General, Brig. Gen. Woolfley said, "The proposed treaty banning the testing of thermonuclear weapons in the atmosphere does not appreciably lessen the possibility of a nuclear attack on this nation.

"In case of such attack it is the inherent duty of every state and local government official to operate under emergency conditions and protect the lives and property of every Louisiana citizen."

Gillis Long Hits Industry Lack On Area Swing

NEWELLTON (Special) — Congressman Gillis W. Long continued to hammer at unemployment and the lack of diversified industry here Friday as he carried his campaign for governor into Northeast Louisiana.

Long and members of his ticket spoke here at 5:15 p.m. following stops in Mer Rouge, Oak Grove, Lake Providence, Epps, Delhi, and Tallulah throughout the day.

"I know the trouble you're having finding jobs and markets," he told listeners here.

"Remember, I grew up on a farm near Tannehill in Winn Parish, and they're having the same problems of shrinking population and a stagnant economy there as many other small towns and communities are in North Louisiana.

"Anybody that cared could see this coming years ago. And unless something's done and done fast, North Louisiana will lie fallow. Gradually a few people will control most of it.

"Our state needs strong, positive leadership to stop and reverse this trend, and I'm the man who can give it to you."

Long's running mate, R. O. Rush, joined him in appealing for "help in putting forth economic programs like those in Mississippi where the small community is not forgotten in the efforts to develop business and industry."

"He's slipping. You notice the people who found themselves committed to him last year are coming over to the Longs now," Long said.

The Long-Rush ticket moves on to Bunkie for a stop at 9 a.m., today, then stumps through Mamou, Basile, Kinder, Lake Charles, and DeQuincy during the day.

Events Since Munich Pact

Tuesday of this week the United States Senate ratified the Moscow nuclear test ban treaty. The three nations making the original signatures to the document in the Soviet capital were Britian, the United States and the Soviet Union. Both Britian and the U. S. know better than to enter into such an agreement.

The treaty itself, which provides for no enforcement or inspections of any kind, has caused anxiety among many concerned officials and citizens in the United States and the free world. There is the gnawing fear that we will adhere to the terms of the ban along with Britian while Russia conducts tests undetected somewhere in her vast reaches of uninhabited territory.

In addition, history shows clearly that a treaty with a police state is a snare and a trap. On September 30, 1938, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain signed an accord with German Chancellor Adolf Hitler concerning the latter's aim to incorporate western Czechoslovakia into the Third Reich. The British leader urged the Czech government to let Hitler have his way in order to assure peace in that time.

But Hitler's aim then, as is Khrushchev's now, was to continue his aggressive tactics. In the space of 11 months, the German dictator had readied his armies and was ready to strike Poland. Even then, the western European nations could not believe what was happening and were not prepared when Hitler turned his attention away from Poland and struck at France.

During the following year, the United States put into effect a military draft which has continued for nearly a quarter century. Until 1945, this was a necessary step because of World War II. But following that conflict, it became obvious that the Soviet Union as a totalitarian power was as determined as were Nazi Germany and Imperial Japan to dominate the world.

It also became obvious that Russian agents working in Britian and the United States during the war had little interest in the welfare of their wartime allies' governments. As far as Soviet agents were concerned, their enemies — the capitalists and the nazis — were locked in a death struggle and one faction, the capitalists, were actually helping the Soviets toward the end of the war.

On the other hand, earlier in that war, the Soviets and Germans signed a mutual non-aggression pact which enabled Russia to take half of Poland and the Baltic nations. This honeymoon lasted more than two years. So during World War II, Russia actually played both sides of the fence. While the nazis were winning at the start, the U. S. S. R. made gains. When the allies ended the war as victors, Russia was on that side to pick up winnings for the communist cause.

The fact that exactly 25 years have gone by since the British-German accord — known also as the Munich Pact — should have injected a spirit of caution this week into any dealings with a totalitarian government. But the Kennedy administration appears to be in mood to throw caution to the winds.

By Thursday, President Kennedy announced he approved of a $250 million wheat transaction with the U. S. S. R. This is a far cry from the cautious attitudes reflected in the Allen and Scott report and the Ralph de Toledano column on this page today.

Here is a list of historic events we now join in the signing of the Moscow test ban treaty.

1. On September 30, 1938, Chamberlain and Hitler signed the Munich Pact.

2. On September 28, 1939, Stalin and Hitler divided Poland.

3. In June, 1941, Hitler attacked Russia. Allies supported Russia.

4. Peace, 1945, Russia occupied eastern Europe. United Nations formed.

5. 1948, Berlin Blockade; Truman Doctrine aimed at halting Reds.

6. 1950, Korean War, open hostility between Reds and Free World.

7. 1952, Dulles "brink of war" policy held world at uneasy status quo.

8. 1959, U. S. vigil relaxed, Castro took over Cuba.

9. 1963, Moscow Test Ban okayed as "first step" toward world peace.

Acts Of Administration Show About-Face In Foreign Policy

From the public acts and private utterances of President Kennedy and his Administration, it is clear that American foreign policy has made an abrupt about-face. Neither the President nor the State Department is willing to admit that this is so, but there is no longer any doubt in the minds of competent observers and fascinated foreign diplomats that the Truman containment policy which governed our affairs has been tossed into the discard. With it went the possibility that the Dulles policy of "liberation" — never very much more than words — might ever be implemented.

The changes brought about by Mr. Kennedy — aided by the Walt Rostow, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and McGeorge Bundy triumvirate — can be summed up briefly. They are based on the reversal of the Truman Doctrine, expressed in the famous "Mr. X" (George Kennan) article of 1947 that the U.S. can deal effectively with the Soviet Union only "as a rival, not a partner in the political arena."

THE PRESIDENT has also cast aside the "containment" policy designed to confront the Russians with unalterable counterforce at every point where they show signs of encroaching upon the interests of a peaceful and stable world." (Again, the words are Mr. Kennan's, but the policy was official until 1962.)

In its place, the Kennedy Administration has substituted concepts once enunciated by Walter Lippmann in his attack on the Truman Doctrine. Mr. Lippmann's standing as a prophet may be gauged by his flat assertion in 1947 that the United States could never find "The strength and resourcefulness to contain the Soviet power over a period of ten or fifteen years." The Kennedy Administration seems to have waited until the Lippmann prediction fell of its own weight before adopting the policies he advocated.

Mr. Kennedy now argues — and implements that argument with specific acts — that containment is dead. The time has come to end the cold war, he feels, and the initiative must be his. Instead of standing up to Soviet encroachments, the White House must sell the Kremlin on a new policy of "cooperation."

FAR MORE important than this is the very sharp swing away from the system of alliances (multilateralism) which have preserved the peace since the beginning of NATO, and the abandonment of the Atlantic community concept, to a new policy of bilateralism. The suggestion that the United States and the Soviet Union, as the two great powers, should decide all matters between themselves — and the devil take the rest of the world — was first made by Premier Stalin to President Roosevelt at Yalta. It has been repeated at regular intervals by the Kremlin, and it is the major aim of Comrade Khrushchev's foreign policy.

The President, though he does not go quite so far as the Soviets, has now accepted it. He believes that there can be a "settlement" of cold war controversies only if the ineffable Nikita and he — as the world's strong men — come to an agreement. The rest of the world will then fall in line. It is this obvious conviction of Mr. Kennedy which has generated the opposition of General de Gaulle to American acts. It has also encouraged the growing suspicion of many Europeans that the Kennedy Administration intends to cast them adrift.

THE SO-CALLED "eye to eye" confrontation of Mr. Kennedy and Comrade Khrushchev over Cuba in October, 1962 caused convulsions in Europe's capitals not so much because NATO governments really feared the outbreak of nuclear war, but rather because they were informed of imminent U.S. action on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

President Kennedy's offer of a joint U. S. Soviet moon prober has had an equally far-reaching effect. The Administration's haste to "disclose" that a similar offer had been made in 1961 was an answer to the dismayed reaction along Embassy Row where diplomatic speculation was rife.

CERTAINLY, the steamroller tactics of the Administration in winning support in the Senate for the Treaty of Moscow on a nuclear test ban assume a new significance. And it points up the arguments made by those who stand in opposition. If the Communist leopard has changed his spots, Mr. Kennedy may emerge as the Great Peacemaker. But if the White House has miscalculated, the disarray in the Western alliance may well leave us divided and confused when Comrade Khrushchev next assaults the free world.

Canadian-Soviet Wheat Agreement

WASHINGTON — It's almost impossible to overestimate the tremendous impact that Canada's $500 million wheat deal with Russia will have on future U. S.-Canadian relations.

When the full details of this giant wheat agreement are made public, they will show that Moscow has been given a powerful economic weapon to meddle in Western trade and diplomatic affairs.

The fine print in this three-year trade agreement, which U. S. authorities are now carefully studying, reveals that Moscow retains the exclusive right to cancel the wheat deal at any time if it thinks Ottawa is discriminating against Russian goods.

BY WINNING this unprecedented right, the Kremlin obtained the power to force Canada at any time to accept Soviet goods rather than U. S. or face the politically explosive cancelation of the highly publicized wheat agreement.

This powerful Soviet lever on Canada's trade with the U. S. could prod this country's most serious economic problem — the outflow of U. S. dollars — to the brink.

In recent years U. S. officials have counted heavily on this country's favorable balance of trade ($200 million) with Canada, our best foreign customer, to cut down the flow of dollars from the U. S.

If Russia is permitted to drastically increase its sales to Canada at the expense of the U. S., this unhealthy trade development could cause the U. S. to cut back on purchases from Canada—igniting a small trade war similar to the one now developing between the U. S. and France.

ALREADY, the Soviet-Canadian wheat deal is being privately blamed by U. S. officials as a contributing factor in Prime Minister Lester Pearson's unexpected decision to reduce Canada's import of automobile spare parts from the U. S.

Under Pearson's new program, the spare parts will be made in plants in Canada and England. The latter spare parts will be paid for by Soviet goods sold to the British in exchange for Canadian wheat.

ACCORDING TO an estimate made by the Central Intelligence Agency, the granting of this wheat contract cancelation right to Russia was a major trade concession that the Canadians had refused to give the Soviets in past wheat agreements.

The concession was ordered written into the wheat accord by Prime Minister Pearson after S. A. Borisov, the Soviet First Deputy Minister for Foreign Trade, threatened to seek the wheat from other countries, including the U. S.

Borisov, who acted as Russia's chief trade negotiator, frankly told Pearson that Russia expects Canada to give his country priority over the U. S. whenever a conflict in trade develops.

"This agreement makes the Soviet Union your most important customer," Borisov told Pearson. "We expect Canada to become one of our best customers. We will furnish you a list of goods we want to sell. If there is any conflict with U. S. trade, we are to receive top priority."

UNDER THE terms of the wheat agreement, Canada will ship to Russia 227.5 million bushels of wheat, 29.5 million bushels of it in the form of flour by July 31, 1965. Russia will pay $500 million including 25 per cent in cash, for the wheat. The balance will be paid in gold and Soviet trade within 18 months of the date of shipment.

Communist China is putting out new feelers to obtain surplus wheat from the U. S. in exchange for easing tensions in the Far East.

The unannounced move was made on September 11 at a meeting in Warsaw between the U. S. Ambassador John Moors Cabot and Wang Pingnan, Red China's Ambassador to Poland.

The Chinese Red diplomat proposed a meeting of heads of state to negotiate a wheat deal and to discuss disarmament steps that both nations could take to ease tensions in the Far East.

Ambassador Wang Pingnan first presented the disarmament plan when he met with Ambassador Cabot on August 8. At the September meeting, he added the feeler about purchasing wheat from the U. S.

The unexpected offers are now under secret review by a special State Department task force set up by Under Secretary of State Averell Harriman to review U. S. policy toward Red China. Marshall Green, former U. S. consul general in Hong Kong, is heading the study.

ONE OF the main sponsors of new Postmaster General John A. Gronouski, of Wisconsin, was Paul Corbin, the Democratic National Committee staffer and a close friend of Attorney General Robert Kennedy. After a trip to Wisconsin, Corbin reported to the White House that Gronouski's appointment could help President Kennedy carry that key state in 1964. Nixon won it in 1960 . . . Senator Clinton Anderson, chairman of the Senate Space Committee, is saying that he had no inkling of the offer to share the U. S. moon program with Russia before President Kennedy made his announcement at the United Nations . . . Supporters of Governor Nelson Rockefeller, R-N. Y., are sore at Senator Kenneth Keating, R-N. Y., for his private statements to newsmen that he doesn't believe Rockefeller can capture the GOP presidential nomination in 1964. They report that Senator Keating sees himself as a dark horse" should a convention deadlock develop.

Democrats Hope To Add Voters

Democratic political strategists are awaiting with pleasant anticipation the appearance of a federally financed study of why so many Americans fail to register and vote.

The study, which was launched last spring and will cost something under $75,000, is expected to be published sometime in November.

It is the work of the bipartisan President's Commission on Registration and Voting Participation which was created by an executive order on March 30.

Here, in the words of Representative Frank Thompson, Jr., (D.-N.J.), one of the Democrats' principal experts on voter registration, is the explanation of why his party colleagues regard the forthcoming study as so important:

"Our research indicates that of the 40 million unregistered but otherwise qualified voters, 28 million are Democrats."

IN OTHER words, the Democratic experts are convinced that if these non-voters could be registered and gotten to the polls, 7 out of 10 could cast their ballot for Democratic candidates.

From the description of the commission's report offered by Donald M. Herzberg, the New Jersey politicial scientist who is directing its preparation, it sounds like just the sort of handbook directors of Democratic - sponsored voter registration campaigns will need to get their programs launched with a bang.

The Commission's five - man staff has been in correspondence with office holders and election officials in every state, has drawn together a complete capitulation of state election laws and has delved into the psychological as well as the legal barriers which block potential voters from exercising their franchise.

THOMPSON, who served during the 1960 campaign as the Democrats' national chairman for registration efforts, described the commission's researches as promising to be "invaluable" to the practical politician.

Despite the practical benefits to Democrats of increasing participation in the election process, the whole subject has a pleasantly non-partisan, patriotic aura about it.

It was this aura which enabled the President to organize the Commission, finance it with tax funds and win as supporters of its work such Republican luminaries as former President Eisenhower.

The 11-man Commission, which is headed by Census Bureau Director Richard Scammon, has among its members one Republican party official — Minnesota State Chairman Robert A. Forsythe — and the two former junior cabinet officials under Eisenhower — John A. Perkins, President of the University of Delaware, and Bradshaw Mintener, a Washington lawyer.

THE OTHER commission members are: Bert Bennett, former Democratic State Chairman in North Carolina; Brendan Byrne, American Heritage Foundation; Evron M. Kirkpatrick, Executive Director of the American Political Science Association, Mrs. Ruth S. Phillips, President of the League of Women Voters; Roy L. Reuther, United Auto Workers' Citizenship - Legislative Department; Professor Victoria Schuck, Mount Holyoke College, and Leon H. Washington, Jr., Publisher of the Los Angeles Sentinel.

The commission was directed to exclude from its researches those facets of election laws which are the responsibility of the Federal Civil Rights Commission and concentrate its studies in four principal areas:

—Laws which restrict registration and votnig on the basis of residence, economic status and other factors; Registration procedures; Absentee voting provisions; Causes of non-voting by persons otherwise qualified to vote.

Grounds For Promotion

One of the most pitiful hoaxes of socialism — or even the use of socialized thinking as applied to business economy — is the acceptance of a fixed market and a fixed price. For many years, the world's coffee producers have tried to reason their world market in such a fashion only to end up in hot water themselves.

At the end of the row, we find the root of the problem—coffee growers continue to produce more coffee than coffee drinkers can drink.

Until lately, the growers' efforts to improve their situation have shown a similarity to certain "new deal" schemes now familiar to U. S. agriculture — boosting prices through price controls, quota setting, or destruction of surplus. In the end, all of these plans make the innocent bystander, the consumer, the goat.

But others also suffer. In some cases, coffee on grocers' shelves has piled up. One account, pointing up the amount of hard work in coffee farming, said each cup of coffee was matched with one cup of farmer's sweat.

It is refreshing to see a trend now toward supply and demand business methods among producers. In fact, many producers are talking about courting the consumer instead of trying to roast him along with the coffee beans.

Coffee consumption in the United States appears to be edging downward in spite of the "coffee-break" custom. Also the population of those who have reached the coffee drinking age is known to have increased.

With this trend in mind, the U. S. representative of the National Federation of Coffee Growers of Colombia is proposing that all the world's growers up a dollar for each bag of coffee beans shipped to finance a promotional campaign. That assessment would raise about $45 million.

As in any other promotional campaign, no one can be certain that a sales campaign urging the people to drink more coffee would do just that in the nick of time. As far as U. S. consumers are concerned, we already use up more than half the coffee grounds produced in the world. But a campaign aimed at the consumer market — a move to step up the demand — makes much better sense than the socialistic schemes which usually end up roasting the coffee drinker as well as the coffee farmer instead of the coffee beans.

The Treaty of Utrecht in 1713 ceded Cape Breton Island to France. King Louix XV decided to erect a great fortress there to command the straits leading into the St. Lawrence.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Use Of Pressure In Medical Ad

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Repeatedly you have expressed concern about the many charlatans and quacks who prey upon the sufferers of arthritis and similar degenerative disease, and you have voiced your profound commiseration with the victims of these vultures.

I AM afflicted with prostrate gland trouble (I am 63), and I have been under treatment by a respected and well-qualified urologist for almost a year. I have improved somewhat.

However, the dribbling and the lack of control in the flow of urine continues, and when the urge to void manifests itself, I'd better go immediately — or else!

This, as you can understand, can be terribly embarrassing at times.)

Now, about two weeks ago I noticed an ad, which claims to be able to cure prostate gland trouble. Spurred on by the apparent lack of complete amelioration in my bladder control, I answered the ad and received brochure. As was to be expected, the contents tell in glowing terms the advantages of coming to this place for treatment. However, there are four things I do not like about the brochure:

The promise to restore sexual vigor. This obviously plays upon the average male's vanity to whom this particular loss seems to be a blow to his self-esteem.

2. The threat of contracting cancer should one neglect treatment. This, I imagine is aimed at installing a morbid fear and must be regarded as an incentive to act forwith.

3. The prodding at the end of the message to "Act now" and "This is your golden opportunity.' To me this smacks of noxious high-pressure salesmanship. Any time I hear or see this expression I instinctively become wary and "en garde." True, the brochure is enticingly and cleverly composed, but I know that many a worthless stock or real estate property is sold in thick-carpeted, mahogany-embellished offices.

4. The endeavor to have one bring also any relative afflicted with arthritis. (Which, of course, would be most beneficial for the pecuniary situation of this organization.)

As I stated in the beginning, I am not at all sure, Dr. Steincrohn, whether you are in any position to aid me in my request for truth, not having read the brochure. But by this time you must have formulated some suspicion or exonerated them of guilt.

Events Since Munich Pact

Tuesday of this week the United States Senate ratified the Moscow nuclear test ban treaty. The three nations making the original signatures to the document in the Soviet capital were Britian, the United States and the Soviet Union. Both Britian and the U. S. know better than to enter into such an agreement.

The treaty itself, which provides for no enforcement or inspections of any kind, has caused anxiety among many concerned officials and citizens in the United States and the free world. There is the gnawing fear that we will adhere to the terms of the ban along with Britian while Russia conducts tests undetected somewhere in her vast reaches of uninhabited territory.

In addition, history shows clearly that a treaty with a police state is a snare and a trap. On September 30, 1938, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain signed an accord with German Chancellor Adolf Hitler concerning the latter's aim to incorporate western Czechoslovakia into the Third Reich. The British leader urged the Czech government to let Hitler have his way in order to assure peace in that time.

But Hitler's aim then, as is Khrushchev's now, was to continue his aggressive tactics. In the space of 11 months, the German dictator had readied his armies and was ready to strike Poland. Even then, the western European nations could not believe what was happening and were not prepared when Hitler turned his attention away from Poland and struck at France.

During the following year, the United States put into effect a military draft which has continued for nearly a quarter century. Until 1945, this was a necessary step because of World War II. But following that conflict, it became obvious that the Soviet Union as a totalitarian power was as determined as were Nazi Germany and Imperial Japan to dominate the world.

It also became obvious that Russian agents working in Britian and the United States during the war had little interest in the welfare of their wartime allies' governments. As far as Soviet agents were concerned, their enemies — the capitalists and the nazis — were locked in a death struggle and one faction, the capitalists, were actually helping the Soviets toward the end of the war.

On the other hand, earlier in that war, the Soviets and Germans signed a mutual non-aggression pact which enabled Russia to take half of Poland and the Baltic nations. This honeymoon lasted more than two years. So during World War II, Russia actually played both sides of the fence. While the nazis were winning at the start, the U. S. S. R. made gains. When the allies ended the war as victors, Russia was on that side to pick up winnings for the communist cause.

The fact that exactly 25 years have gone by since the British-German accord — known also as the Munich Pact — should have injected a spirit of caution this week into any dealings with a totalitarian government. But the Kennedy administration appears to be in mood to throw caution to the winds.

By Thursday, President Kennedy announced he approved of a $250 million wheat transaction with the U. S. S. R. This is a far cry from the cautious attitudes reflected in the Allen and Scott report and the Ralph de Toledano column on this page today.

Here is a list of historic events we now join in the signing of the Moscow test ban treaty.

1. On September 30, 1938, Chamberlain and Hitler signed the Munich Pact.

2. On September 28, 1939, Stalin and Hitler divided Poland.

3. In June, 1941, Hitler attacked Russia. Allies supported Russia.

4. Peace, 1945, Russia occupied eastern Europe. United Nations formed.

5. 1948, Berlin Blockade; Truman Doctrine aimed at halting Reds.

6. 1950, Korean War, open hostility between Reds and Free World.

7. 1952, Dulles "brink of war" policy held world at uneasy status quo.

8. 1959, U. S. vigil relaxed, Castro took over Cuba.

9. 1963, Moscow Test Ban okayed as "first step" toward world peace.

Acts Of Administration Show About-Face In Foreign Policy

From the public acts and private utterances of President Kennedy and his Administration, it is clear that American foreign policy has made an abrupt about-face. Neither the President nor the State Department is willing to admit that this is so, but there is no longer any doubt in the minds of competent observers and fascinated foreign diplomats that the Truman containment policy which governed our affairs has been tossed into the discard. With it went the possibility that the Dulles policy of "liberation" — never very much more than words — might ever be implemented.

The changes brought about by Mr. Kennedy — aided by the Walt Rostow, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and McGeorge Bundy triumvirate — can be summed up briefly. They are based on the reversal of the Truman Doctrine, expressed in the famous "Mr. X" (George Kennan) article of 1947 that the U.S. can deal effectively with the Soviet Union only "as a rival, not a partner in the political arena."

THE PRESIDENT has also cast aside the "containment" policy designed to confront the Russians with unalterable counterforce at every point where they show signs of encroaching upon the interests of a peaceful and stable world." (Again, the words are Mr. Kennan's, but the policy was official until 1962.)

In its place, the Kennedy Administration has substituted concepts once enunciated by Walter Lippmann in his attack on the Truman Doctrine. Mr. Lippmann's standing as a prophet may be gauged by his flat assertion in 1947 that the United States could never find "The strength and resourcefulness to contain the Soviet power over a period of ten or fifteen years." The Kennedy Administration seems to have waited until the Lippmann prediction fell of its own weight before adopting the policies he advocated.

Mr. Kennedy now argues — and implements that argument with specific acts — that containment is dead. The time has come to end the cold war, he feels, and the initiative must be his. Instead of standing up to Soviet encroachments, the White House must sell the Kremlin on a new policy of "cooperation."

FAR MORE important than this is the very sharp swing away from the system of alliances (multilateralism) which have preserved the peace since the beginning of NATO, and the abandonment of the Atlantic community concept, to a new policy of bilateralism. The suggestion that the United States and the Soviet Union, as the two great powers, should decide all matters between themselves — and the devil take the rest of the world — was first made by Premier Stalin to President Roosevelt at Yalta. It has been repeated at regular intervals by the Kremlin, and it is the major aim of Comrade Khrushchev's foreign policy.

The President, though he does not go quite so far as the Soviets, has now accepted it. He believes that there can be a "settlement" of cold war controversies only if the ineffable Nikita and he — as the world's strong men — come to an agreement. The rest of the world will then fall in line. It is this obvious conviction of Mr. Kennedy which has generated the opposition of General de Gaulle to American acts. It has also encouraged the growing suspicion of many Europeans that the Kennedy Administration intends to cast them adrift.

THE SO-CALLED "eye to eye" confrontation of Mr. Kennedy and Comrade Khrushchev over Cuba in October, 1962 caused convulsions in Europe's capitals not so much because NATO governments really feared the outbreak of nuclear war, but rather because they were informed of imminent U.S. action on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

President Kennedy's offer of a joint U. S. Soviet moon prober has had an equally far-reaching effect. The Administration's haste to "disclose" that a similar offer had been made in 1961 was an answer to the dismayed reaction along Embassy Row where diplomatic speculation was rife.

CERTAINLY, the steamroller tactics of the Administration in winning support in the Senate for the Treaty of Moscow on a nuclear test ban assume a new significance. And it points up the arguments made by those who stand in opposition. If the Communist leopard has changed his spots, Mr. Kennedy may emerge as the Great Peacemaker. But if the White House has miscalculated, the disarray in the Western alliance may well leave us divided and confused when Comrade Khrushchev next assaults the free world.

Canadian-Soviet Wheat Agreement

WASHINGTON — It's almost impossible to overestimate the tremendous impact that Canada's $500 million wheat deal with Russia will have on future U. S.-Canadian relations.

When the full details of this giant wheat agreement are made public, they will show that Moscow has been given a powerful economic weapon to meddle in Western trade and diplomatic affairs.

The fine print in this three-year trade agreement, which U. S. authorities are now carefully studying, reveals that Moscow retains the exclusive right to cancel the wheat deal at any time if it thinks Ottawa is discriminating against Russian goods.

BY WINNING this unprecedented right, the Kremlin obtained the power to force Canada at any time to accept Soviet goods rather than U. S. or face the politically explosive cancelation of the highly publicized wheat agreement.

This powerful Soviet lever on Canada's trade with the U. S. could prod this country's most serious economic problem — the outflow of U. S. dollars — to the brink.

In recent years U. S. officials have counted heavily on this country's favorable balance of trade ($200 million) with Canada, our best foreign customer, to cut down the flow of dollars from the U. S.

If Russia is permitted to drastically increase its sales to Canada at the expense of the U. S., this unhealthy trade development could cause the U. S. to cut back on purchases from Canada—igniting a small trade war similar to the one now developing between the U. S. and France.

ALREADY, the Soviet-Canadian wheat deal is being privately blamed by U. S. officials as a contributing factor in Prime Minister Lester Pearson's unexpected decision to reduce Canada's import of automobile spare parts from the U. S.

Under Pearson's new program, the spare parts will be made in plants in Canada and England. The latter spare parts will be paid for by Soviet goods sold to the British in exchange for Canadian wheat.

ACCORDING TO an estimate made by the Central Intelligence Agency, the granting of this wheat contract cancelation right to Russia was a major trade concession that the Canadians had refused to give the Soviets in past wheat agreements.

The concession was ordered written into the wheat accord by Prime Minister Pearson after S. A. Borisov, the Soviet First Deputy Minister for Foreign Trade, threatened to seek the wheat from other countries, including the U. S.

Borisov, who acted as Russia's chief trade negotiator, frankly told Pearson that Russia expects Canada to give his country priority over the U. S. whenever a conflict in trade develops.

"This agreement makes the Soviet Union your most important customer," Borisov told Pearson. "We expect Canada to become one of our best customers. We will furnish you a list of goods we want to sell. If there is any conflict with U. S. trade, we are to receive top priority."

UNDER THE terms of the wheat agreement, Canada will ship to Russia 227.5 million bushels of wheat, 29.5 million bushels of it in the form of flour by July 31, 1965. Russia will pay $500 million including 25 per cent in cash, for the wheat. The balance will be paid in gold and Soviet trade within 18 months of the date of shipment.

Communist China is putting out new feelers to obtain surplus wheat from the U. S. in exchange for easing tensions in the Far East.

The unannounced move was made on September 11 at a meeting in Warsaw between the U. S. Ambassador John Moors Cabot and Wang Pingnan, Red China's Ambassador to Poland.

The Chinese Red diplomat proposed a meeting of heads of state to negotiate a wheat deal and to discuss disarmament steps that both nations could take to ease tensions in the Far East.

Ambassador Wang Pingnan first presented the disarmament plan when he met with Ambassador Cabot on August 8. At the September meeting, he added the feeler about purchasing wheat from the U. S.

The unexpected offers are now under secret review by a special State Department task force set up by Under Secretary of State Averell Harriman to review U. S. policy toward Red China. Marshall Green, former U. S. consul general in Hong Kong, is heading the study.

ONE OF the main sponsors of new Postmaster General John A. Gronouski, of Wisconsin, was Paul Corbin, the Democratic National Committee staffer and a close friend of Attorney General Robert Kennedy. After a trip to Wisconsin, Corbin reported to the White House that Gronouski's appointment could help President Kennedy carry that key state in 1964. Nixon won it in 1960 . . . Senator Clinton Anderson, chairman of the Senate Space Committee, is saying that he had no inkling of the offer to share the U. S. moon program with Russia before President Kennedy made his announcement at the United Nations . . . Supporters of Governor Nelson Rockefeller, R-N. Y., are sore at Senator Kenneth Keating, R-N. Y., for his private statements to newsmen that he doesn't believe Rockefeller can capture the GOP presidential nomination in 1964. They report that Senator Keating sees himself as a dark horse" should a convention deadlock develop.

Democrats Hope To Add Voters

Democratic political strategists are awaiting with pleasant anticipation the appearance of a federally financed study of why so many Americans fail to register and vote.

The study, which was launched last spring and will cost something under $75,000, is expected to be published sometime in November.

It is the work of the bipartisan President's Commission on Registration and Voting Participation which was created by an executive order on March 30.

Here, in the words of Representative Frank Thompson, Jr., (D.-N.J.), one of the Democrats' principal experts on voter registration, is the explanation of why his party colleagues regard the forthcoming study as so important:

"Our research indicates that of the 40 million unregistered but otherwise qualified voters, 28 million are Democrats."

IN OTHER words, the Democratic experts are convinced that if these non-voters could be registered and gotten to the polls, 7 out of 10 could cast their ballot for Democratic candidates.

From the description of the commission's report offered by Donald M. Herzberg, the New Jersey politicial scientist who is directing its preparation, it sounds like just the sort of handbook directors of Democratic - sponsored voter registration campaigns will need to get their programs launched with a bang.

The Commission's five - man staff has been in correspondence with office holders and election officials in every state, has drawn together a complete capitulation of state election laws and has delved into the psychological as well as the legal barriers which block potential voters from exercising their franchise.

THOMPSON, who served during the 1960 campaign as the Democrats' national chairman for registration efforts, described the commission's researches as promising to be "invaluable" to the practical politician.

Despite the practical benefits to Democrats of increasing participation in the election process, the whole subject has a pleasantly non-partisan, patriotic aura about it.

It was this aura which enabled the President to organize the Commission, finance it with tax funds and win as supporters of its work such Republican luminaries as former President Eisenhower.

The 11-man Commission, which is headed by Census Bureau Director Richard Scammon, has among its members one Republican party official — Minnesota State Chairman Robert A. Forsythe — and the two former junior cabinet officials under Eisenhower — John A. Perkins, President of the University of Delaware, and Bradshaw Mintener, a Washington lawyer.

THE OTHER commission members are: Bert Bennett, former Democratic State Chairman in North Carolina; Brendan Byrne, American Heritage Foundation; Evron M. Kirkpatrick, Executive Director of the American Political Science Association, Mrs. Ruth S. Phillips, President of the League of Women Voters; Roy L. Reuther, United Auto Workers' Citizenship - Legislative Department; Professor Victoria Schuck, Mount Holyoke College, and Leon H. Washington, Jr., Publisher of the Los Angeles Sentinel.

The commission was directed to exclude from its researches those facets of election laws which are the responsibility of the Federal Civil Rights Commission and concentrate its studies in four principal areas:

—Laws which restrict registration and votnig on the basis of residence, economic status and other factors; Registration procedures; Absentee voting provisions; Causes of non-voting by persons otherwise qualified to vote.

Grounds For Promotion

One of the most pitiful hoaxes of socialism — or even the use of socialized thinking as applied to business economy — is the acceptance of a fixed market and a fixed price. For many years, the world's coffee producers have tried to reason their world market in such a fashion only to end up in hot water themselves.

At the end of the row, we find the root of the problem—coffee growers continue to produce more coffee than coffee drinkers can drink.

Until lately, the growers' efforts to improve their situation have shown a similarity to certain "new deal" schemes now familiar to U. S. agriculture — boosting prices through price controls, quota setting, or destruction of surplus. In the end, all of these plans make the innocent bystander, the consumer, the goat.

But others also suffer. In some cases, coffee on grocers' shelves has piled up. One account, pointing up the amount of hard work in coffee farming, said each cup of coffee was matched with one cup of farmer's sweat.

It is refreshing to see a trend now toward supply and demand business methods among producers. In fact, many producers are talking about courting the consumer instead of trying to roast him along with the coffee beans.

Coffee consumption in the United States appears to be edging downward in spite of the "coffee-break" custom. Also the population of those who have reached the coffee drinking age is known to have increased.

With this trend in mind, the U. S. representative of the National Federation of Coffee Growers of Colombia is proposing that all the world's growers up a dollar for each bag of coffee beans shipped to finance a promotional campaign. That assessment would raise about $45 million.

As in any other promotional campaign, no one can be certain that a sales campaign urging the people to drink more coffee would do just that in the nick of time. As far as U. S. consumers are concerned, we already use up more than half the coffee grounds produced in the world. But a campaign aimed at the consumer market — a move to step up the demand — makes much better sense than the socialistic schemes which usually end up roasting the coffee drinker as well as the coffee farmer instead of the coffee beans.

The Treaty of Utrecht in 1713 ceded Cape Breton Island to France. King Louix XV decided to erect a great fortress there to command the straits leading into the St. Lawrence.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Use Of Pressure In Medical Ad

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Repeatedly you have expressed concern about the many charlatans and quacks who prey upon the sufferers of arthritis and similar degenerative disease, and you have voiced your profound commiseration with the victims of these vultures.

I AM afflicted with prostrate gland trouble (I am 63), and I have been under treatment by a respected and well-qualified urologist for almost a year. I have improved somewhat.

However, the dribbling and the lack of control in the flow of urine continues, and when the urge to void manifests itself, I'd better go immediately — or else!

This, as you can understand, can be terribly embarrassing at times.)

Now, about two weeks ago I noticed an ad, which claims to be able to cure prostate gland trouble. Spurred on by the apparent lack of complete amelioration in my bladder control, I answered the ad and received brochure. As was to be expected, the contents tell in glowing terms the advantages of coming to this place for treatment. However, there are four things I do not like about the brochure:

The promise to restore sexual vigor. This obviously plays upon the average male's vanity to whom this particular loss seems to be a blow to his self-esteem.

2. The threat of contracting cancer should one neglect treatment. This, I imagine is aimed at installing a morbid fear and must be regarded as an incentive to act forwith.

3. The prodding at the end of the message to "Act now" and "This is your golden opportunity.' To me this smacks of noxious high-pressure salesmanship. Any time I hear or see this expression I instinctively become wary and "en garde." True, the brochure is enticingly and cleverly composed, but I know that many a worthless stock or real estate property is sold in thick-carpeted, mahogany-embellished offices.

4. The endeavor to have one bring also any relative afflicted with arthritis. (Which, of course, would be most beneficial for the pecuniary situation of this organization.)

As I stated in the beginning, I am not at all sure, Dr. Steincrohn, whether you are in any position to aid me in my request for truth, not having read the brochure. But by this time you must have formulated some suspicion or exonerated them of guilt.

Senate Finds Fast Talking Nicaraguan Backed Both Candidates

CHESTER JORDAN

Chester Jordan In Ward 5 Race For Police Jury

Chester Jordan of West Monroe has announced his candidacy in Ward 5 for the Ouachita Parish Police Jury in the December 7th first primary.

Jordan issued the following statement:

"I am a candidate for Police Juror of Ward five, Ouachita Parish, La. in the Dec. 7, 1963 Democratic Primary.

"I think many people can remember me taking interest in previous elections. Since before I was old enough to vote I have been interested in trying to see that our elected officials gave us the kind of representation that we were entitled. In trying to bring this about once I was a candidate for Ouachita Parish, State Representative and once a candidate for Ward five, Ouachita Parish, Police Juror. Each time I have been a candidate for any office I felt as I now feel that if given the opportunity to represent the people that no man would try harder than I to do a good job.

"I am 46-years-old and have been married to Vera K. Fordham for 29 years. We have four children, three boys, Dwain, Travis and Bob, a daughter, Sylvia. Bob and Sylvia are at home with us at 706½ So. 6th, West Monroe, La. Dwain is a representative of U. S. Tobbaco Co. while Travis is with the U. S. Air Force in Denver, Colo.

"I entered the employment of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Oct. 20, 1941 and now remain with them as an Engineer entrusted wit hthe responsibility of thousands of dollars of equipment on a job I am proud to have.

"I am deeply interested in the job I now seek as Police Juror of Ward 5, Ouachita Parish and if elected will put forth every effort I can to serve the people well enough that they will re-elect me.

"There are four Police Jurors to be elected in Ward 5, Ouachita Parish, Dec. 7, 1963 Democratic Primary and I trust that the voters will consider me as one of their choice and no man will try harder than I to make them a good Police Juror."

Doctor Warns Of Sex Attitude For Teenagers

HARROGATE, England (UPI) —A consultant psychiatrist said Friday society must modify its attitude toward premarital sexual intercourse or permit and prepare teenagers for much earlier marriage.

"Most of what people write about teenagers and plan for them is way off the point," said Dr. Richard Fox. "In fact, our whole social pattern—in sex and everything else — is strait-jacketed by the conventions of the past."

Fox told a Royal Institute of Public Health and Hygiene Conference, "If people think they want to get married but society is postponing it for one reason or another, then good luck to them."

"There is much to be said for the free and easy pre-marital customs of some primitive peoples," he said.

"The problem is that nature presents 11-14 year olds with the capacity to become parents and society forbids it for the next 10 years or so."

Fox said also he was not surprised at the increase in sexual promiscuity when he read that the average American saw 1,510 advertisements each day and most of them probably portrayed half-nude women.

Local Jewish Holy Services Will Be Today

Jews in Monroe and throughout the world are observing Yom Kippur today. Described as the holiest day of the year, the Day of Atonement started at sundown Friday and will last until sundown today.

All three branches of Judaism — Orthodox, Conservative and Reform — honor the day marking the end of the 10-day High Holy Day period, which started with Rosh Ha-Shana.

Services will be held at 10:30 a.m. and continue through today at Temple B'Nia Israel, 2400 Orell Place in Monroe, presided over by Rabbi Martin I. Silverman. In the evening service the chanting of "Kol Nidre" (meaning "all vows") will be included. Worship will be concluded with the sounding of the Shofar or ram's horn.

WASHINGTON (AP) — How a fast-talking lobbyist for the Somoza regime in Nicaragua backed both Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon for president in 1960 was unfolded by Senate investigators Friday.

The details came out in the transcript of secret testimony taken last March in a Senate investigation of lobbyists.

Washington public relations man I. Irving Davidson conceded that he worked at the Los Angeles Democratic convention for the nomination of Johnson and then moved on to Chicago to work for the Republicans and pick up $400 in hotel bills for Nixon workers.

Davidson, registered foreign agent for the Nicaraguan government and other foreign interests, acknowledged that, before the conventions, he had written President Luis A. Somoza, "You can be sure that if it is not Johnson it will be Nixon, and we will be the winner."

"I thought I had it locked, either Johnson or Nixon," Davidson told a Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigation into efforts of foreign lobbyists to influence U.S. policy. "I was real wrong."

The 175-page transcript of secret testimony by Davidson at a closed session last March 8, also disclosed:

1. That he worked through former U.S. Ambassador Thomas Whelan, Allen Oakley Hunter, one-time California congressman, then general counsel for the Housing and Home Finance Agency, and Dan R. Hamady, chief of international housing, to win a $350,000 U.S. grant for a self-help pilot housing project for Somoza.

2. That even with the help of Whelan and Hunter, who solicited the help of Nixon and Gen. Wilton B. Persons, former White House assistant to President Dwight D. Eisenhower, he failed to win an official invitation for Somoza to visit the United States.

3. He used Somoza money to buy five tickets to a $100-a-plate "Salute to Eisenhower" dinner in 1956 as "a form of political gratuity for the Republican party."

4. Signed a hotel check in Los Angeles which included accounts of columnist Drew Pearson and his associate, Jack Anderson. Anderson advised the committee Pearson had reimbursed Davidson for the rooms which they were offered because other quarters were poorly located.

The committee explored the housing project in depth, beginning with the time Hunter and Hamady visited Nicaragua in 1957 as guests of the Somoza Government and Whelan's help was solicited.

The housing project was approved in 1959, Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairmn said, only after Whelan convinced foreign aid officials he, and before him, Hunter and Hamady "had made a commitment to President Somoza on this grant."

Fulbright produced a State Department letter describing the project as "highly undesirable."

Hunter received three checks from Davidson, the record disclosed, one for $500, another for $1,000 and a third for $1,500, but Davidson swore they had nothing to do with the housing grant.

Davidson testified that he gave Hunter one check for $500 in July, 1958, to reimburse him for expenses incurred in a trip from Fresno, Calif., to Washington when he talked with Nixon and Persons to press for an invitation to Somoza to visit the United States.

He said he had to "force" Hunter to take the money.

Later, in a letter to the committee, Davidson revised his testimony. He said the $500 check was to reimburse Hunter for expenses he incurred regarding a baleguard —cotton wrapping — project for Nicaragua.

A second check, for $1,000, in February 1959, he said, covered Hunter's time, expenses and effort on the same baleguard project plus time spent on studying means to finance and develop a private housing project in Nicaragua.

There was a third check, for $1,500, in 1960 but Davidson said he gave it to Hunter on behalf of Allegheny Contracting Industries of Pittsburgh, where Davidson also maintains a home, for whom Hunter made a housing study. Davidson said he was reimbursed by Allegheny.

Davidson's affinity for both the Democratic and Republican parties was disclosed in a letter he wrote Somoza July 7, 1960, saying he was taking off for Los Angeles "where I will be in the active camp of Lyndon Johnson."

This letter said Davidson would make available to the Democratic nominee campaign money, delegates, hospitality and votes which he also "will make available to the Republican nominee in Chicago at the end of this month."

He said he would make available 9,000 locals throughout the country and "12,000 militant workers."

By that, he said under questioning, he meant the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

"I do have a promise from the L.B.J. Policy Board that we will be given refusal for representatives (ambassadorial, military, etal); but more important, there will be a general house cleaning of the policymakers of the State Department for Central America,' Davidson assured Somoza.

Artist Depicts JFK As Skinless Sitting In Chair

NEW YORK (UPI) — An oil painting of what was purported to be an anatomical portrayal of President Kennedy seated in a rocking chair was on display Friday at a Madison Ave. art gallery.

The artist, Texas - born Rex Clawson, 30, said no disrespect was intended in his ultra-modern but representational painting of the Chief Executive. He said he was inspired by Kennedy because "he has been the first healthy looking, virile man in the White House during my lifetime."

Clawson, who has never seen the President in person, painted what could be taken as a likeness of the President's face and hair but portrayed the body as though some of the skin had been stripped away, revealing muscles, tendons and organs. He made the leg muscles unnaturally massive "as a symbol of the President's belief in 50-mile hikes."

The Royal-Athena Gallery, situated a few blocks from the Hotel Carlyle, where Kennedy stays in New York, entitled the black, white, brown, and magenta oil "Nude in a Rocking Chair." But the word that the nude represented the President got around art's main stem this morning, attracting a large crowd of curious.

Jordan issued the following statement:

"I am a candidate for Police Juror of Ward five, Ouachita Parish, La. in the Dec. 7, 1963 Democratic Primary.

"I think many people can remember me taking interest in previous elections. Since before I was old enough to vote I have been interested in trying to see that our elected officials gave us the kind of representation that we were entitled. In trying to bring this about once I was a candidate for Ouachita Parish, State Representative and once a candidate for Ward five, Ouachita Parish, Police Juror. Each time I have been a candidate for any office I felt as I now feel that if given the opportunity to represent the people that no man would try harder than I to do a good job.

"I am 46-years-old and have been married to Vera K. Fordham for 29 years. We have four children, three boys, Dwain, Travis and Bob, a daughter, Sylvia. Bob and Sylvia are at home with us at 706½ So. 6th, West Monroe, La. Dwain is a representative of U. S. Tobbaco Co. while Travis is with the U. S. Air Force in Denver, Colo.

"I am deeply interested in the job I now seek as Police Juror of Ward 5, Ouachita Parish and if elected will put forth every effort I can to serve the people well enough that they will reelect me.

"There are four Police Jurors to be elected in Ward 5, Ouachita Parish, Dec. 7, 1963 Democratic Primary and I trust that the voters will consider me as one of their choice and no man will try harder than I to make them a good Police Juror."

Doctor Warns Of Sex Attitude For Teenagers

HARROGATE, England (UPI) —A consultant psychiatrist said Friday society must modify its attitude toward premarital sexual intercourse or permit and prepare teenagers for much earlier marriage.

"Most of what people write about teenagers and plan for them is way off the point," said Dr. Richard Fox. "In fact, our whole social pattern—in sex and everything else — is strait-jacketed by the conventions of the past."

Fox told a Royal Institute of Public Health and Hygiene Conference, "If people think they want to get married but society is postponing it for one reason or another, then good luck to them."

"There is much to be said for the free and easy pre-marital customs of some primitive peoples," he said.

"The problem is that nature presents 11-14 year olds with the capacity to become parents and society forbids it for the next 10 years or so."

Fox said also he was not surprised at the increase in sexual promiscuity when he read that the average American saw 1,510 advertisements each day and most of them probably portrayed half-nude women.

Local Jewish Holy Services Will Be Today

Jews in Monroe and throughout the world are observing Yom Kippur today. Described as the holiest day of the year, the Day of Atonement started at sundown Friday and will last until sundown today.

All three branches of Judaism — Orthodox, Conservative and Reform — honor the day marking the end of the 10-day High Holy Day period, which started with Rosh Ha-Shana.

Services will be held at 10:30 a.m. and continue through today at Temple B'Nia Israel, 2400 Orell Place in Monroe, presided over by Rabbi Martin I. Silverman. In the evening service the chanting of "Kol Nidre" (meaning "all vows") will be included. Worship will be concluded with the sounding of the Shofar or ram's horn.

WASHINGTON (AP) — How a fast-talking lobbyist for the Somoza regime in Nicaragua backed both Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon for president in 1960 was unfolded by Senate investigators Friday.

The details came out in the transcript of secret testimony taken last March in a Senate investigation of lobbyists.

Washington public relations man I. Irving Davidson conceded that he worked at the Los Angeles Democratic convention for the nomination of Johnson and then moved on to Chicago to work for the Republicans and pick up $400 in hotel bills for Nixon workers.

Davidson, registered foreign agent for the Nicaraguan government and other foreign interests, acknowledged that, before the conventions, he had written President Luis A. Somoza, "You can be sure that if it is not Johnson it will be Nixon, and we will be the winner."

"I thought I had it locked, either Johnson or Nixon," Davidson told a Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigation into efforts of foreign lobbyists to influence U.S. policy. "I was real wrong."

The 175-page transcript of secret testimony by Davidson at a closed session last March 8, also disclosed:

1. That he worked through former U.S. Ambassador Thomas Whelan, Allen Oakley Hunter, one-time California congressman, then general counsel for the Housing and Home Finance Agency, and Dan R. Hamady, chief of international housing, to win a $350,000 U.S. grant for a self-help pilot housing project for Somoza.

2. That even with the help of Whelan and Hunter, who solicited the help of Nixon and Gen. Wilton B. Persons, former White House assistant to President Dwight D. Eisenhower, he failed to win an official invitation for Somoza to visit the United States.

3. He used Somoza money to buy five tickets to a $100-a-plate "Salute to Eisenhower" dinner in 1956 as "a form of political gratuity for the Republican party."

4. Signed a hotel check in Los Angeles which included accounts of columnist Drew Pearson and his associate, Jack Anderson. Anderson advised the committee Pearson had reimbursed Davidson for the rooms which they were offered because other quarters were poorly located.

The committee explored the housing project in depth, beginning with the time Hunter and Hamady visited Nicaragua in 1957 as guests of the Somoza Government and Whelan's help was solicited.

The housing project was approved in 1959. Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairmn said, only after Whelan convinced foreign aid officials he, and before him, Hunter and Hamady "had made a commitment to President Somoza on this grant."

Hunter received three checks from Davidson, the record disclosed, one for $500, another for $1,000 and a third for $1,500, but Davidson swore they had nothing to do with the housing grant.

Davidson testified that he gave Hunter one check for $500 in July, 1958, to reimburse him for expenses incurred in a trip from Fresno, Calif., to Washington when he talked with Nixon and Persons to press for an invitation to Somoza to visit the United States.

He said he had to "force" Hunter to take the money.

Later, in a letter to the committee, Davidson revised his testimony. He said the $500 check was to reimburse Hunter for expenses he incurred regarding a baleguard —cotton wrapping — project for Nicaragua.

A second check, for $1,000, in February 1959, he said, covered Hunter's time, expenses and effort on the same baleguard project plus time spent on studying means to finance and develop a private housing project in Nicaragua.

There was a third check, for $1,500, in 1960 but Davidson said he gave it to Hunter on behalf of Allegheny Contracting Industries of Pittsburgh, where Davidson also maintains a home, for whom Hunter made a housing study. Davidson said he was reimbursed by Allegheny.

Davidson's affinity for both the Democratic and Republican parties was disclosed in a letter he wrote Somoza July 7, 1960, saying he was taking off for Los Angeles "where I will be in the active camp of Lyndon Johnson."

"I do have a promise from the L.B.J. Policy Board that we will be given refusal for representatives (ambassadorial , military, et al); but more important, there will be a general house cleaning of the policymakers of the State Department for Central America,' ' Davidson assured Somoza.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International

John Hay routed President Lincoln out of bed the night of Sept. 23, 1863.

The President was staying in a cottage at Soldiers' Home, which stood on a wooded hill about three miles beyond the northern boundary of the Washington of that day.

Hay, one of the presidential secretaries, rode out to the cottage "through a splendid moonlight," he wrote in his diary, "and found the Tycoon (his name for Lincoln) abed."

The younger of the presidential secretaries, now just 25 years old, Hay was carrying bad news for his chief. He had dropped into the War Department after dinner and found Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton deciphering a dispatch from Charles A. Dana, assistant secretary of war, who was in Chattanooga, Tenn., with the defeated army of Maj. Gen. William S. Rosecrans.

The Federal army, under siege by the Confederate Army of Tennessee after the battle of Chickamauga, could hold out only 15 or 20 days, Dana's dispatch said. Reinforcements of 20,000 men were needed if the Federal Army of the Cumberland was to be saved and the city held.

It was 9:45 p.m. Stanton asked Hay to bring Lincoln to the War Department for a meeting that night.

"I delivered my message to him as he robed himself and he was considerably disturbed," Hay wrote. "I assured him as far as I could that it meant nothing serious, but he tought otherwise, as it was the first time Stanton had ever sent for him."

In addition to Lincoln, Stanton summonded Gen.-In-Chief Henry W. Halleck, Secretary of State William H. Seward, Secretary of Treasury Salmon P. Chase, Assistant Secretary of War Peter H. Watson, Maj. James A. Hardie, an assistant adjutant general, and Col. Daniel C. McCallum, director of military transportation.

By midnight all had assembled and Stanton unveiled a plan to save Chattanooga and Rosecrans' army.

"I propose to send 30,000 men from the Army of the Potomac," he said. "There is no reason to expect General (George G.) Meade will attack Lee, although greatly superior in force; and his great numbers where they are, are useless. In five days 30,000 could be put with Rosecrans."

Lincoln offered to bet that if the order was given that night "the troops could not be got to Washington in five days."

Stanton was not inclined to bet but said if 30,000 could not be sent let 20,000 go.

The discussion continued for a time with Halleck in doubt whether even reinforcements from the West could get to Chattanooga in time. He and Lincoln felt that Meade should not be weakened. Seward, Chase and McCallum sided with Stanton.

Finally Stanton's plan won approval and the meeting broke up after it was decided to send the XI and the XII Corps and that Maj. Gen. Joseph Hooker would command them. Hooker was "awaiting orders" after being relieved in June from command of the Army of the Potomac.

"Finished the evening with a supper by Stanton, which few ate," Hay wrote.

But the night was not finished for Stanton.

He began to send orders. He promised Dana 15,000 infantry would arrive in five or six days. By 2:30 a.m. Meade was ordered to prepare the two corps and have them ready to start in 24 hours.

He ordered all the heads of railroads involved to "come to Washington as quickly as you can."

The troops were to entrain at Culpeper, Va., for Washington. They were to go from the capital to the Ohio River by the Baltimore & Ohio, from there to Indianapolis via Columbus, then to Louisville and on to Nashville by the Louisville & Nashville.

Trains full of troops were rolling through Washington in less than 48 hours after the midnight meeting.

The railroads were of different gages and that meant changing trains at several places along the route.

At one point in Kentucky 8,000 workers were impressed to change the gage of a section of a railroad.

Cooked rations the troops carried ran out in Indianapolis. Six hours were lost there feeding the men a hot meal.

But by 10:30 the night of Sept. 30 the first troops arrived in Bridgeport, Ala., about 25 miles across the mountains from Chattanooga.

Just seven days had elapsed since Stanton touched off the operation.

Three days later 20,000 men, 10 batteries of artillery with horses and ammunition and 100 cars of baggage had reached Bridgeport.

It was an unprecedented feat of moving troops by rail. Stanton was proud of his work.

He telegraphed Thomas A. Scott, former assistant secretary of war and now a Pennsylvania Railroad official who had handled the western end of the project:

"Your work is most brilliant. A thousand thanks. It is a great achievement."

Stanton was not a man to confer congratulations lightly.

The war secretary followed up by sending Quartermaster General Montgomery Meigs to Chattanooga to work on the supply situation with "the fullest power and more money and means of war at my command . . . than any other man since Napoleon." Meigs wrote.

Hooker was not especially pleased with his appointment to head the two crops under the command of Rosecrans. He felt the command was not in keeping with his standing as former chief of the Army of the Potomac but he accepted and left Washington on Sept. 28. Hay went with him the night before when Hooker said goodby to Lincoln. Hay recorded that Hooker did not "especially approve of the campaign down there. He thinks we might force them to fight at disadvantage, instead of allowing to continually choose the battleground. Does not think much can be done by lengthening Rosecrans' lines indefinitely into Georgia."

Hay had stumbled into the midnight conference at the War Department because he had found in a Confederate newspaper word that Mrs. Lincoln's brother-in-law, Ben Hardin Helm, had been killed at Chickamauga. He took the newspaper to the War Department to send it by courier to Lincoln at Soldiers' home and there found Stanton reading Chattanooga dispatches.

Mrs. Lincoln was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York and Lincoln telegraphed the news to her.

Helm was married to Mrs. Lincoln's half-sister, Emily, and was a favorite of Lincoln. Helm had visited the White House early in 1861 when Lincoln offered him a commission as a paymaster. Helm turned it down and organized a Confederate calvary regiment in Kentucky. He was a brigadier general when he was killed.

Lincoln wrote a pass for Mrs. Lincoln's stepmother to cross the battlelines and bring back Mrs. Helm to Kentucky.

While the name of Abner Doubleday, West Point 1845, is familiar to millions as a creator of a game called baseball, few people know that he was also one of the officers in command of troops at Fort Sumter where the first shots of the Civil War were fired.

The first military air operation in this country took place as far back as the Civil War. According to Encyclopedia International, Union troops used balloons to spot Confederate movements.

JFK Insists On Stronger Conservation

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — President Kennedy insisted again Friday on a much stronger conservation program—and gave his reactions to a whirlwind nature tour of the West.

"I am impressed by nature, and more impressed by man," he said. After looking over some of the loveliest spots on earth and with Mt. Rainier towering in the background, Kennedy told more than 20,000 in Cheney Stadium: "All I have seen was given by nature, but man has done something about it."

Nature has one tremendous drawback to a politician—it can't vote.

While in Tacoma, Kennedy announced the Defense Department will reactivate facilities at Tongue Point, Ore., and then went over by helicopter to tell the voters there about it.

Oregonians have protested these facilities should be used. It will save money, Kennedy said in agreeing with them, and give the local economy a boost.

Kennedy seemed unusually relaxed and gay Friday and concluded with the reminder that conservation can provide a lot of fun.

In a statement released here it said: "Recreation is not a luxury in modern life—it is a necessity."

Kennedy kept plugging away that unless conservation be worked at constantly future generations will be badly short-changed.

But it was a light day on his schedule, the first breather on his week-long trip through the West. There was a lot of sightseeing—he was spending the night at Lassen Volcanic National Park—and his Tacoma talk was the only major one scheduled for the day.

Possibly the whole point of the conservation part of his Western trip was best summed up in this sentence: "We need beaches; we need unspoiled wilderness; we need open space in and around our cities; we need water for fishing and boating; we need forest trails and campsites; we need wild life preserves."

On the political side, President Kennedy was reported as being extremely well-pleased with his reception in Salt Lake City.

Utah Democratic leaders said Friday that while Kennedy's attack on the far right might not change many votes, it would pep up the party in a state where Republicans are usually given the edge.

Richard M. Nixon, the GOP presidential candidate in 1960, beat Kennedy in Utah by the comfortable margin of 205,361 votes to 169,248.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, up for re-election in 1964, is in for a hard fight, and Kennedy went far out of his way—much farther than usual in these cases—to plug him at every chance.

Possibly the Salt Lake City reception — the crowds were large and enthusiastic — contributed to the President's mood.

He began his day with a private breakfast with Mr. and Mrs. David O. McKay. McKay is president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon.)

It was in a Salt Lake City airport speech, normally a routine thing, that Kennedy showed his best form of the trip.

He was supposed to push a key that would start a generator on a test run at the Flaming Gorge Dam, 150 miles away.

"I never know when we press this," Kennedy said, "whether we're going to blow up Massachusetts—or start the project."

Kennedy was assured he would be told if the generator responded properly to presidential prodding.

"And if we don't hear from it," he said, "it's back to the drawing boards."

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International

John Hay routed President Lincoln out of bed the night of Sept. 23, 1863.

The President was staying in a cottage at Soldiers' Home, which stood on a wooded hill about three miles beyond the northern boundary of the Washington of that day.

Hay, one of the presidential secretaries, rode out to the cottage "through a splendid moonlight," he wrote in his diary, "and found the Tycoon (his name for Lincoln) abed."

The younger of the presidential secretaries, now just 25 years old, Hay was carrying bad news for his chief. He had dropped into the War Department after dinner and found Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton deciphering a dispatch from Charles A. Dana, assistant secretary of war, who was in Chattanooga, Tenn., with the defeated army of Maj. Gen. William S. Rosecrans.

The Federal army, under siege by the Confederate Army of Tennessee after the battle of Chickamauga, could hold out only 15 or 20 days, Dana's dispatch said. Reinforcements of 20,000 men were needed if the Federal Army of the Cumberland was to be saved and the city held.

It was 9:45 p.m. Stanton asked Hay to bring Lincoln to the War Department for a meeting that night.

"I delivered my message to him as he robed himself and he was considerably disturbed," Hay wrote. "I assured him as far as I could that it meant nothing serious, but he tought otherwise, as it was the first time Stanton had ever sent for him."

In addition to Lincoln, Stanton summonded Gen.-In-Chief Henry W. Halleck, Secretary of State William H. Seward, Secretary of Treasury Salmon P. Chase, Assistant Secretary of War Peter H. Watson, Maj. James A. Hardie, an assistant adjutant general, and Col. Daniel C. McCallum, director of military transportation.

By midnight all had assembled and Stanton unveiled a plan to save Chattanooga and Rosecrans' army.

"I propose to send 30,000 men from the Army of the Potomac," he said. "There is no reason to expect General (George G.) Meade will attack Lee, although greatly superior in force; and his great numbers where they are, are useless. In five days 30,000 could be put with Rosecrans."

Lincoln offered to bet that if the order was given that night "the troops could not be got to Washington in five days."

Stanton was not inclined to bet but said if 30,000 could not be sent let 20,000 go.

The discussion continued for a time with Halleck in doubt whether even reinforcements from the West could get to Chattanooga in time. He and Lincoln felt that Meade should not be weakened. Seward, Chase and McCallum sided with Stanton.

Finally Stanton's plan won approval and the meeting broke up after it was decided to send the XI and the XII Corps and that Maj. Gen. Joseph Hooker would command them. Hooker was "awaiting orders" after being relieved in June from command of the Army of the Potomac.

"Finished the evening with a supper by Stanton, which few ate," Hay wrote.

But the night was not finished for Stanton.

He began to send orders. He promised Dana 15,000 infantry would arrive in five or six days. By 2:30 a.m. Meade was ordered to prepare the two corps and have them ready to start in 24 hours.

He ordered all the heads of railroads involved to "come to Washington as quickly as you can."

The troops were to entrain at Culpeper, Va., for Washington. They were to go from the capital to the Ohio River by the Baltimore & Ohio, from there to Indianapolis via Columbus, then to Louisville and on to Nashville by the Louisville & Nashville.

Trains full of troops were rolling through Washington in less than 48 hours after the midnight meeting.

The railroads were of different gages and that meant changing trains at several places along the route.

At one point in Kentucky 8,000 workers were impressed to change the gage of a section of a railroad.

Cooked rations the troops carried ran out in Indianapolis. Six hours were lost there feeding the men a hot meal.

But by 10:30 the night of Sept. 30 the first troops arrived in Bridgeport, Ala., about 25 miles across the mountains from Chattanooga.

Just seven days had elapsed since Stanton touched off the operation.

Three days later 20,000 men, 10 batteries of artillery with horses and ammunition and 100 cars of baggage had reached Bridgeport.

It was an unprecedented feat of moving troops by rail. Stanton was proud of his work.

He telegraphed Thomas A. Scott, former assistant secretary of war and now a Pennsylvania Railroad official who had handled the western end of the project:

"Your work is most brilliant. A thousand thanks. It is a great achievement."

Stanton was not a man to confer congratulations lightly.

The war secretary followed up by sending Quartermaster General Montgomery Meigs to Chattanooga to work on the supply situation with "the fullest power and more money and means of war at my command . . . than any other man since Napoleon." Meigs wrote.

Hooker was not especially pleased with his appointment to head the two crops under the command of Rosecrans. He felt the command was not in keeping with his standing as former chief of the Army of the Potomac but he accepted and left Washington on Sept. 28. Hay went with him the night before when Hooker said goodby to Lincoln. Hay recorded that Hooker did not "especially approve of the campaign down there. He thinks we might force them to fight at disadvantage, instead of allowing to continually choose the battleground. Does not think much can be done by lengthening Rosecrans' lines indefinitely into Georgia."

Hay had stumbled into the midnight conference at the War Department because he had found in a Confederate newspaper word that Mrs. Lincoln's brother-in-law, Ben Hardin Helm, had been killed at Chickamauga. He took the newspaper to the War Department to send it by courier to Lincoln at Soldiers' home and there found Stanton reading Chattanooga dispatches.

Mrs. Lincoln was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York and Lincoln telegraphed the news to her.

Helm was married to Mrs. Lincoln's half-sister, Emily, and was a favorite of Lincoln. Helm had visited the White House early in 1861 when Lincoln offered him a commission as a paymaster. Helm turned it down and organized a Confederate calvary regiment in Kentucky. He was a brigadier general when he was killed.

Lincoln wrote a pass for Mrs. Lincoln's stepmother to cross the battlelines and bring back Mrs. Helm to Kentucky.

While the name of Abner Doubleday, West Point 1845, is familiar to millions as a creator of a game called baseball, few people know that he was also one of the officers in command of troops at Fort Sumter where the first shots of the Civil War were fired.

The first military air operation in this country took place as far back as the Civil War. According to Encyclopedia International, Union troops used balloons to spot Confederate movements.

JFK Insists On Stronger Conservation

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — President Kennedy insisted again Friday on a much stronger conservation program—and gave his reactions to a whirlwind nature tour of the West.

"I am impressed by nature, and more impressed by man," he said. After looking over some of the loveliest spots on earth and with Mt. Rainier towering in the background, Kennedy told more than 20,000 in Cheney Stadium: "All I have seen was given by nature, but man has done something about it."

Nature has one tremendous drawback to a politician—it can't vote.

While in Tacoma, Kennedy announced the Defense Department will reactivate facilities at Tongue Point, Ore., and then went over by helicopter to tell the voters there about it.

Oregonians have protested these facilities should be used. It will save money, Kennedy said in agreeing with them, and give the local economy a boost.

Runaway Youths Planning To Wed

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Two romantic teen-agers, who ran away from their wealthy Philadelphia homes because they are in love, will be married Saturday.

The marriage will unite Mary Lee Davis, 15, niece of Princess Grace of Monaco, and John Paul Jones Jr., 19, who have been living in a small apartment here as man and wife for nearly a month.

The private ceremony will take place in the chapel of the Protestant Episcopal bishop of Iowa with the Rev. P. M. Casady of St. Paul's Episcopal church officiating.

Jones is an Episcopalian, Miss Davis a Catholic.

The young couple was found in Des Moines earlier this week after Miss Davis' picture was published in a newspaper here. The two, who met about a year ago while attending exclusive Eastern schools, had been missing a month.

Jones' father, an architect, said Friday the young people "want very much to have a church wedding."

He and Miss Davis' stepfather, Eugene Conlan of Philadelphia, earlier had given their blessings to the marriage. However, court permission also was needed because Mary Lee is under 16.

Miss Davis' father, George L. Davis, who was divorced from her mother in 1959, and Mr. and Mrs. Jones were here for the wedding.

Davis and Mrs. Jones arrived by plane Friday and were embraced warmly at the airport by the young couple. Mary Lee appeared near tears as she held her father, who said his daughter had urged him to come.

However, her mother, the sister of Princess Grace, and an older sister Meg, 17, said they would not attend.

"I am in complete accord with the marriage," Davis said. "I don't know the boy very well, but if he is as nice as his father, he is all right."

Young Jones has worked as an encyclopedia salesman since coming to Des Moines. Mary Lee worked as a hotel coffee shop waitress, earning 22.50 a week, plus tips.

They have been living in a three-room apartment, renting for $85 a month.

The elder Jones said, "Education is still a problem that must be faced by my son, but right now he plans to pursue his job here and he hopes to make good in it.

"As soon as practical he will have to do something about getting a college degree and he realizes this.

"Right now they just want to become average citizens in Des Moines. They love this town and want to stay here. Des Moines has been awfully good to all of us."

Young Jones said Mary Lee will not go back to her job as a waitress after they are married.

Thant Submits Budget To Keep U.N. In Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Secretary General Thant Friday submitted an estimate of $19.2 million to maintain a United Nations force of 5,350 men in the Congo for six months beyond the scheduled end of the operation on Dec. 31.

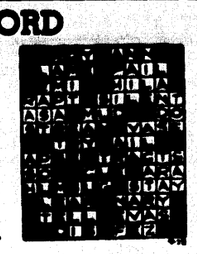

The Congolese government requested that a U. N. force be retained in the country to maintain order and train the national forces. The request was supported by the United States, Britain and other Western powers.

That originally suggested 6,000 men for the force, whose peak strength last year was about 20,000. The United States and the Congo suggested 3,000.

Agreement on the compromise figure was reached last week and Thant submitted his cost estimate in a report to the General Assembly today.

He said the Leopoldville government had advised him that it was willing to pay up to $3.2 million of the force costs, beginning in 1964.

OF WEALTHY FAMILY

Runaway Youths Planning To Wed

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Two romantic teen-agers, who ran away from their wealthy Philadelphia homes because they are in love, will be married Saturday.

The marriage will unite Mary Lee Davis, 15, niece of Princess Grace of Monaco, and John Paul Jones Jr., 19, who have been living in a small apartment here as man and wife for nearly a month.

The private ceremony will take place in the chapel of the Protestant Episcopal bishop of Iowa with the Rev. P. M. Casady of St. Paul's Episcopal church officiating.

Jones is an Episcopalian, Miss Davis a Catholic.

The young couple was found in Des Moines earlier this week after Miss Davis' picture was published in a newspaper here. The two, who met about a year ago while attending exclusive Eastern schools, had been missing a month.

Jones' father, an architect, said Friday the young people "want very much to have a church wedding."

He and Miss Davis' stepfather, Eugene Conlan of Philadelphia, earlier had given their blessings to the marriage. However, court permission also was needed because Mary Lee is under 16.

Miss Davis' father, George L. Davis, who was divorced from her mother in 1959, and Mr. and Mrs. Jones were here for the wedding.

Davis and Mrs. Jones arrived by plane Friday and were embraced warmly at the airport by the young couple. Mary Lee appeared near tears as she held her father, who said his daughter had urged him to come.

However, her mother, the sister of Princess Grace, and an older sister Meg, 17, said they would not attend.

"I am in complete accord with the marriage," Davis said. "I don't know the boy very well, but if he is as nice as his father, he is all right."

Young Jones has worked as an encyclopedia salesman since coming to Des Moines. Mary Lee worked as a hotel coffee shop waitress, earning 22.50 a week, plus tips.

They have been living in a three-room apartment, renting for $85 a month.

The elder Jones said, "Education is still a problem that must be faced by my son, but right now he plans to pursue his job here and he hopes to make good in it.

"As soon as practical he will have to do something about getting a college degree and he realizes this.

"Right now they just want to become average citizens in Des Moines. They love this town and want to stay here. Des Moines has been awfully good to all of us."

Young Jones said Mary Lee will not go back to her job as a waitress after they are married.

Thant Submits Budget To Keep U.N. In Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Secretary General Thant Friday submitted an estimate of $19.2 million to maintain a United Nations force of 5,350 men in the Congo for six months beyond the scheduled end of the operation on Dec. 31.

The Congolese government requested that a U. N. force be retained in the country to maintain order and train the national forces. The request was supported by the United States, Britain and other Western powers.

That originally suggested 6,000 men for the force, whose peak strength last year was about 20,000. The United States and the Congo suggested 3,000.

Agreement on the compromise figure was reached last week and Thant submitted his cost estimate in a report to the General Assembly today.

He said the Leopoldville government had advised him that it was willing to pay up to $3.2 million of the force costs, beginning in 1964.

before he turned to a career in the rackets.

In 1961, Valachi was indicted—along with 23 other men—on another narcotics charge. Among the others was Vito Agueci, the man Valachi blames for his gangland downfall.

This time, Valachi got a 20-year sentence. Agueci, convicted too, went back to Atlanta on the same bus.

And waiting there was Vito Genovese, the boss of Valachi's "family" in Cosa Nostra.

Once, Valachi testified, Cosa Nostra was run by a "boss of all bosses." But now, he said, a commission heads the crime syndicate.

But Genovese has a string of three "families," with 450 or 500 men taking orders from him, Valachi said.

"In other words, they eliminate the boss of all bosses and Vito Genovese is the boss of all bosses under the table, ya see what I mean?" said Valachi.

"What power does Genovese have of life and death and punishment over the members of the family?" asked Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

"Whatever he says goes," said Valachi. "If he wants to get rid of somebody he's got ways to legalize it—legalize it among ourselves."

"In other words he has the power of life and death?"

"That's for sure."

In a sometimes raspy voice marked by the idiom of the underworld, the accents of the New York streets, and occasional phrases in Italian, Valachi testified of prison associates that included John Dioguardi—Johnny Dio, Joe DiPalermo—Joe Beck, and "Trigger Mike" Coppola.

He said they were assigned to kill him after Agueci labeled him an informer in the narcotics case.

Valachi said Agueci was a member of Cosa Nostra in Toronto, Canada. He belongs to the Buffalo, N.Y., "family," Valachi testified. "Buffalo and Canada is all one."

Back at the federal prison, Valachi said, Agueci asked to talk to Genovese

Valachi said Genovese—one of his cellmates at the prison—wasn't interested.

But somehow, he said, Agueci spread talk that Valachi was an informer.

Valachi—who almost always calls Genovese by his full name—told this story: "I don't know the exact day it happened, when the lights went out and Vito Genovese says he wants to talk, he says Ralph can talk, too, Ralph Wagner, another inmate who is not a friend of ours."

That means, said Valachi, that Wagner was not a member of Cosa Nostra.

"So he started to talk, and he says it's a good thing that he's a very good judge, so when somebody tells him a story he knows if it's true."

Valachi said Genovese started talking about apples that are "touched, not all rotten but touched."

Finally, Genovese said good night.

"He grabbed my hand and he gave me a kiss, so I give him a kiss on the other side."

"Is that some kind of ritual?" asked McClellan.

"No, this was a suspicious kiss. And Ralph mumbles under his breath, 'Hmm, the kiss of death . . .'

"An outsider like Ralph, he even was wise, so ain't I supposed to be smart?"

McClellan: "Did you at the time accept and regard that as a kiss of death?"

Valachi: "Yeah, the kid even got it."

McClellan: "When you kissed him, is that a custom?"

Valachi: "That's to let him know I'm wise to him.

"At this time I was losing respect for him. I always had the highest respect for him, I even stutter sometimes when I talk to him, that's how much I thought of him, I must tel the truth. He stood up for me when I got married in 1932."

McClellan: "After you got the kiss of death what happened?"

Valachi: "The next day I went for a shower and I met a friend and he says to me, 'Geez, that greaseball.' Vito Agueci, he didn't have to call him by name. I knew who he meant, he told me that greaseball ruined me. I knew now what the barrel of apples and everything meant."

A greaseball, Valachi said, is a native-born Italian. Valachi was born in New York to Italian immigrants.

"That confirmed what you'd been suspicious of?" asked McClellan.

The next day, Valachi said, Agueci "calls me some names in Italian. I pretended I didn't hear because I knew right away it was a setup."

"Did he convey the idea that you were a rat?" asked Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb.

"Well, that's the idea that he was trying to convey, senator."

Valachi said he didn't make a move toward Agueci because, "I go after him, they'll stick a knife in my back, nobody will get arrested."

"In other words you regarded it as a setup for your murder," said McClellan.

"Yes, 100 per cent, senator, 100 per cent."

"They were accusing you of being an informer, and that, you knew, meant the death sentence?"

"Yes, sir. I was afraid of going anyplace there's a crowd after this."

Fearing for his life, Valachi said he asked to be put in "the hole" of solitary confinement. Guards asked him why.

"I says they want to kill me, is that reason enough for you?"

In fact, Valachi said, he told the guards it was a case of kill or be killed. He spent four days in solitary and came out reluctantly.

"I'm a dead duck after I went in that hole, senator. Just like if I go in a police station on the outside.

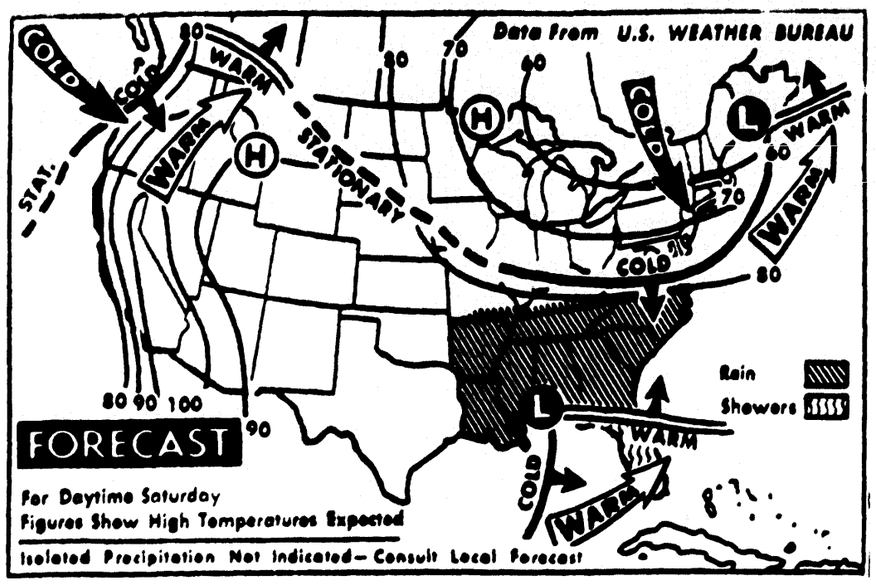

"After you do that is your life safe, even in prison?" asked McClellan.

"No sir. It was bad to come out of the hsj'

Later, Valachi said, Johnny Dio, who handed out clean clothes at the prison shower, suggested he take a shower.

"I never went, it was another setup."

Valachi cowered in his cell, fearing to go out even for meals. Then, on May 22, 1962, he went to the yard for a walk.

West Monroe Rule Change Is Opposed

Three West Monroe aldermen expressed opposition Friday to a proposed change in the city's form of government from mayor-alderman to commission. A fourth took no stand pending further study and the fifth had no comment.

The idea for the change, which would eliminate the aldermen in favor of a mayor and two full-time salaried commissioners, originated in the office of Mayor J. Allen Norris. He said several citizens had suggested a study of possibilities.

Expressing opposition were aldermen Charles Anding, Earl Duncan and A. L. DeLoach, while Mrs. Joyce T. Smith had no statement at the time and George Wylie said "no comment."

Main reason for opposition was given as an increase in the cost of government.

"I don't think that West Monroe has grown large enough at this time for a commission council form of government," said Anding. "If we had three full-time elected officials, it would cost the taxpayers about $12,000 more per year, over and above the cost of the council right now.

Duncan agreed it "would run the cost of government up quite a bit."

"The city is in no position to be paying anyone any more salaries than we are paying right now, without an increase in taxes," DeLoach said.

Anding, in his comments, offered a change in government he would back — division of the city into three wards and the election of an alderman from each, with two aldermen elected at large. In that way, he said, aldermen would be more familiar with ward problems

And to prove the efficiency of the local post office department, before 4 p.m. the Chamber office had already started receiving phone calls as the after-effects of 600 letters placed in the mail before noon.

Sylvester then declined to comment on indications on the war's progress given by U.S. advisers to McNamara in the highlands on the ground that, "IF I erred lst night, I correct it tonight."

However, he did say that McNamara found it "a moving sight to see mountain tribesmen voting for national assemblymen in the highlands.

Slogging through red mud at a Montagnard tribal village, McNamara saw dark-skinned jungle people filing in to cast ballots in a district race. Some of the women were bare-breasted. Many of the men wore only loincloths and shirts.

There were among seven million eligibles for the election of the new 123-member National Assembly for a four-year term. The voting had been postponed from Aug. 30, when South Viet Nam was under martial law stemming from the conflict between President Ngo Dinh Diem and his Buddhist and student opponents.

Forty-three candidates had no opposition. Among these were Ngo Dinh Nhu, the president's influential younger brother, who decided to take a hand in legislative as well as presidential palace affairs, and Mrs. Nhu, the official hostess, who was up for re-election.

Local Officers Clear Up Theft By 2 Juveniles

West Monroe police cleared a theft Friday with the arrest of two Negro juveniles while Monroe police continued to probe a house burglary that netted theives $32 Thursday night.

West Monroe Chief Johnny B. Mitchell said two Negro juveniles, ages 9 and 12, admitted stealing 24 pounds of pecans from Bayles Fur and Pecan Co. on Trenton Street Friday morning. The boys told officers they had sold the nuts before they were apprehended. Both have been released to juvenile authorities to await action by juvenile court.

The West Monroe department also booked a 25-year-old Monroe man, Johnny George, 101 Pear St., for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. He was arrested at 5 p.m on Cypress Street.

Monroe police continued their probe of a house burglary at 513 Pine St. in which $32 was taken from the billfold of J. T. Logan. Logan said the money was stolen from his wallet between midnight and daybreak Friday.

The Monroe department was also searching for an unidentified group of youths who snatched a woman's purse while she walked in the 1900 block of Adams Street around 8 p.m. Friday. The woman, Willie Mae Davis, 117 Magnolia, said the purse contained $1.25 in change, plus a $9 check and a $2.35 bank book.

Vengeful Valachi Begins Testimony

before he turned to a career in the rackets.

In 1961, Valachi was indicted—along with 23 other men — on another narcotics charge. Among the others was Vito Agueci, the man Valachi blames for his gangland downfall.

This time, Valachi got a 20-year sentence. Agueci, convicted too, went back to Atlanta on the same bus.

And waiting there was Vito Genovese, the boss of Valachi's "family" in Cosa Nostra.

Once, Valachi testified, Cosa Nostra was run by a "boss of all bosses." But now, he said, a commission heads the crime syndicate.

But Genovese has a string of three "families," with 450 or 500 men taking orders from him, Valachi said.

"In other words, they eliminate the boss of all bosses and Vito Genovese is the boss of all bosses under the table, ya see what I mean?" said Valachi.

"What power does Genovese have of life and death and punishment over the members of the family?" asked Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

"Whatever he says goes," said Valachi. "If he wants to get rid of somebody he's got ways to legalize it—legalize it among ourselves."

"In other words he has the power of life and death?"

"That's for sure."

In a sometimes raspy voice marked by the idiom of the underworld, the accents of the New York streets, and occasional phrases in Italian, Valachi testified of prison associates that included John Dioguardi — Johnny Dio, Joe DiPalermo—Joe Beck, and "Trigger Mike" Coppola.

He said they were assigned to kill him after Agueci labeled him an informer in the narcotics case.

Valachi said Agueci was a member of Cosa Nostra in Toronto, Canada. He belongs to the Buffalo, N.Y., "family," Valachi testified. "Buffalo and Canada is all one."

Back at the federal prison, Valachi said, Agueci asked to talk to Genovese.

Valachi said Genovese—one of his cellmates at the prison—wasn't interested.

But somehow, he said, Agueci spread talk that Valachi was an informer.

Valachi—who almost always calls Genovese by his full name—told this story: "I don't know the exact day it happened, when the lights went out and Vito Genovese says he wants to talk, he says Ralph can talk, too, Ralph Wagner, another inmate who is not a friend of ours."

That means, said Valachi, that Wagner was not a member of Cosa Nostra.

"So he started to talk, and he says it's a good thing that he's a very good judge, so when somebody tells him a story he knows if it's true."

Valachi said Genovese started talking about apples that are "touched, not all rotten but touched."

Finally, Genovese said good night.

"He grabbed my hand and he gave me a kiss, so I give him a kiss on the other side."

"Is that some kind of ritual?" asked McClellan.

"No, this was a suspicious kiss. And Ralph mumbles under his breath, 'Hmm, the kiss of death . . .'

"An outsider like Ralph, he even was wise, so ain't I supposed to be smart?"

McClellan: "Did you at the time accept and regard that as a kiss of death?"

Valachi: "Yeah, the kid even got it."

McClellan: "When you kissed him, is that a custom?"

Valachi: "That's to let him know I'm wise to him.

"At this time I was losing respect for him. I always had the highest respect for him. I even stutter sometimes when I talk to him, that's how much I thought of him. I must tel the truth. He stood up for me when I got married in 1932."

McClellan: "After you got the kiss of death what happened?"

Valachi: "The next day I went for a shower and I met a friend and he says to me, 'Geez, that greaseball.' Vito Agueci, he didn't have to call him by name. I knew who he meant, he told me that greaseball ruined me. I knew now what the barrel of apples and everything meant."

A greaseball, Valachi said, is a native-born Italian. Valachi was born in New York to Italian immigrants.

"That confirmed what you'd been suspicious of?" asked McClellan.

The next day, Valachi said, Agueci "calls me some names in Italian. I pretended I didn't hear because I knew right away it was a setup."

"Did he convey the idea that you were a rat?" asked Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb.

"Well, that's the idea that he was trying to convey, senator."

Valachi said he didn't make a move toward Agueci because, "I go after him, they'll stick a knife in my back, nobody will get arrested."

"In other words you regarded it as a setup for your murder," said McClellan.

"Yes, 100 per cent, senator, 100 per cent."

"They were accusing you of being an informer, and that, you knew, meant the death sentence?"

"Yes, sir. I was afraid of going anyplace there's a crowd after this."

Fearing for his life, Valachi said he asked to be put in "the hole" of solitary confinement. Guards asked him why.

"I says they want to kill me, is that reason enough for you?"

In fact, Valachi said, he told the guards it was a case of kill or be killed. He spent four days in solitary and came out reluctantly.

"I'm a dead duck after I went in that hole, senator. Just like if I go in a police station on the outside.

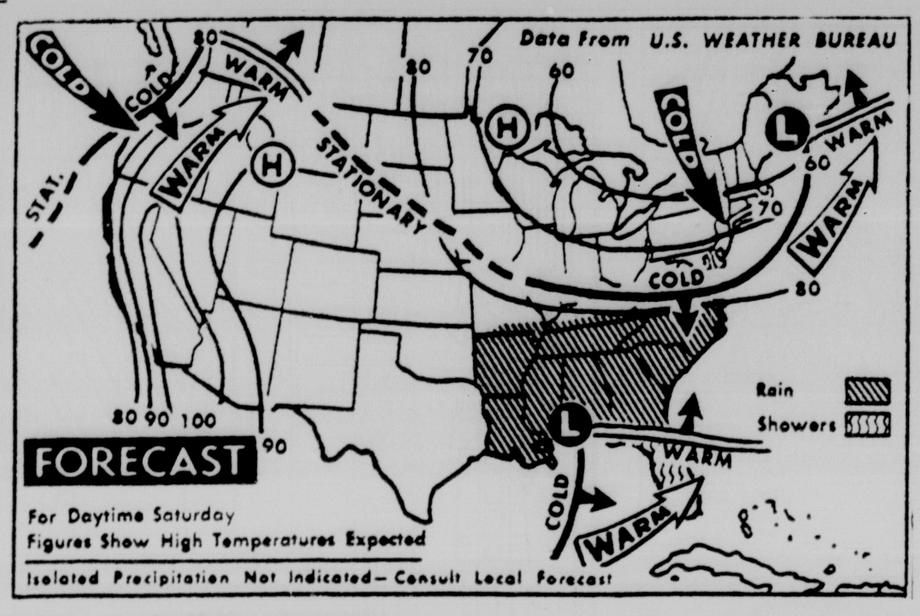

"After you do that is your life safe, even in prison?" asked McClellan.

"No sir. It was bad to come out of the hsj'

Later, Valachi said, Johnny Dio, who handed out clean clothes at the prison shower, suggested he take a shower.

"I never went, it was another setup."

Valachi cowered in his cell, fearing to go out even for meals. Then, on May 22, 1962, he went to the yard for a walk.

West Monroe Rule Change Is Opposed

Three West Monroe aldermen expressed opposition Friday to a proposed change in the city's form of government from mayor-alderman to commission. A fourth took no stand pending further study and the fifth had no comment.

The idea for the change, which would eliminate the aldermen in favor of a mayor and two full-time salaried commissioners, originated in the office of Mayor J. Allen Norris. He said several citizens had suggested a study of possibilities.

Expressing opposition were aldermen Charles Anding, Earl Duncan and A. L. DeLoach, while Mrs. Joyce T. Smith had no statement at the time and George Wylie said "no comment."

Main reason for opposition was given as an increase in the cost of government.

"I don't think that West Monroe has grown large enough at this time for a commission council form of government," said Anding. "If we had three full-time elected officials, it would cost the taxpayers about $12,000 more per year, over and above the cost of the council right now.

Duncan agreed it "would run the cost of government up quite a bit."

"The city is in no position to be paying anyone any more salaries than we are paying right now, without an increase in taxes," DeLoach said.

Anding, in his comments, offered a change in government he would back — division of the city into three wards and the election of an alderman from each, with two aldermen elected at large. In that way, he said, aldermen would be more familiar with ward problems.

"I am in no position to say what the findings are because we have to report to President Kennedy.

"In responding to questions at other briefings, I may have gone too far. I don't want to give the impression I'm running the show. Secretary McNamara has arrived at no point in his visit to make any deductions.

"I would not generalize on facts on this first or second day. It is too early to suggest any line one way or the other."

Sylvester then declined to comment on indications on the war's progress given by U.S. advisers to McNamara in the highlands on the ground that, "IF I erred lst night, I correct it tonight."

However, he did say that McNamara found it "a moving sight to see mountain tribesmen voting for national assemblymen in the highlands.

Slogging through red mud at a Montagnard tribal village, McNamara saw dark-skinned jungle people filing in to cast ballots in a district race. Some of the women were bare-breasted. Many of the men wore only loincloths and shirts.

There were among seven million eligibles for the election of the new 123-member National Assembly for a four-year term. The voting had been postponed from Aug. 30, when South Viet Nam was under martial law stemming from the conflict between President Ngo Dinh Diem and his Buddhist and student opponents.

Forty-three candidates had no opposition. Among these were Ngo Dinh Nhu, the president's influential younger brother, who decided to take a hand in legislative as well as presidential palace affairs, and Mrs. Nhu, the official hostess, who was up for re-election.

Byrd Holds Off Rebs For District Triumph

By GLYNN HUDSON
World Sports Writer

The Byrd Yellow Jackets rolled for three first half scores and cut short a West Monroe rally in the second half to take a hard earned 19-13 victory in the first 1-AAA district contest for either team at rain-swept Rebel Stadium Friday night.

A cheering crowd, estimated at 4,600, watched the once beaten Yellow Jackets roll for the first score of the night in ten plays after recovering a West Monroe fumble on the Rebel 32. Jacket fullback Roby Odom was the big man on the drive with short bursts that carried to the Rebel 10. Quarterback Gene Hunt carried the ball in from this point on a roll out around the right side and the Jackets went ahead to stay. Joe Walker added the extra point with a kick that split the uprights.

The Rebels came right back to pull with in a point of the Shreveport invaders as quarterback James Colvin threw quick passes to David Jones and Ray Alexander that netted 34 yards and brought the ball to the Jacket's 20 yard marker. A personal foul moved the ball to the seven and hard running Chuck Crawford, West Monroe's fine fullback, found the end zone on his second effort. Alexander's Pat kick attempt which would have knotted the score failed.

Byrd, ahead by the single point when the first quarter ended, racked up two tallies in the second stanza to badly cripple West Monroe chances of coming back.

After the Rebel tally, Alexander got off a booming kick that carried to the Jacket five-yard line. Byrd couldn't move the ball and got off a surprising quick kick on third down that give the ball back to the Rebs on the Jackets 45. Colvin picked up ten on a keeper play, and for a moment it looked as if the Rebels might come back to score but the Jacket line got tough and Alexander was forced to kick for the second time.

The Jackets got their offense in working order after receiving the kick and using Odom and halfback David Porter were able to roll for 70 yards and their second touchdown. Quarterback Hunt also picked up key yardage in the drive on keeper plays around both ends. Odom capped the march with a four-yard burst off tackle, but Walker's kick hit the goal post and bounded back onto the playing field and the Jackets lengthened their lead to 13-6.

Defensive halfback Richard Carruth set up the final Byrd tally when he grabbed off one of Colvin's aerials late in the second quarter and raced to the West Monroe 39 yard line before he was dropped by a host of Rebels. It took but five plays for the Jackets to make the score 19-6. A pass from Hunt to Mac Griffith picked up the final 14 after Odom had rambled for 12.

The Rebels came back after intermission to climb within six points but a stout Byrd defense was able to hold them the second time they threatened and win the game.

The second and final Rebel tally came at a most unexpected moment. In fact, everyone in the stadium thought the Jackets were rolling for another touchdown on the Rebel six. But a big break bounded the Rebel way as Jones picked up a Byrd fumble and outdistanced everybody on both teams, racing 94 yards to put new life into the Rebel hopes. Alexander's kick was good and the West Monroe rooters came to life.

The fans really started screaming as they saw Colvin, who handled the quarterback job with professional coolness, hit Roy Crain with a pass that carried to the Jacket eight yard line with only seven minutes to play in the final stanza. But at this point the Yellow Jacket forward wall came to life and would not be budged. After three running attempts netted but five yards, Colvin tried a short pass to Jones, but it was incomplete and Byrd took over.

The Rebels, who will travel to Pineville next weekend for a non-district clash, put up a tough battle all the way, but the turning point came when their drive was halted on the Byrd three. Many observers felt that the Rebels who did well on forward passes should have attempted more when the ball was that close.

"Of course hindsight is better that foresight," Rebel Head Coach Cecil Pirkey commented after the game in the quite Rebel dressing room, "and maybe we should have tried to pass for the score when we were that close. If they'd let us run that series over maybe that's what we'd do, but its finished now."

TECH VS. McNEESE

Laird Replaces 'Mick' Tonight

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech, with its usual air show but under the direction of a new leader, goes up against highly regarded McNeese State in Lake Charles tonight in an opener that could play a big role in the Gulf States Conference race.

Sophomore Billy Laird takes over a role that Mickey Slaughter has played for four years against the Pokes. In the last three years, Tech passers, mostly Slaughter, completed 47 of 64 aerials against the Lake Charles crew.

McNeese is favored to win the GSC title. Tech, which usually draws the pre - season favorite label, is picked to finish fourth.

The Cowboys have two veteran teams ready for action.

Where graduation left holes in the ranks, the Pokes picked up LSU transfers to fill out the squad. Tech, on the other hand, has a veteran first team that is as talented as any in the league. The second or alternate club is mostly composed of players that saw action on only offense or defense last year in Tech's three team system.

McNeese has a strong running game and has worked strenuously in spring and fall training to improve the air attack. Tech has a strong aerial game and has been trying to improve the ground game.

Rain could prove a decisive factor in the contest if it prevents the Techmen from going to the air in the usual manner. Even so, Tech's starting line could make it rough on the Cowboy ground game.

Starting Tech tackles are Robert Malone (235) and Dan Irby (225) while center J. R. Williamson is a 222 pounder. Guards Richard Enis and Wally Martin weigh about 210 each while the ends will be Charlie Bourgeois (216) and Wayne Davis (196). An alternate unit line includes ends Davis Lee (212) and Pat Lynch (212), guard Jerry Arledge (195) and Wayne Matthews (215), center John Blake (185) and tackles Claude Carrigan (221) and James Boudreaux (235).

Besides Laird, the starting backs will be Paul Labenne, Corky Corkern and Gerald McDowell. The alternate unit backs include Billy Keever at quarterback, Jack Odom, Tom Robertson, and Wayne Noland.

Lane Will Test Passing Attack Against U Of A

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Missouri quarterback Gary Lane pits his drop-back passing attack against the run-and-throw tactics of Arkansas slinger Billy Gray in an intersectional football battle Saturday night.

Lane, a sophomore, and Gray, a junior, are two of the most up-and-coming young quarterbacks in the nation's mid-section. Both starred last week in season openers.

A sellout crowd of 41,000 is expected at Little Rock's War Memorial Stadium for the game.

Lane passed Missouri to an early lead over Northwestern last week but the Tigers were overcome 23-12. Lane completed four of eight passes for 55 yards.

Gray fired Arkansas to a 21-0 victory over Oklahoma State in the opener, hitting on six of 10 passes for 115 yards and a touchdown.

Gray, is adept at Coach Frank Broyles' most potent offensive weapon — the quarterback rollout. He throws better than he runs.

Coach Dan Devine prefers a drop-back passing method starring Lane, and Arkansas defensive coach Jim Mckenzie said his toughest job this week was getting his defense ready for that alignment.

Arkansas is favored by one touchdown and two good defenses are expected to swing the balance of the game.

Cox Gets New Assignment In Ole Miss Tilt

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Darrell Cox, who lost his starting job to sensational sophomore Rodger Bird, will have new duties when Kentucky meets Mississippi Saturday night.

Cox, a senior from Miami, Fla., and a member of the all-SEC second team last season, will operate as Kentucky's "swing man."

Coach Charlie Bradshaw said this means Cox will fill in for Bird at one halfback spot and senior Bobby Kosid at the other when the need arises.

Cox, along with senior fullback Ken Bocard, will serve as co-captains for the game, in which the Rebels have been installed a solid favorite.

Mississippi coach Johnny Vaught's starting lineup is much the same as the one that started against Memphis State last Saturday.

The backfield finds Perry Lee Dunn at quarterback, Mike Dennis at tailback, Larry Smith at wingback and Buck Randall at fullback. All but Dennis, a sophomore, are seniors.

Indian War Slated Tonight; McMurry Raids Northeast

Troubles Still Plague Local Redskin Camp

Northeast State and McMurry clash in an Indian war that opens Monroe's college football season tonight at 8 in Brown Stadium.

The two teams, both nicknamed Indians, will be meeting for the first time on the football field. Northeast is rated a 14-point favorite by one expert, a touchdown underdog by another.

McMurry, coached by Grant Teaff and based in Abilene, Tex., has already played twice, falling to Corpus Christi, 16-12, in a big opening day upset and rallying in the second half for a 14-3 decision over Howard Payne last Saturday.

Northeast opened by dropping a 9-0 decision to Chattanooga last week.

Jack Rowan's Louisiana Indians have physical troubles. Guard Joe McClain, expected to be a starter, played only briefly last week and will not dress out this Saturday because of a bruised knee. Halfback R. F. Wilson, a two-year letterman, will sit out his second game in a row with a broken finger.

The team's two swiftest backs, Ken Newton and Ronnie Myrick, sat out several practice sessions early this week because of injuries and are not expected to be at full speed. Neither will start but both should play.

Morris Douglas and Don King, two seniors who performed well against Chattanooga, will start in place of Newton and McClain. King started against Chattanooga and he and companion guard James Kirkendall drew raves from 'Nooga Coach Scrappy Moore.

Kirkendall, 5-11, 220, has been one of the fall's most pleasant surprises for Rowan and his staff. A redshirt freshman, he has always been considered a promising prospect but his development last spring and this fall into a first - class guard solved one of the line's major problem spots.

Other Northeast staters up front will be Sherrel Smith and Wendell Drost at end, Wayne Clement and Alden Fontenot at tackle and Tommy Beaube at center.

When McMurry has the ball, Shillbutt will come out, Smith will move to cornerback and Carlyle Williams, a defensive standout against Chattanooga, will come in to play end.

McMurry's backfield consists of 6-4 Stanley Austin at quarterback, ex - quarterback Don Mraz at left half, James Maddox ar right and Bill Grissom at full. Austin is a good passer, Mraz also throws well and leads the team in rushing, Maddox is the team's punter and Grissom is the No. 2 rusher.

Ragan and Ronnie Graham, the two fullbacks, will again carry much of the offensive load for Northeast. Graham gained 70 yards against Chattanooga and Ragan 55.

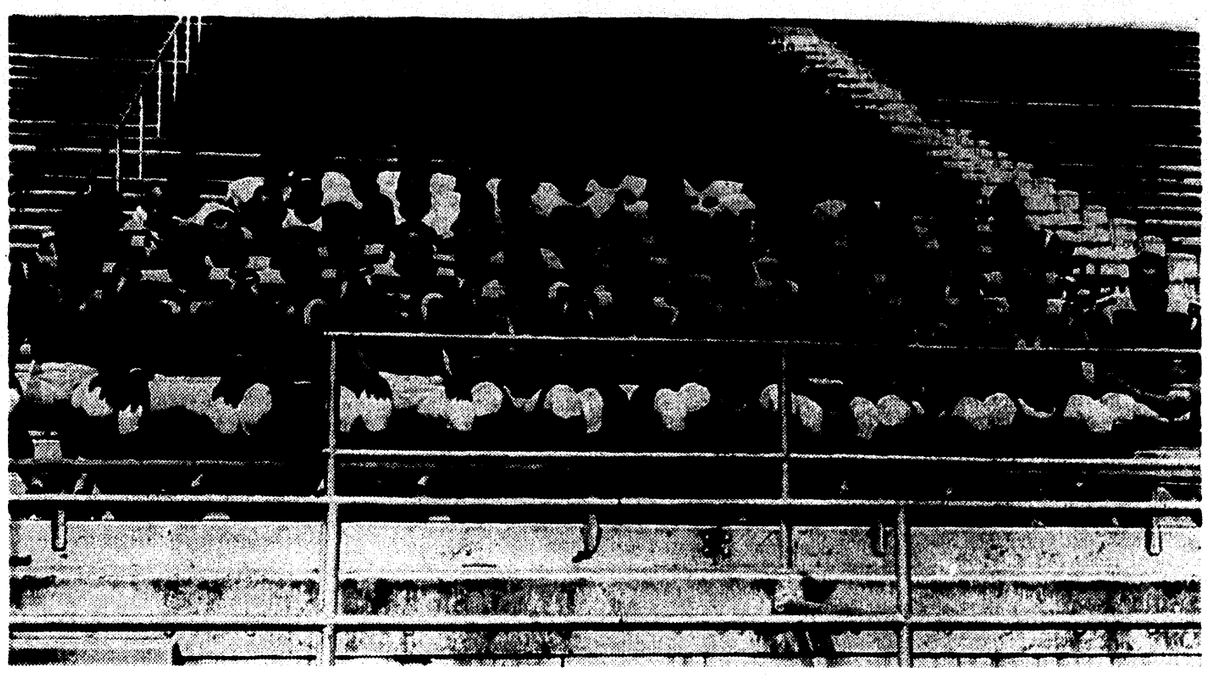

Shillcutt and Mike Cooper will throw to a variety of receivers -Smith, Drost, Jim Love, Steve Regan, Thomas and Myrick, if he plays.

Jack Trimble, the freshman kicker from Ouachita, will punt for Northeast. Ragan will kick extra points and rookie C. A. Fortenberry, an Istrouma product, will kick off.

Tiger Schedules Title Fight With Joey Giardello

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—World middleweight boxing champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria signed Friday to defend his title against Joey Giardello of Philadelphia in spacious Convention Hall tentatively Dec. 5.

Tiger was given a guarantee of $50,000 against 47½ per cent of the gate after taxes. Giardello will receive 15 per cent of the gate.

It will be Tiger's first title defense since he successfully retained the crown by stopping Gene Fullmer in Nigeria last month.

Contracts for the championship match were signed after New Jersey State Athletic Commissioner Joseph Walker obtained a release from Lou Duva, a Paterson, N.J., promoter, who had signed Giardello for an Oct. 4 match with Charley Jordan in Paterson.

Duva agreed to release Giardello, No. 1 middleweight challenger, from the bout on the condition that he fight in Paterson within 90 days after the Tiger bout, win or lose, and that Duva join in the promotion of the title bout.

Tear Gas Bomb Thrown During Prep Grid Tilt

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A tear gas bomb was tossed into the crowd at a high school football game Friday night, injuring 10 persons, one seriously.

Authorities said the bomb was hurled from an adjoining grade school into the Drake University Stadium shortly before halftime in a game between Des Moines Roosevelt and Des Moines Tech. Tech won the game 19-13.

Officers said the bomb apparently was thrown from a car that sped away.

Kelso Favored For Racing Win

NEW YORK (AP) — The five horses expected to start in the $100,000-added Woodward Stakes today at Aqueduct were entered today, with Bohemia Stable's Kelso favored to win the 1¼-mile event for the third straight year.

Kelso, to be ridden by Ismael Valenzuela, was listed at 1-3, with Mrs. Katherine Price's Carry Back and Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend both 5-1. Crimson King Farm's Crimson Satan is 8-1, with Harbor View Farm's Garwol 15-1.

ALWAYS TOUGH

Bengals Winless Over Rice Since '59 Contest

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana State tries for its first win over Rice since 1959 Saturday night in Houston. The Tigers opened the campaign with a 14-6 win over Texas A&M last week, but Saturday's game will be the first of the season for Rice.

The Owls of coach Jess Neely turned back two of LSU's best teams during the past two seasons, beating the Tigers 16-3 in 1961 and tying the Bengals 6-6 last year. In fact, over the last 23 games LSU has won 20, lost two and tied one, with Rice adding one loss and the tie to the ledger.

LSU's sophomore rich team of of 1963 won't compare with the teams of the past two seasons, particularly on defense where the Tigers lost many standouts.

The 1963 Bayou Bengals, however, possess the speed to be an exciting team as they indicated against Texas A&M. Halfback Joe Labruzzo, 175-pound sophomore, who returned a punt 83-yards for a touchdown last week, will get special attention from the Rice Owls.

Soph quarterback Pat Screen, who gained 73 yards of total offense against the Aggies, is another young Tiger to be closely watched by the Owl defense.

Teaming with Screen and Labruzzo in the starting backfield are seniors Buddy Soefker at halfback and Buddy Hamic at fullback.

Coach Charles McClendon also hopes a Go Team backfield combo of quarterback Billy Ezell (Soph.) and halfbacks George Haynes (Soph.) and Danny Le-Blanc (Jr.) and fullback Donald Schwab (Soph.) will be a capable offensive foursome.

The starting line will include ends Danny Neumann (Sr., 210) of Tallulah and Bill Truax (Sr., 235) of Gulfport, Miss.; tackles Ralph Pere (Sr., 220) of Larose and Willis Langley (Sr., 240) of Oberlin; guards Remi Prudhomme (Jr., 236) of Opelousas and Robbie Hucklebridge (Sr., 220) of Bossier City; and center Ruffin Rodrigue (Jr., 200).

Travel plans for the Tigers call for the team to leave Baton Rouge Saturday morning by chartered air coach and return via the charter immediately following the game.

Arroyo Retired By Yankee Club

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees retired veteran left-handed relief pitcher Luis Arroyo Friday night and made him a scout in their farm system.

The 39-year-old veteran had a 15-5 record in relief in 1961, but has been bothered by arm trouble in the last two seasons. The Yankees said he has signed a contract which starts in February to scout Puerto Rico and the Caribbean area for the club.

He also will do some limited pitching for the San Juan club of the Puerto Rican winter league.

The club also announced that first baseman-outfielder Archie Moore had been purchased from their Augusta farm club in the Sally League. Moore was signed to a bonus contract last spring. He hit .278 with four homers and 32 runs batted in at Augusta.

Byrd Holds Off Rebs For District Triumph

By GLYNN HUDSON
World Sports Writer

The Byrd Yellow Jackets rolled for three first half scores and cut short a West Monroe rally in the second half to take a hard earned 19-13 victory in the first 1-AAA district contest for either team at rain-swept Rebel Stadium Friday night.

A cheering crowd, estimated at 4,600, watched the once beaten Yellow Jackets roll for the first score of the night in ten plays after recovering a West Monroe fumble on the Rebel 32. Jacket fullback Roby Odom was the big man on the drive with short bursts that carried to the Rebel 10. Quarterback Gene Hunt carried the ball in from this point on a roll out around the right side and the Jackets went ahead to stay. Joe Walker added the extra point with a kick that split the uprights.

The Rebels came right back to pull with in a point of the Shreveport invaders as quarterback James Colvin threw quick passes to David Jones and Ray Alexander that netted 34 yards and brought the ball to the Jacket's 20 yard marker. A personal foul moved the ball to the seven and hard running Chuck Crawford, West Monroe's fine fullback, found the end zone on his second effort. Alexander's Pat kick attempt which would have knotted the score failed.

Byrd, ahead by the single point when the first quarter ended, racked up two tallies in the second stanza to badly cripple West Monroe chances of coming back.

After the Rebel tally, Alexander got off a booming kick that carried to the Jacket five-yard line. Byrd couldn't move the ball and got off a surprising quick kick on third down that give the ball back to the Rebs on the Jackets 45. Colvin picked up ten on a keeper play, and for a moment it looked as if the Rebels might come back to score but the Jacket line got tough and Alexander was forced to kick for the second time.

The Jackets got their offense in working order after receiving the kick and using Odom and halfback David Porter were able to roll for 70 yards and their second touchdown. Quarterback Hunt also picked up key yardage in the drive on keeper plays around both ends. Odom capped the march with a four-yard burst off tackle, but Walker's kick hit the goal post and bounded back onto the playing field and the Jackets lengthened their lead to 13-6.

Defensive halfback Richard Carruth set up the final Byrd tally when he grabbed off one of Colvin's aerials late in the second quarter and raced to the West Monroe 39 yard line before he was dropped by a host of Rebels. It took but five plays for the Jackets to make the score 19-6. A pass from Hunt to Mac Griffith picked up the final 14 after Odom had rambled for 12.

The Rebels came back after intermission to climb within six points but a stout Byrd defense was able to hold them the second time they threatened and win the game.

The second and final Rebel tally came at a most unexpected moment. In fact, everyone in the stadium thought the Jackets were rolling for another touchdown on the Rebel six. But a big break bounded the Rebel way as Jones picked up a Byrd fumble and outdistanced everybody on both teams, racing 94 yards to put new life into the Rebel hopes. Alexander's kick was good and the West Monroe rooters came to life.

The fans really started screaming as they saw Colvin, who handled the quarterback job with professional coolness, hit Roy Crain with a pass that carried to the Jacket eight yard line with only seven minutes to play in the final stanza. But at this point the Yellow Jacket forward wall came to life and would not be budged. After three running attempts netted but five yards, Colvin tried a short pass to Jones, but it was incomplete and Byrd took over.

The Rebels, who will travel to Pineville next weekend for a non-district clash, put up a tough battle all the way, but the turning point came when their drive was halted on the Byrd three. Many observers felt that the Rebels who did well on forward passes should have attempted more when the ball was that close.

"Of course hindsight is better that foresight," Rebel Head Coach Cecil Pirkey commented after the game in the quite Rebel dressing room, "and maybe we should have tried to pass for the score when we were that close. If they'd let us run that series over maybe that's what we'd do, but its finished now."

TECH VS. McNEESE

Laird Replaces 'Mick' Tonight

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech, with its usual air show but under the direction of a new leader, goes up against highly regarded McNeese State in Lake Charles tonight in an opener that could play a big role in the Gulf States Conference race.

Sophomore Billy Laird takes over a role that Mickey Slaughter has played for four years against the Pokes. In the last three years, Tech passers, mostly Slaughter, completed 47 of 64 aerials against the Lake Charles crew.

McNeese is favored to win the GSC title. Tech, which usually draws the pre - season favorite label, is picked to finish fourth.

The Cowboys have two veteran teams ready for action.

Where graduation left holes in the ranks, the Pokes picked up LSU transfers to fill out the squad. Tech, on the other hand, has a veteran first team that is as talented as any in the league. The second or alternate club is mostly composed of players that saw action on only offense or defense last year in Tech's three team system.

McNeese has a strong running game and has worked strenuously in spring and fall training to improve the air attack. Tech has a strong aerial game and has been trying to improve the ground game.

Rain could prove a decisive factor in the contest if it prevents the Techmen from going to the air in the usual manner. Even so, Tech's starting line could make it rough on the Cowboy ground game.

Starting Tech tackles are Robert Malone (235) and Dan Irby (225) while center J. R. Williamson is a 222 pounder. Guards Richard Enis and Wally Martin weigh about 210 each while the ends will be Charlie Bourgeois (216) and Wayne Davis (196). An alternate unit line includes ends Davis Lee (212) and Pat Lynch (212), guard Jerry Arledge (195) and Wayne Matthews (215), center John Blake (185) and tackles Claude Carrigan (221) and James Boudreaux (235).

Besides Laird, the starting backs will be Paul Labenne, Corky Corkern and Gerald McDowell. The alternate unit backs include Billy Keever at quarterback, Jack Odom, Tom Robertson, and Wayne Noland.

Tiger Schedules Title Fight With Joey Giardello

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—World middleweight boxing champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria signed Friday to defend his title against Joey Giardello of Philadelphia in spacious Convention Hall tentatively Dec. 5.

Tiger was given a guarantee of $50,000 against 47½ per cent of the gate after taxes. Giardello will receive 15 per cent of the gate.

It will be Tiger's first title defense since he successfully retained the crown by stopping Gene Fullmer in Nigeria last month.

Contracts for the championship match were signed after New Jersey State Athletic Commissioner Joseph Walker obtained a release from Lou Duva, a Paterson, N.J., promoter, who had signed Giardello for an Oct. 4 match with Charley Jordan in Paterson.

Duva agreed to release Giardello, No. 1 middleweight challenger, from the bout on the condition that he fight in Paterson within 90 days after the Tiger bout, win or lose, and that Duva join in the promotion of the title bout.

Bengals Winless Over Rice Since '59 Contest

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana State tries for its first win over Rice since 1959 Saturday night in Houston. The Tigers opened the campaign with a 14-6 win over Texas A&M last week, but Saturday's game will be the first of the season for Rice.

The Owls of coach Jess Neely turned back two of LSU's best teams during the past two seasons, beating the Tigers 16-3 in 1961 and tying the Bengals 6-6 last year. In fact, over the last 23 games LSU has won 20, lost two and tied one, with Rice adding one loss and the tie to the ledger.

LSU's sophomore rich team of of 1963 won't compare with the teams of the past two seasons, particularly on defense where the Tigers lost many standouts.

The 1963 Bayou Bengals, however, possess the speed to be an exciting team as they indicated against Texas A&M. Halfback Joe Labruzzo, 175-pound sophomore, who returned a punt 83-yards for a touchdown last week, will get special attention from the Rice Owls.

Soph quarterback Pat Screen, who gained 73 yards of total offense against the Aggies, is another young Tiger to be closely watched by the Owl defense.

Teaming with Screen and Labruzzo in the starting backfield are seniors Buddy Soefker at halfback and Buddy Hamic at fullback.

Coach Charles McClendon also hopes a Go Team backfield combo of quarterback Billy Ezell (Soph.) and halfbacks George Haynes (Soph.) and Danny LeBlanc (Jr.) and fullback Donald Schwab (Soph.) will be a capable offensive foursome.

The starting line will include ends Danny Neumann (Sr., 210) of Tallulah and Bill Truax (Sr., 235) of Gulfport, Miss.; tackles Ralph Pere (Sr., 220) of Larose and Willis Langley (Sr., 240) of Oberlin; guards Remi Prudhomme (Jr., 236) of Opelousas and Robbie Hucklebridge (Sr., 220) of Bossier City; and center Ruffin Rodrigue (Jr., 200).

Travel plans for the Tigers call for the team to leave Baton Rouge Saturday morning by chartered air coach and return via the charter immediately following the game.

Arroyo Retired By Yankee Club

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees retired veteran left-handed relief pitcher Luis Arroyo Friday night and made him a scout in their farm system.

The 39-year-old veteran had a 15-5 record in relief in 1961, but has been bothered by arm trouble in the last two seasons. The Yankees said he has signed a contract which starts in February to scout Puerto Rico and the Caribbean area for the club.

He also will do some limited pitching for the San Juan club of the Puerto Rican winter league.

The club also announced that first baseman-outfielder Archie Moore had been purchased from their Augusta farm club in the Sally League. Moore was signed to a bonus contract last spring. He hit .278 with four homers and 32 runs batted in at Augusta.

Smarting Knights Slap 36-6 Blow On Ouachita

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Woodlawn's Knights, still smarting from the 13-7 loss handed them by Bastrop last week, took out their anger on Ouachita, 33-6, here Friday night before a slim State Fair Stadium Homecoming crowd.

Johnny Piazza paced the fierce Woodlawn attack with touchdown runs of two and 21 yards. Gerald Burnett ran one yard, Andy Creel streaked 40 yards with a Don Powell fumble he took on the dead run and Thomas Youngblood sneaked behind the Ouachita defense and took a perfect Tray Prather pass for a 53 yard touchdown.

The Lions' lone score came in the fourth quarter with halfback Powell plunging two yards to cap a 75-yard drive which took 15 plays.

The Knights now stand 2-1 in the district 1-AAA grid chase and 3-1 for the season.

Quarterback Prather connected on four of five passes for the Knights to account for 115 yards and one touchdown. Wodlawn gained only 60 yards on the ground, with Piazza pacing the infantry attack with 40 stripes.

Powell was the game's top rusher with 57 yards.

A 15-yard penalty against Ouachita set up the first Knight touchdown, giving the Shreveport team a first down on the Lion 34 in the opening stanza.

Prather promptly sent a 16-yard pass to Youngblood for a first down on the 18. Piazza carried three times for a first at the five. Buster Herrin hit for four and then Burnett dived over from the one.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Sooner-Trojan Tilt Spotlighted

By JOHN GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Writer

A nationally - televised clash between two potential national champions, Southern California and Oklahoma, and the opening games of most Big Ten and Ivy League teams are among the highlights of a jam-packed college football program Saturday.

As on the first big Saturday last weekend, the schedule emphasis is strong on intersectional games and there is a large number of night games.

Southern Cal, the defending national champion, is rated only a one-point favorite over Oklahoma in their important battle at Memorial Coliseum, Los Angeles. Both were winners in their openers a week ago, and both are figured as strong contenders for the No. 1 national ranking.

Only two Big Ten teams, Northwestern and Wisconsin, saw action last week but the league's entire lineup will be playing this week.

Northwestern is a 15-point favorite over Indiana in the only conference game, but other highlights find Wisconsin a 3-point favorite against Notre Dame in the opener for a fighting Irish team rated much improved, Michigan a 7-point choice over SMU, Ohio State 12 over Texas A&M, Michigan State 13 over North Carolina, and Purdue 3 over Miami (Fla.) in one of the top night games.

Columbia is a 4-point choice over Brown in the only Ivy League conference game, but Princeton is 7 over Rutgers while Harvard, Yale, Cornell, and Dartmouth all are heavy favorites in other non-league games.

Among last week's most impressive winners: Alabama, a 32-7 romper over Georgia, is favored by 29 over Tulane; Penn State, impressive victor over Oregon, is picked by 14 to beat another West Coast opponent, UCLA; and Navy, which followed quarterback star Roger Staubach to a brilliant victory over West Virginia, is a prohibitive choice over William and Mary.

Mississippi, which suffered the surprise of last weekend, when it was held to a 0-0 tie by Memphis State, is picked by 10 over Kentucky in a night game.

In other leading games:

EAST — Pitt, winner over UCLA, is favored by 7 over Washington; West Virginia is a 7-point pick to rebound against Boston University; and Army is expected to roll by 20 over Cincinnati.

SOUTH — Tennessee 1 over Auburn; South Carolina 6 to hand Maryland its second straight loss Florida State, which upset Miami by holding passer George Mira down, is favored by 6 over Texas Christian; Duke 10 over Virginia; Florida 8 over Mississippi State; Georgia Tech 11 over Clemson.

Smarting Knights Slap 36-6 Blow On Ouachita

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Woodlawn's Knights, still smarting from the 13-7 loss handed them by Bastrop last week, took out their anger on Ouachita, 33-6, here Friday night before a slim State Fair Stadium Homecoming crowd.

Johnny Piazza paced the fierce Woodlawn attack with touchdown runs of two and 21 yards. Gerald Burnett ran one yard, Andy Creel streaked 40 yards with a Don Powell fumble he took on the dead run and Thomas Youngblood sneaked behind the Ouachita defense and took a perfect Tray Prather pass for a 53 yard touchdown.

The Lions' lone score came in the fourth quarter with halfback Powell plunging two yards to cap a 75-yard drive which took 15 plays.

The Knights now stand 2-1 in the district 1-AAA grid chase and 3-1 for the season.

Quarterback Prather connected on four of five passes for the Knights to account for 115 yards and one touchdown. Wodlawn gained only 60 yards on the ground, with Piazza pacing the infantry attack with 40 stripes.

Powell was the game's top rusher with 57 yards.

A 15-yard penalty against Ouachita set up the first Knight touchdown, giving the Shreveport team a first down on the Lion 34 in the opening stanza.

Prather promptly sent a 16-yard pass to Youngblood for a first down on the 18. Piazza carried three times for a first at the five. Buster Herrin hit for four and then Burnett dived over from the one.

Ralph Crest's try for the extra point was blocked by the Lions but Woodlawn held a 6-0 lead with :41 left in the first period.

A dazzling 71-yard runback of a Kenneth Slusher punt by Knight halfback Randy Mason laid the groundwork for the next Knight tally. Mason fielded the punt after first dropping it on the Woodlawn 25 and turned right to weave down to the Lion four before he was caught. Three plays later Piazza blasted over from the two and Craft booted true for a 13-0 Woodlawn lead with 9:34 left in the first half.

The third quarter was scoreless but Prather quickly got another drive cranked up in the early minutes of the final frame. Taking over on their own 22, after three Slusher passes fell incomplete, Prather sent Piazza plunging for seven, and then hit the hard-running fullback with a 33-yard pitch which carried down to the Ouachita 38.

The Knight field general kept for nine and six yards and then pitched out to Piazza who streaked 29 - yards down the left side to enter the end zone standing up. Carft's kick ws no good and left Woodlawn in front 33-0 with 9:10 left in the game.

Powell picked up 37-yards of his total yards on the Lions' fourth quarter touchdown march, finally cracking over from the two yard stripe.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Sooner-Trojan Tilt Spotlighted

By JOHN GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Writer

A nationally - televised clash between two potential national champions, Southern California and Oklahoma, and the opening games of most Big Ten and Ivy League teams are among the highlights of a jam-packed college football program Saturday.

As on the first big Saturday last weekend, the schedule emphasis is strong on intersectional games and there is a large number of night games.

Southern Cal, the defending national champion, is rated only a one-point favorite over Oklahoma in their important battle at Memorial Coliseum, Los Angeles. Both were winners in their openers a week ago, and both are figured as strong contenders for the No. 1 national ranking.

Only two Big Ten teams, Northwestern and Wisconsin, saw action last week but the league's entire lineup will be playing this week.

Northwestern is a 15-point favorite over Indiana in the only conference game, but other highlights find Wisconsin a 3-point favorite against Notre Dame in the opener for a fighting Irish team rated much improved. Michigan a 7-point choice over SMU, Ohio State 12 over Texas A&M, Michigan State 13 over North Carolina, and Purdue 3 over Miami (Fla.) in one of the top night games.

Columbia is a 4-point choice over Brown in the only Ivy League conference game, but Princeton is 7 over Rutgers while Harvard, Yale, Cornell, and Dartmouth all are heavy favorites in other non-league games.

Among last week's most impressive winners: Alabama, a 32-7 romper over Georgia, is favored by 29 over Tulane; Penn State, impressive victor over Oregon, is picked by 14 to beat another West Coast opponent, UCLA; and Navy, which followed quarterback star Roger Staubach to a brilliant victory over West Virginia, is a prohibitive choice over William and Mary.

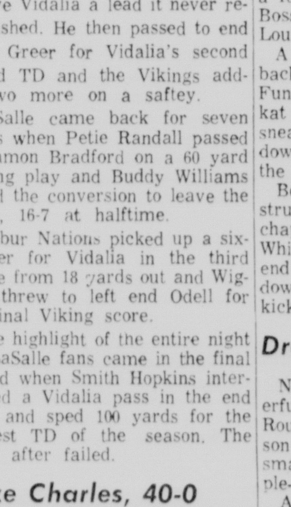

Mississippi, which suffered the surprise of last weekend, when it was held to a 0-0 tie by Memphis State, is picked by 10 over Kentucky in a night game.

In other leading games:

EAST — Pitt, winner over UCLA, is favored by 7 over Washington; West Virginia is a 7-point pick to rebound against Boston University; and Army is expected to roll by 20 over Cincinnati.

SOUTH — Tennessee 1 over Auburn; South Carolina 6 to hand Maryland its second straight loss Florida State, which upset Miami by holding passer George Mira down, is favored by 6 over Texas Christian; Duke 10 over Virginia; Florida 8 over Mississippi State; Georgia Tech 11 over Clemson.

Proof In The Playing

Perhaps the difference the really good pro quarterback makes may have never been so precisely demonstrated as it has been these first two weeks in the National Football League.

Two weeks ago nothing could stop the proud old New York Giants, not even the 17 full minutes of frustration which began the game. During this strange interlude, three Giant fumbles by one Yelberton Abraham Tittle Jr. resulted in three Baltimore touchdowns and a 21-3 Colt lead.

Finally deciding enough was enough, Tittle, the wise old man of football, fixed his helmet firmly atop his hairless dome, administered a little glue to his buttery fingers, unlimbered the old passing arm and got down to business.

He completed 16 of 32 passes for 242 yards, threw three touchdown passes and scampered nine-yards for another score.

Needless to say the Giants won and did so by a margin of 37-28.

By the half, the 36-year-old master with the Univac brain, had narrowed the margin to 28-24. It was 30-28 in New York's favor when Tittle was injured in the third quarter and left the game.

And therein lay the seeds for the second chapter.

One week later with "the old man" still mending and walking the sidelines, the Giants began to look their age. For the first time in 31 years, they failed to score. The final count — Pittsburgh 31, New York 0.

Ironically, that Sunday afternoon when Tittle's absence was so keenly felt may have ended the career of another player. For it was Ralph Guglielmi, heir - apparent to the Tittle throne, who drew the futile task of moving New York against the Steelers.

The next week, Guglielmi, a former Notre Dame star and a pro since 1959, was traded to San Francisco. The 29 - year - old Guglielmi decided instead to devote full time to his insurance business.

Fate has its twists. Tittle once played for San Francisco and he was traded to the Giants.

It was 1960 and the cheers had long since turned to boos, for Y. A. was the man who couldn't lead the 49'ers to the championship. A groin injury increased the problem. Then Coach Red Hickey went to shotgun formation. Tittle is a true pro quarterback, a passer a brain man—but he was not a runner. The shotgun required a runner, so Tittle was traded.

The 49'ers still haven't won the championship, but Tittle, the old Louisiana State All - American, has gone on to become probably the best in the business today.

A Hard-Beaked Cardinal

Another LSU graduate, Jerry Stovall of West Monroe, hasn't forgotten the brand of hard-nosed football which helped him greatly in earning a trek down honors-row last year.

Stovall, now the main punter for the St. Louis Football Cardinals, is the only man on the team to pilfer an enemy fumble in two games. Jerry also leads the Cardinals in kickoff returns. Three men have returned one kickoff apiece and Stovall's 29-yard romp is tops.

Stovall is slated to start in the defensive backfield for the undefeated Redbirds against Pittsburgh Sunday along with Pat Fischer, Jimmy Hill and Larry Wilson.

In what seems almost a sideline now, Jerry is averaging 40.3 yards a punt on seven kicks.

The Predictions

Northeast State 21, McMurry 13

Northeast's potentially explosive offense can't be at it's best this week with a number of key men out or slowed by injuries. Still the Indians seem strong enough to win by a touchdown or more.

The most encouraging thing in last week's 9-0 loss to Chattanooga was that the defense gave up points much more grudgingly than it had in pre - game scrimmage sessions.

Offensively, the Indians were a close second best in first downs and yards gained rushing. The pass attack, though not as prolific as the Moccasins', was considerably better than a year ago.

When the Tribe's injuries heal both the running and passing games should improve even more. Tonight Northeast will start one senior, two juniors, three sophomores and a redshirt freshman in the line.

Last year, Chattanooga, which topped Southeastern 21-19, would have ranked along with the better teams in the Gulf States Conference.

McNeese 14, Louisiana Tech 7

There is no doubt who is the favorite in this one. The Cowboys will be fired-up as never before. They have won exactly one time in the 11-year history of the series and are long, long overdue. And this time, McNeese has the home field advantage and is enjoying the peak of its manpower build-up. The Cowboys, remember, are picked to win the GSC.

For Tech, which is not picked to contend in the GSC, the game presents a tremendous challenge. The challenge is not only to find some way to beat McNeese again, but to find some way to run against the tough Cowboy defense. If the Bulldogs can accomplish the virtually impossible they may find they can move on the ground against almost anybody.

But the odds lie heavily with the Cowboys.

Rice 6, Louisiana State 3

The Bayou Bengals better win this one before the series takes on jinx proportions. But the sophomore - studded LSU team may have trouble doing it in a game played away from Tiger stadium.

Northwestern 14, Louisiana College 13

Predicting Northwestern before mid - October is like the old shell game. You takes your pick, then you takes your chances. The bet here is that the Demons will be semi - aroused after the Stephen F. Austin debacle two weeks ago.

Others

Howard 7, Southeastern 6; Hardin Simmons 12, USL 7; North Carolina State 13, Southern Mississippi 12; Alabama 28, Tulane 7; Tennessee 7, Auburn 6; Georgia Tech 20, Clemson 7; Florida 14, Mississippi State 7; Florida State 19, TCU 13; Georgia 18, Vanderbilt 0; Mississippi 21, Kentucky 0; Arkansas 14, Missouri 7; Baylor 19, Houston 13; Michigan 20, SMU 14; Texas 28, Texas Tech 0; Ohio State 20, Texas A&M 7; Oklahoma 18, USC 14.

Last week's score was 10 right and five wrong for a season total of 12-6. This is .666 per cent and is just a little better than you could get flipping a coin.

Pascual Hurls Twins Past Yankees By 4-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota's Camilo Pascual became the first American League pitcher to strike out 200 batters this season and Baltimore relief specialist Stu Miller made a record-setting 71st appearance on Friday night's baseball program.

Pascual struck out nine and posted his 21st victory as the Twins edged the AL champion New York Yankees 4-3. Miller surpassed the league record of 70 appearances made by Boston's Mike Fornieles in 1960, pitching two shutout innings in the Orioles' 5-2 decision over Detroit.

In other AL action: Kansas City's Dave Wickersham pitched a two-hitter and drove in the deciding run in a 3-1 triumph over Cleveland. The Chicago White Sox clinched second place, sweeping a doubleheader from Washington 11-2 and 7-1, as Mike Hershberger drove in three runs in each game.

The National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers trailed Philadelphia 4-3 in the sixth inning. In another late game, Pittsburgh led San Francisco 6-3 after 4 innings.

In other NL games: John Tsitouris allowed only two hits as Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 3-0, the Chicago Cubs edged Milwaukee 3-2 and the New York Mets belted Houston 10-3.

The Colts started an all-rookie line-up, with 17-year-old Jay Dahl on the mound. The nine-man outfit had a combined professional experience of only 14 seasons.

SUES DALLAS CLUB

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — A $12,000 suit against the Dallas club of the National Football League has been filed by former Cowboy tackle Kenneth Frost.

In the suit, Frost charged he was injured on Oct. 1, 1962, in a game with the Los Angeles Rams and has been unable to play in regular season competition because of his damaged right knee.

The Kansas City Athletics and the Minnesota Twins divided 18 decisions this year.

Cocky Cassius Goes To School, Talks With Kids

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ice cream cone in hand and mouth in motion as usual, heavyweight boxing contender Cassius Clay dropped by an almost all-Negro high school Friday.

Some 300 McClymonds High students gave the Negro boxer a rousing welcome, although he didn't give them much chance to say anything.

Here's the way it went:

Clay—"You're looking at the world's greatest fighter."

Students—"Hooray!"

Clay — "The world's prettiest fighter."

Students—"Hooray!"

Clay — "The uncrowned champion of the world."

Students — Sympathetic silence.

Clay — "If Sonny Liston dreamed he beat me, he'd apologize."

Students—"Hooray."

Clay—"Tell me no lies, who's got the prettiest eyes?"

Students — "Cassius Clay Hooray!"

Clay, clad in a plum colored blazer, had just arrived at the school to take part in a Negro conference entitled, "The Mind of the Ghetto."

IN WORLD SERIES

Player Pool May Reach 1 Million

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—A record $1 million player pool probably will be hanging in the balance in the World Series between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the New York Yankees opening Wednesday in spacious Yankee Stadium.

Depending on the generosity of the players in clicing the melon, each winning cut could reach as high as $13,000 and each losing slice could be worth as much as $9,000. Both would be records.

The players presumably already have had their meetings to decide how many shares will be distributed. However, the office of Commissioner Ford Frick closely guards such information in recent years and prefers to make a separate announcement after the Series is over.

If any of the 1918 Boston Red Red Sox or the 1905 Philadelphia A's still are alive, they will realize once again that they were born about 50 years too soon. The winning 1918 Red Sox each got $1,102. The losing A's of 1905 brought home only $382. Even that was more than they hit. Those Athletics were shut out four times, including three by Christy Mathewson, and scored only three runs in the five games while batting .161.

No wonder the Yankees were rooting for the Dodgers to beat out the St. Louis Cardinals in the final weeks of the season. Dodger Stadium in Chavez Ravine has 56,000 seats, including a most generous allotment of boxes at $12 a seat. The Cards had only 30,000 seats at Busch Stadium.

At the moment the record for a winner is the $11,231.18 by the Dodgers when they beat the Chicago White Sox in the Coliseum in 1959 with those big 92,000 crowds. Last year's checks for $7,257.17 for each San Francisco Giant was the losing record.

If that player pool does hit the $1 million mark, 70 per cent goes to the two contesting clubs (60 per cent of that to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser). The remaining 30 percent of the pool is scattered among the second, third and fourth place teams. They haven't decided yet to take in the fifth-place clubs in the new 10-club leagues.

While the players' wives have been figuring out what to do with the $13,000, the athletes have had to keep right on working. The Dodgers, who clinched the National League pennant Tuesday, had the Phillies in Los Angeles for the last three games of the season. Two weeks ago this loomed as an important set, but that was before the three-game sweep in St. Louis.

Manager Walter Alston will use the three games to tune his athletes for the Series. Johnny Podres, likely pitcher in the second game at Yankee Stadium, was to work today. Don Drysdale, the probably for the third game, and Sandy Koufax, who will open against Whitey Ford, will share the work in Sunday's finale.

The only matter of concern to Alston was the condition of third baseman Ken McMullen, a valuable 21-year-old rookie who became a regular in late season. McMullen came up lame with a pulled hamstring in the left leg in the Thursday night game with the New York Mets.

If McMullen can't play in the Series, Alston would have to do some more juggling with his infield as he has done all season. Tommy Davis might come in to play third or Jim Gilliam might shift to third and Dick Tracewski would play second.

Although McMullen was hitting only .234 going into the game in which he was injured, he had contributed five home runs and 28 runs batted in.

At the moment the Yankees are as healthy as they have been all year, and healthier than they have been most of the time. Outfielders Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris are back in action although they may be a bit rusty from long inactivity.

Manager Ralph Houk didn't even give the Yankees a day off Thursday, an open date in the schedule. They had a 90-minute workout with Ford and Al Downing, expected to be the 1-2 pitching punch in the first two games, throwing in batting practice. Ford was due to try for his 25th win Saturday although he will split the game against Minnesota with Downing. Jim Bouton, slated to face Drysdale in the third game, will work against the Twins in the finale Sunday.

Ford will be setting a record by starting the opener for th eseventh time. He is 4-1 in openers with one no-decision and is 10-5 in 17 series starts.

Proof In The Playing

Perhaps the difference the really good pro quarterback makes may have never been so precisely demonstrated as it has been these first two weeks in the National Football League.

Two weeks ago nothing could stop the proud old New York Giants, not even the 17 full minutes of frustration which began the game. During this strange interlude, three Giant fumbles by one Yelberton Abraham Tittle Jr. resulted in three Baltimore touchdowns and a 21-3 Colt lead.

Finally deciding enough was enough, Tittle, the wise old man of football, fixed his helmet firmly atop his hairless dome, administered a little glue to his buttery fingers, unlimbered the old passing arm and got down to business.

He completed 16 of 32 passes for 242 yards, threw three touchdown passes and scampered nine-yards for another score.

Needless to say the Giants won and did so by a margin of 37-28.

By the half, the 36-year-old master with the Univac brain, had narrowed the margin to 28-24. It was 30-28 in New York's favor when Tittle was injured in the third quarter and left the game.

And therein lay the seeds for the second chapter.

One week later with "the old man" still mending and walking the sidelines, the Giants began to look their age. For the first time in 31 years, they failed to score. The final count — Pittsburgh 31, New York 0.

Ironically, that Sunday afternoon when Tittle's absence was so keenly felt may have ended the career of another player. For it was Ralph Guglielmi, heir - apparent to the Tittle throne, who drew the futile task of moving New York against the Steelers.

The next week, Guglielmi, a former Notre Dame star and a pro since 1959, was traded to San Francisco. The 29 - year - old Guglielmi decided instead to devote full time to his insurance business.

Fate has its twists. Tittle once played for San Francisco and he was traded to the Giants.

It was 1960 and the cheers had long since turned to boos, for Y. A. was the man who couldn't lead the 49'ers to the championship. A groin injury increased the problem. Then Coach Red Hickey went to shotgun formation. Tittle is a true pro quarterback, a passer a brain man—but he was not a runner. The shotgun required a runner, so Tittle was traded.

The 49'ers still haven't won the championship, but Tittle, the old Louisiana State All - American, has gone on to become probably the best in the business today.

A Hard-Beaked Cardinal

Another LSU graduate, Jerry Stovall of West Monroe, hasn't forgotten the brand of hard-nosed football which helped him greatly in earning a trek down honors-row last year.

Stovall, now the main punter for the St. Louis Football Cardinals, is the only man on the team to pilfer an enemy fumble in two games. Jerry also leads the Cardinals in kickoff returns. Three men have returned one kickoff apiece and Stovall's 29-yard romp is tops.

Stovall is slated to start in the defensive backfield for the undefeated Redbirds against Pittsburgh Sunday along with Pat Fischer, Jimmy Hill and Larry Wilson.

In what seems almost a sideline now, Jerry is averaging 40.3 yards a punt on seven kicks.

The Predictions

Northeast State 21, McMurry 13

Northeast's potentially explosive offense can't be at it's best this week with a number of key men out or slowed by injuries. Still the Indians seem strong enough to win by a touchdown or more.

The most encouraging thing in last week's 9-0 loss to Chattanooga was that the defense gave up points much more grudgingly than it had in pre - game scrimmage sessions.

Offensively, the Indians were a close second best in first downs and yards gained rushing. The pass attack, though not as prolific as the Moccasins', was considerably better than a year ago.

When the Tribe's injuries heal both the running and passing games should improve even more. Tonight Northeast will start one senior, two juniors, three sophomores and a redshirt freshman in the line.

Last year, Chattanooga, which topped Southeastern 21-19, would have ranked along with the better teams in the Gulf States Conference.

McNeese 14, Louisiana Tech 7

There is no doubt who is the favorite in this one. The Cowboys will be fired-up as never before. They have won exactly one time in the 11-year history of the series and are long, long overdue. And this time, McNeese has the home field advantage and is enjoying the peak of its manpower build-up. The Cowboys, remember, are picked to win the GSC.

For Tech, which is not picked to contend in the GSC, the game presents a tremendous challenge. The challenge is not only to find some way to beat McNeese again, but to find some way to run against the tough Cowboy defense. If the Bulldogs can accomplish the virtually impossible they may find they can move on the ground against almost anybody.

But the odds lie heavily with the Cowboys.

Rice 6, Louisiana State 3

The Bayou Bengals better win this one before the series takes on jinx proportions. But the sophomore - studded LSU team may have trouble doing it in a game played away from Tiger stadium.

Northwestern 14, Louisiana College 13

Predicting Northwestern before mid - October is like the old shell game. You takes your pick, then you takes your chances. The bet here is that the Demons will be semi - aroused after the Stephen F. Austin debacle two weeks ago.

Others

Howard 7, Southeastern 6; Hardin Simmons 12, USL 7; North Carolina State 13, Southern Mississippi 12; Alabama 28, Tulane 7; Tennessee 7, Auburn 6; Georgia Tech 20, Clemson 7; Florida 14, Mississippi State 7; Florida State 19, TCU 13; Georgia 18, Vanderbilt 0; Mississippi 21, Kentucky 0; Arkansas 14, Missouri 7; Baylor 19, Houston 13; Michigan 20, SMU 14; Texas 28, Texas Tech 0; Ohio State 20, Texas A&M 7; Oklahoma 18, USC 14.

Last week's score was 10 right and five wrong for a season total of 12-6. This is .666 per cent and is just a little better than you could get flipping a coin.

Pascual Hurls Twins Past Yankees By 4-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota's Camilo Pascual became the first American League pitcher to strike out 200 batters this season and Baltimore relief specialist Stu Miller made a record-setting 71st appearance on Friday night's baseball program.

Pascual struck out nine and posted his 21st victory as the Twins edged the AL champion New York Yankees 4-3. Miller surpassed the league record of 70 appearances made by Boston's Mike Fornieles in 1960, pitching two shutout innings in the Orioles' 5-2 decision over Detroit.

In other AL action: Kansas City's Dave Wickersham pitched a two-hitter and drove in the deciding run in a 3-1 triumph over Cleveland. The Chicago White Sox clinched second place, sweeping a doubleheader from Washington 11-2 and 7-1, as Mike Hershberger drove in three runs in each game.

The National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers trailed Philadelphia 4-3 in the sixth inning. In another late game, Pittsburgh led San Francisco 6-3 after 4 innings.

In other NL games: John Tsitouris allowed only two hits as Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 3-0, the Chicago Cubs edged Milwaukee 3-2 and the New York Mets belted Houston 10-3.

The Colts started an all-rookie line-up, with 17-year-old Jay Dahl on the mound. The nine-man outfit had a combined professional experience of only 14 seasons.

SUES DALLAS CLUB

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — A $12,000 suit against the Dallas club of the National Football League has been filed by former Cowboy tackle Kenneth Frost.

In the suit, Frost charged he was injured on Oct. 1, 1962, in a game with the Los Angeles Rams and has been unable to play in regular season competition because of his damaged right knee.

Cocky Cassius Goes To School, Talks With Kids

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ice cream cone in hand and mouth in motion as usual, heavyweight boxing contender Cassius Clay dropped by an almost all-Negro high school Friday.

Some 300 McClymonds High students gave the Negro boxer a rousing welcome, although he didn't give them much chance to say anything.

Here's the way it went:

Clay—"You're looking at the world's greatest fighter."

Students—"Hooray!"

Clay — "The world's prettiest fighter."

Students—"Hooray!"

Clay — "The uncrowned champion of the world."

Students — Sympathetic silence.

Students—"Hooray."

Clay—"Tell me no lies, who's got the prettiest eyes?"

Students — "Cassius Clay Hooray!"

Clay, clad in a plum colored blazer, had just arrived at the school to take part in a Negro conference entitled, "The Mind of the Ghetto."

IN WORLD SERIES

Player Pool May Reach 1 Million

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—A record $1 million player pool probably will be hanging in the balance in the World Series between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the New York Yankees opening Wednesday in spacious Yankee Stadium.

Depending on the generosity of the players in clicing the melon, each winning cut could reach as high as $13,000 and each losing slice could be worth as much as $9,000. Both would be records.

The players presumably already have had their meetings to decide how many shares will be distributed. However, the office of Commissioner Ford Frick closely guards such information in recent years and prefers to make a separate announcement after the Series is over.

If any of the 1918 Boston Red Red Sox or the 1905 Philadelphia A's still are alive, they will realize once again that they were born about 50 years too soon. The winning 1918 Red Sox each got $1,102. The losing A's of 1905 brought home only $382. Even that was more than they hit. Those Athletics were shut out four times, including three by Christy Mathewson, and scored only three runs in the five games while batting .161.

No wonder the Yankees were rooting for the Dodgers to beat out the St. Louis Cardinals in the final weeks of the season. Dodger Stadium in Chavez Ravine has 56,000 seats, including a most generous allotment of boxes at $12 a seat. The Cards had only 30,000 seats at Busch Stadium.

At the moment the record for a winner is the $11,231.18 by the Dodgers when they beat the Chicago White Sox in the Coliseum in 1959 with those big 92,000 crowds. Last year's checks for $7,257.17 for each San Francisco Giant was the losing record.

If that player pool does hit the $1 million mark, 70 per cent goes to the two contesting clubs (60 per cent of that to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser). The remaining 30 percent of the pool is scattered among the second, third and fourth place teams. They haven't decided yet to take in the fifth-place clubs in the new 10-club leagues.

While the players' wives have been figuring out what to do with the $13,000, the athletes have had to keep right on working. The Dodgers, who clinched the National League pennant Tuesday, had the Phillies in Los Angeles for the last three games of the season. Two weeks ago this loomed as an important set, but that was before the three-game sweep in St. Louis.

CLEVE McDOWELL

Trial Begins Today On Expelled Negro

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Cleve McDowell, whose arrest earlier this week brought about his expulsion as the University of Mississippi's only Negro student, goes on trial today before a justice of the peace on charges of carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

The trial will be conducted in the white, two-story courthouse which sits in a square in the center of this college town by 74-year-old Peace Justice W. H. Jones.

McDowell, 21, plans to drive from Jackson to Oxford prior to the trial with his attorney, Jack Young.

McDowell was arrested Monday by Lafayette County Sheriff Joe Ford after students informed Ford that a pistol fell from McDowell's coat when he bent over to retrieve a pair of sunglasses he'd dropped.

Young said he was sure McDowell "had reason to seek protection."

"I'm sure Cleve got his share of crank calls and threats and he had cause to carry some sort of protection."

Maximum penalty on the charge is 90 days in jail and a $100 fine.

McDowell, who graduated from Jackson State College for Negroes with honors last May, entered the Ole Miss law school in June under federal court orders.

At that time, the university's first known Negro student, James H. Meredith, was still at Ole Miss. McDowell shared a room with Meredith and the federal marshals assigned to guard Meredith also escorted McDowell around the campus.

Meredith graduated in August. When McDowell returned earlier this month to resume classes there were no federal marshals along.

Meredith enrolled on Oct. 1, 1962 after a night of rioting on the oak-circled campus. Two persons were killed and scores were injured in the disturbance. The federal government poured 23,000 soldiers into the Oxford area to restore order and enforce federal court integration orders.

McDowell has refused to discuss his arrest with newsmen. He appeared before the Student Judicial Council following the incident and it recommended his expulsion. The council is headed by Champ Turney of Greenville, a son-in-law of Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss.

Kelly Is Selected As Lions Officer

OAK GROVE (Special) — Joe T. Kelly, a local businessman and civic leader, has been selected vice president of the Louisiana Lions League for Crippled Children. Kelly is a member of the Oak Grove Lions Club.

League president is E. E. Sullivan, of Baton Rouge.

Ruston To Host Last Of Annual Flower Shows

Ruston will be the site for the final annual Louisiana State Garden Club Federation Convention and Flower Show when that event is staged in 1964.

In view of the increasing size and complexity of the combined convention and flower show organization, it was decided at the L.G.C.F. meeting at Baton Rouge in August to hold the two events on a biennial basis after 1964, with the flower show being presented on even numbered years only. The 1964 meeting will be the 30th Annual Convention and the 16th Annual Flower Show.

The date of March 20-22, 1964 has been set for the combined events, according to General Chairman Mrs. John A. Wright. Louisiana Tech has granted the committee the use of its facilities, and the men's gymnasium will house the flower show, Mrs. Wright announced.

GREEN SUNSET

ISCHIA, Italy (AP) — This vacation island off the Bay of Naples boasts an unusual attraction — the green sunset.

At places along the island's north coast the growth of undersea plants and the color of the water cause an illusion at some seasons of the year when the sunset has shades of green instead of the usual red or orange.

CLEVE McDOWELL

Trial Begins Today On Expelled Negro

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Cleve McDowell, whose arrest earlier this week brought about his expulsion as the University of Mississippi's only Negro student, goes on trial today before a justice of the peace on charges of carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

The trial will be conducted in the white, two-story courthouse which sits in a square in the center of this college town by 74-year-old Peace Justice W. H. Jones.

McDowell, 21, plans to drive from Jackson to Oxford prior to the trial with his attorney, Jack Young.

McDowell was arrested Monday by Lafayette County Sheriff Joe Ford after students informed Ford that a pistol fell from McDowell's coat when he bent over to retrieve a pair of sunglasses he'd dropped.

Young said he was sure McDowell "had reason to seek protection."

"I'm sure Cleve got his share of crank calls and threats and he had cause to carry some sort of protection."

Maximum penalty on the charge is 90 days in jail and a $100 fine.

McDowell, who graduated from Jackson State College for Negroes with honors last May, entered the Ole Miss law school in June under federal court orders.

At that time, the university's first known Negro student, James H. Meredith, was still at Ole Miss. McDowell shared a room with Meredith and the federal marshals assigned to guard Meredith also escorted McDowell around the campus.

Meredith graduated in August. When McDowell returned earlier this month to resume classes there were no federal marshals along.

Meredith enrolled on Oct. 1, 1962 after a night of rioting on the oak-circled campus. Two persons were killed and scores were injured in the disturbance. The federal government poured 23,000 soldiers into the Oxford area to restore order and enforce federal court integration orders.

McDowell has refused to discuss his arrest with newsmen. He appeared before the Student Judicial Council following the incident and it recommended his expulsion. The council is headed by Champ Turney of Greenville, a son-in-law of Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss.

Kelly Is Selected As Lions Officer

OAK GROVE (Special) — Joe T. Kelly, a local businessman and civic leader, has been selected vice president of the Louisiana Lions League for Crippled Children. Kelly is a member of the Oak Grove Lions Club.

League president is E. E. Sullivan, of Baton Rouge.

Ruston To Host Last Of Annual Flower Shows

Ruston will be the site for the final annual Louisiana State Garden Club Federation Convention and Flower Show when that event is staged in 1964.

In view of the increasing size and complexity of the combined convention and flower show organization, it was decided at the L.G.C.F. meeting at Baton Rouge in August to hold the two events on a biennial basis after 1964, with the flower show being presented on even numbered years only. The 1964 meeting will be the 30th Annual Convention and the 16th Annual Flower Show.

The date of March 20-22, 1964 has been set for the combined events, according to General Chairman Mrs. John A. Wright. Louisiana Tech has granted the committee the use of its facilities, and the men's gymnasium will house the flower show, Mrs. Wright announced.

Lincoln Garden Council of Ruston, and Monroe's Twin Cities Garden Council are hostessing the convention and flower show, and garden club members in both Ruston and Monroe are already at work on plans.

Jewelry Plans Are Big And Bold For Fall

Big, bold and bulky — that's the look of jewelry that's dramatizing the sportive scene this autumn. Beads are big in new matinee lengths; nut-and-wood chains are decorating the ubiquitous turtleneck sweater, and tailored golden chains, the larger the better, are linking themselves to the casual clothes of the season.

And even fur — synthetic, that is — that's flooding the fashion picture in coats, hats, handbags and separates — is finding its way into bracelets, earrings and necklaces, according to J. O. Vann, jewelry buyer.

Chain and pearl necklaces go to new long lengths, ranging from 18 to 30 inches. Not only are strands longer but their bulk is also much greater. Last year's links and beads — the size of a quarter — have been increased to twice the size, and they are an appropriate accompaniment to bulky cable knit sweaters, rough-surfaced tweeds and the heavier boot-shoe that's in vogue. For comfort's sake many are made of aluminum and rest lightly around the neck.

Carrying along the theme of jewelry on a grand scale (but at wee prices) are new chains combining large pieces of natural wood and nuts intended strictly for causual wear. In this group there are also pendants with nuts with funny faces painted on them that are likely to attract the teenage crowd.

Probably the boldest look of all in the new jewelry is the appearance of man-made fur — leopard zebra, pony, ocelot. It's worked into rigid bracelets and earrings the size of a half dollar. There are honest-to goodness mink earrings, too, in white, black and brown, priced very much under a dollar. In the same manner, leather, snakeskin, alligator, velvet, madras and patent have been used to fashion bracelets and earrings. These come in a variety of colors with emphasis on fall tones of rust, brown, green and gold.

Theme Taken From Many Lands For Initial Rush Party Of Beta Sigma Phi

Members of Beta Pi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi launched their fall rush season Thursday night, September 26, with a progressive dinner, which featured imaginary visits to other lands.

For the first stop an Hawaiian luau was held around the swimming pool at the home of Mrs. Chuck Mahoney, 214 King St., where she and Miss Gyl Rowell, wearing muu muus and colorful leis greeted guests.

An Hawaiian salad course was served from large bowl, wreathed with tropical foliage and artificial orchids which centered the table. Yellow roses, the sorority's flower and water lilies floated in the pool. Favors for the rushees were Hawaiian leis.

From there the group adjourned to the home of Mrs. V. A. Hubka, 1406 McGuire, for an Italian spaghetti supper. In keeping with the theme Mrs. Hubka and cohostess, Mrs. E. H. Bailey were dressed in Italian peasant style.

Guests were seated at quartet tables in the den, which were covered with red and white checked cloths and centered with lighted candles in wine bottles. Favors for the rushees were miniature wine bottles.

The final progression was to the home of Mrs. Bob DeMoss, 2310 Bienville, where she and Mrs. Norman H. Smith, appropriately dressed for the occasion, served French pastries and coffee. Mementoes from France added to the decor in the living room, and favors were French garters in yellow and black, the sorority colors.

Rushees entertained at the gala occasion were Mrs. Freeland May, Mrs. Roger Harvison, Mrs. Perry H. Miers and Miss Toni Hubka. Members attending were Mrs. V. A. Hubka, Mrs. Billy J. Hammock, Mrs. Walter Kirchoff, Mrs. Martin Schempf, Mrs. Donald Gaudet, Mrs. Chuck Mahoney, Miss Gyl Rowell, Mrs. Bernard Saunders, Mrs. Ted Carter, Mrs. Carl Johnson, Mrs. E. H. Bailey, Mrs. Nelwyn Reeves, Mrs. Jim Files, Mrs. Bob DeMoss and Mrs. Norman H. Smith.

Rushees will be invited to a Model Meeting next Thursday, October 3 at the home of Mrs. Alvis Gossett, 401 Grayling Lane, with the final rush event to be the preferential tea on Saturday, October 5 at the home of Mrs. E. H. Bailey, 700 Stubbs, from 3 until 5 p.m.

DEAR ABBY

Your Husband Needs Mental Help—Fast

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I could write a book about my nine years of married life. My husband had a very unhappy childhood, and he's been taking it out on me and the children. He tried to kill me once. He choked me until I was unconscious, and then left me for dead. Not one to hold a grudge, I forgave him and he promised to do better. Then he lost his temper again and chased me with a butcher knife. I had to run to the neighbors for help. It was then that my clergyman explained that my husband was sick and I should stick by him in sickness and in health. My husband promised to see a head doctor, but he keeps stalling. Abby, I can't sleep for worrying what he will pull next. I have five little ones who hide when they see him coming down the road. Can you help me?

FRIGHTENED BUT FAITHFUL

DEAR FAITHFUL: Your "faithfulness" is commendable, but while your husband is "stalling", they could be burying you. Don't live in fear with this man another day. Your local police can provide you with protection and force your husband to submit to a mental examination.

DEAR ABBY: I work and draw a good salary. My problem is one of my bosses. While he is a flirt with all the girls, he singles me out. If there is a disagreement, he takes my side. I have ignored him for a long time, but I feel attracted to him. I am married and so is he. I only think about him when I am around him. I love my husband and can't understand why I am attracted to my boss. I don't intend to let this go any farther as I am decent and respect my marriage. Should I leave my job? Or will I get over this feeling in time? I've never encouraged him, but the feeling is there.

IN DANGER

DEAR IN: If you can't see the handwriting on the wall, you need glasses. Quit your job.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who would like nothing better than to waste my entire morning just talking on the telephone. IS there a way to bring a telephone conversation to an abrupt end without being downright rude?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED UP: Yes. Say, "Goodbye — I think I smell something burning." (You!)

DEAR ABBY: You will probably never print this, but I hope you do. We have some new neighbors. This morning the man of the family rapped on my back door and asked me if I planned to hang my wash up today. He said if I did, he would not burn his trash until tomorrow. I was so touched by such a considerate act that I broke right down and cried.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Nothing more quickly attracts the eye than beautiful posture and graceful motion. Any woman who enters a room with queenly carriage and a controlled, smooth, beautiful walk, demands attention immediately.

This is one attribute you can take along with you as the years accumulate, that is, if you give thought to it and train your muscles. Exercise is reflected in elastic muscles and lovely balance and grace. This is always fascinating. It seems somehow to be the outside evidence of inside poise, gallantry and charm. You automatically feel that such a woman is in control of the situation and of herself.

However, this doesn't just happen. Fatigue, discouragement, overweight, lax muscles and the pull of gravity all work against gallant posture. Special exercises which develop balance and coordination are extremely helpful.

The following is one method of teaching a graceful walk. You can practice it at home. It's good exercise also. Walk around a large room or on the grass taking very long exaggerated, but very slinky smooth steps. Do this very slowly. Be sure to hold yourself correctly while doing your walk. Your abdomen should be pulled in and your hips should be tucked under. Your chin should be parallel to the floor. (See illustration).

Practice this for awhile. Then rest. Begin again with very slow steps but gradually increase the speed of your walk until it is a normal pace. While doing so try not to lose the feeling of smoothness. Keep reaching straight forward from the hips with smooth rhythm even though you are walking more rapidly.

This will take some practice but will greatly improve your walk. Graceful motion is so alluring and yet many women do not know how to walk gracefully or how to sit down or get up out of a chair attractively.

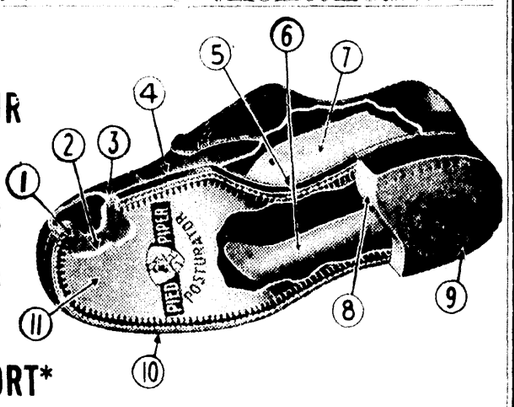

If you would like to have my leaflet "Grace and Charm" which gives you many pointers and special exercise to develop grace and coordination send a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 57 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

Your Husband Needs Mental Help—Fast

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I could write a book about my nine years of married life. My husband had a very unhappy childhood, and he's been taking it out on me and the children. He tried to kill me once. He choked me until I was unconscious, and then left me for dead. Not one to hold a grudge, I forgave him and he promised to do better. Then he lost his temper again and chased me with a butcher knife. I had to run to the neighbors for help. It was then that my clergyman explained that my husband was sick and I should stick by him in sickness and in health. My husband promised to see a head doctor, but he keeps stalling. Abby, I can't sleep for worrying what he will pull next. I have five little ones who hide when they see him coming down the road. Can you help me?

FRIGHTENED BUT FAITHFUL

DEAR FAITHFUL: Your "faithfulness" is commendable, but while your husband is "stalling", they could be burying you. Don't live in fear with this man another day. Your local police can provide you with protection and force your husband to submit to a mental examination.

DEAR ABBY: I work and draw a good salary. My problem is one of my bosses. While he is a flirt with all the girls, he singles me out. If there is a disagreement, he takes my side. I have ignored him for a long time, but I feel attracted to him. I am married and so is he. I only think about him when I am around him. I love my husband and can't understand why I am attracted to my boss. I don't intend to let this go any farther as I am decent and respect my marriage. Should I leave my job? Or will I get over this feeling in time? I've never encouraged him, but the feeling is there.

IN DANGER

DEAR IN: If you can't see the handwriting on the wall, you need glasses. Quit your job.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who would like nothing better than to waste my entire morning just talking on the telephone. IS there a way to bring a telephone conversation to an abrupt end without being downright rude?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED UP: Yes. Say, "Goodbye — I think I smell something burning." (You!)

DEAR ABBY: You will probably never print this, but I hope you do. We have some new neighbors. This morning the man of the family rapped on my back door and asked me if I planned to hang my wash up today. He said if I did, he would not burn his trash until tomorrow. I was so touched by such a considerate act that I broke right down and cried.

COMPACT COATS

Maybe compact cars have something to do with the trend in evening coats. At any rate, what's being trumpeted for chic damsels for fall is the short evening coat. The knee-lengths show with ankle-length dresses.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Nothing more quickly attracts the eye than beautiful posture and graceful motion. Any woman who enters a room with queenly carriage and a controlled, smooth, beautiful walk, demands attention immediately.

This is one attribute you can take along with you as the years accumulate, that is, if you give thought to it and train your muscles. Exercise is reflected in elastic muscles and lovely balance and grace. This is always fascinating. It seems somehow to be the outside evidence of inside poise, gallantry and charm. You automatically feel that such a woman is in control of the situation and of herself.

However, this doesn't just happen. Fatigue, discouragement, overweight, lax muscles and the pull of gravity all work against gallant posture. Special exercises which develop balance and coordination are extremely helpful.

The following is one method of teaching a graceful walk. You can practice it at home. It's good exercise also. Walk around a large room or on the grass taking very long exaggerated, but very slinky smooth steps. Do this very slowly. Be sure to hold yourself correctly while doing your walk. Your abdomen should be pulled in and your hips should be tucked under. Your chin should be parallel to the floor. (See illustration).

Practice this for awhile. Then rest. Begin again with very slow steps but gradually increase the speed of your walk until it is a normal pace. While doing so try not to lose the feeling of smoothness. Keep reaching straight forward from the hips with smooth rhythm even though you are walking more rapidly.

This will take some practice but will greatly improve your walk. Graceful motion is so alluring and yet many women do not know how to walk gracefully or how to sit down or get up out of a chair attractively.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Grace and Charm" which gives you many pointers and special exercise to develop grace and coordination send a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 57 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Tea Set Dictates Room Color

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. Mrs. Nolanda writes home from Japan a very handsome tea set. It is of white with a green design and gold trim and has green (would like to use the room as a basis for the color scheme, as my living and dining room and part of the hall are all one color. Would it be a good idea to paint the walls a pale green? Would like to use a good carpet with our Early American furniture. Please suggest color for walls, ceiling, woodwork, carpet and furniture.

A. The tea set would be fine with and then accent the Early American furniture. I suggest off-white for walls, woodwork and draperies. Select the gold color for sofa and carpet and cover two chairs in pale green. Sofa could have two pillows in the gold, pale rust and pale green found in the tea set. Paint the spindles of the stairs a pale green.

Q. What do my rather drab living room and dining room are painted a pretty pale green. Please tell me what color to use for draperies, slip covers and rug.

A. A documentary print in a pale gold ground with deep gold, clear greens and yellow in the design would be pleasant for the draperies and for slip covers on the sofa. Have gold for the rug and cover one chair in green.

Q. We will soon redecorate our bedroom. I'm good on basic combinations of turquoise and olive green and I'd like this on an off-white ground wall paper. What color for bedspreads, pillows, wall-to-wall carpet? Curtains are off-white. What color for woodwork and ceiling?

A. Have the wallpaper in the combination you suggest but not in the bold a pattern, for a bedroom should be restful. Select a deep turquoise for the bedspread and pillows. Have the carpet in a deep olive green. Paint the woodwork and ceiling off-white.

Q. Have an old mahogany chest and bureau that I'm going to refinish. What color for the walls? Have a green and gold rug and a green chair. Would like to use a pale green for the walls.

A. Paint the walls off-white. Have the woodwork and ceiling off-white. Have the woodwork and ceiling off-white. The green would be good for carpet and dust ruffles and the mauve blue for the spreads. Have white lamp accessories and pulls.

Q. For our living room I just bought soft beige draperies. Walls are soft green and so are rug and woodwork are white. I'd like to keep the ceiling white but paint the walls. Should I paint woodwork to match walls or draperies?

A. It is generally advisable to paint the woodwork the same color as the walls.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Down Pillows Can Be Washed Right At Home

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I have just made a marvelous discovery. I washed my goose down pillows in the washing machine. They were covered with synthetic taffeta!

After many years of use they were just too stained and dingy to bear any longer. I jammed them down into the washer with soap suds, set my dial for hot water and two minutes. Went through the rinse cycle and my pillows came out clean but the feathers were all in a lump.

After putting them in my dryer for about an hour . . . I just could not believe it. They are once again big, fluffy snow white and like new.

Mrs. R. W. Lane

Dear Mrs. Lane:

YOU just saved me the price of expensive new ticking! And gave me a fabulous idea.

I went to my department store and bought nylon taffeta by the yard. I just had to test your idea and see if it washed better and easier than good grade ticking.

It's absolutely fabulous! I could squeeze you for sending along that hint. Oh . . . are my pillows lush to sleep on. So easy to wash AND dry. The feathers dried quickly as the nylon was quick-drying itself and that air got into the feathers and dried them beautifully.

If any of you gals have the bright idea to wash your pillows and put on new ticking, let me give you a few pointers.

First, wash your old pillows in the old ticking (or at least wet them FIRST so the feathers will be easy to transfer and won't blow all over creation, your house and the universe.

However, after testing this woman's idea, I found that the feathers washed much quicker and washed better if nylon taffeta ticking was used. The water and suds literally soak through the synthetic covering, thus . . . no air pockets inside the pillow and this prevents the pillow "floating" on top of the water while washing in the machine. Helps for better rinsing, too.

Here's the way I did mine:

I filled my bathtub with about nine inches of warm water and suds. Plopped my four pillows in this. (Yes, they floated just like in the washing machine.)

What to do?

I got barefooted and literally stepped on them, mashing them with my feet until I got all the air out of the case. The water filled inside the case then.

I kept stepping, mashing and prancing with my feet until the water became soiled. You will be surprised how little time this will take.

I changed the water and added more suds and continued washing until the pillows were clean. I rinsed the same way. Then I dipped the pillows in clear water by holding them at one end. (You will find that all the feathers will end up in ONE end of the case!) I twisted the empty end of the ticking, then stepped on the end where the feathers were and got out loads of water. No effort.

Now is the time to cut the case open. The feathers are all wet and will NOT fly. I put the old wet case inside the new nylon one and just shook the wet feather into the new case.

Guess Who?

Ohhh . . . I forgot to tell you something. After discovering that vinegar helped bacteria and odors, I used half a cup of it in my last rinse water. Please, try it. The pillows will have no odor after they are dried.

Now Guess Who?

Dr. Roncal Speaker For B&PW's Initial Meeting

The Monroe Business & Professional Women's Club initiated their fall program Tuesday, September 23 at the Y.W.C.A. Building, with the World Affairs Committee in charge.

Miss Lula Swinson, chairman of the committee, introduced her co-chairman, Miss Bettye Orford before pointing out that the organization had adopted as its theme for the club year, "responsibility of full partnership." She stated that if women are to accept their responsibilities they must be well informed on world affairs.

Miss Swinson then presented Dr. Segundo Roncal, a native of Peru, who is at present on the staff of Conway Memorial Hospital, Monroe. Dr. Roncal brought to his audience an authoritative picture of our South American neighbor. Having received his formal education in Peru and having lived in the United States for five years, Dr. Roncal possessed the background for his comparison of the educational systems of the two countries. He explained that only a small percentage of women attend universities. Women received the right to vote in 1956 and are now becoming more active in politics. Following his talk, Dr. Roncal answered questions on the political, cultural and economic conditions of his native land.

Mrs. Vi Combs, State Treasurer, gave a comprehensive report of a leadership conference she attended in New Orleans, and Mrs. Frank McDermott reported on the conference she attended in St. Louis.

A social hour followed the program. Hostesses for the evening were legislation chairman Oleta Baker and her committee, Mrs. Agnes Krogmire, Mrs. Mabel Wright, Mrs. Mildred Savanna and Mrs. Irene Reid. Red roses from the garden of Mrs. Reid were used at each end of the lace covered table.

The following guests and members were present: Mrs. Oleta Baker, Mrs. Frank McDermott, Mrs. Steve Savanna, Mrs. Mabel Wright, Mrs. Evelyn Bledsoe, Mrs. Flora Seamon, Mrs. Mae Modes, Miss Ruth Whatley, Mrs. Elizabeth Burdeaux, Mrs. Lula Swinson, Miss Bettie Orford, Mrs. Jewel Wise, Mrs. Gladys Miles, Mrs. Agnes Krogmire, Mrs. Eza Lee Spillers, Miss Alice Bau, Mrs. Vi Combs, Mrs. Lucille Mathis, Miss Elva Bardin, Mrs. Beatie Skinner, Mrs. Sara Kennon, Mrs. Lucille Crowe, Miss Mary O'Kelly, Miss Mattie Oler, Mrs. Helen Trichel, Mrs. Roncal and Mrs. Oleta Wittenmyer.

Tea Set Dictates Room Color

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: My husband brought home from Japan a lovely handpainted tea set. It is off-white with a scenic design in gold, blue, pink, rust and pale green. I would like to use the colors as a basis for the color scheme in my living and dining room and plan to display the set on open shelves in a built-in hutch cabinet. Will this set be a good companion with our Early American furniture? Please suggest color for walls, ceiling, wall-to-wall carpet and furniture.

A: The tea set should be fine with and even enhance the Early American furnishings. I suggest off-white for walls, woodwork and draperies. Select the gold color for sofa and carpet and cover two chairs in pale green. Sofa could have toss pillows in the blue, pink, rust and pale green found in the tea set. Paint the shelves of the hutch a pale green.

Q: Walls in my rather small living room are paneled in knotty pine. Please tell me what color to use for draperies, slip covers and rug.

A: A documentary print in a pale gold ground with deep gold, clear greens and yellow in the design would be pleasant for the draperies and for slip covers on the sofa. Have gold for the rug and cover one chair in yellow.

Q: We will soon redecorate our bedroom. I've seen certain combinations of turquoise and olive green and I'd like this on an off-white ground wallpaper. What color for bedspreads, pillows, wall-to-wall carpet? Curtains are off-white. What color for woodwork and ceiling?

A: Have the wallpaper in the combination you suggest but not in too bold a pattern, for a bedroom should be restful. Have off-white for the woodwork and ceiling. Olive green would be good for carpet and dust ruffles and turquoise blue for the spreads. Have white lamps, accessories and pillows.

Q: For our living room I just bought soft beige draperies. Walls are soft green and ceiling and woodwork are white. I'd like to keep the ceiling white but please tell me should I paint woodwork to match walls or draperies?

A: It is generally advisable to paint the woodwork the same color as the walls.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Down Pillows Can Be Washed Right At Home

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:
I have just made a marvelous discovery. I washed my goose down pillows in the washing machine. They were covered with synthetic taffeta!

After many years of use they were just too stained and dingy to bear any longer. I jammed them down into the washer with soap suds, set my dial for hot water and two minutes. Went through the rinse cycle and my pillows came out clean but the feathers were all in a lump.

After putting them in my dryer for about an hour . .. I just could not believe it. They are once again big, fluffy snow white and like new.

Mrs. R. W. Lane

Dear Mrs. Lane:
YOU just saved me the price of expensive new ticking! And gave me a fabulous idea.

I went to my department store and bought nylon taffeta by the yard. I just had to test your idea and see if it washed better and easier than good grade ticking.

It's absolutely fabulous! I could squeeze you for sending along that hint. Oh . . . are my pillows lush to sleep on. So easy to wash AND dry. The feathers dried quickly as the nylon was quick-drying itself and that air got into the feathers and dried them beautifully.

If any of you gals have the bright idea to wash your pillows and put on new ticking, let me give you a few pointers:

First, wash your old pillows in the old ticking (or at least wet them FIRST so the feathers will be easy to transfer and won't blow all over creation, your house and the universe.)

However, after testing this woman's idea, I found that the feathers wetted much quicker and washed better if nylon taffeta ticking was used. The water and suds literally soak through the synthetic covering, thus . . . no air pockets inside the pillow and this prevents the pillow "floating" on top of the water while washing in the machine. Helps for better rinsing, too.

Here's the way I did mine:

I filled my bathtub with about nine inches of warm water and suds. Plopped my four pillows in this. (Yes, they floated just like in the washing machine.)

What to do?

I got barefooted and literally stepped on them, mashing them with my feet until I got all the air out of the case. The water filled inside the case then.

I kept stepping, mashing and prancing with my feet until the water became soiled. You will be surprised how little time this will take.

I changed the water and added more suds and continued washing until the pillows were clean. I rinsed the same way. Then I dipped the pillows in clear water by holding them at one end. (You will find that all the feathers will end up in ONE end of the case!) I twisted the empty end of the ticking, then stepped on the end where the feathers were and got out loads of water. No effort.

Now is the time to cut the case open. The feathers are all wet and will NOT fly. I put the old wet case inside the new nylon one and just shook the wet feather into the new case.

Guess Who?

Ohhh . . . I forgot to tell you something. After discovering that vinegar helped bacteria and odors, I used half a cup of it in my last rinse water! Please, try it. The pillows will have no odor after they are dried.

Now Guess Who?

GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Uncertainties regarding the possibility of sales of U.S. wheat to Russia brought additional selling of grain futures on the Board of Trade Friday.

The downturn, an extension of Thursday's sharp selloff, was attributed in part to rumors in export quarters that the Soviets are not interested in buying U.S. flour, feed grains, soybeans or vegetable oils at this time.

These reports put selling pressure on corn and oats, resulting in further long liquidation and hedge selling. Earlier it had been reported the Soviets wanted corn and oats in addition to wheat.

At the finish wheat was ⅛ to 1⅛ cent a bushel lower, December $2.02¼-⅛; corn 1¾ to 2½ cents lower, December $1.17¼-⅜; oats ⅜ to 1¼ cents lower, December 70-69⅞; rye 3¼ to 5½ cents lower, December $1.47½-¼; and soybeans 5 to 6¾ cents lower, November $2.65¼-½.

COTTON

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures closed 5 to 65 cents a bale lower Friday.

Commission house liquidation was absorbed through scale down trade buying and short covering. The selling was stimulated by market advances earlier in the week, particularly in the distant new crop months. The expanding cotton crop harvest contributed to the easiness in nearby deliveries.

There were no October delivery notices issued at New York Friday.

Stock Prices Increase In Closing Hour

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices rose from their lows during the last hour Friday and closed mixed.

Dow-Jones industrial average rose 1.03 to 737.98 but Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, which gives a more comprehensive view of the market, declined 0.14. The industrial average had been off 2.53 earlier in the day.

Trading totaled 4,350,000 shares compared with 5,100,000 in the previous session.

Dow - Jones rails were off 0.38 and utilities 0.14.

Trading in Chrysler was suspended at one point because of an accumulation of orders. The stock reopened off 1⅛ but managed to close up a point. The company announced that production of passenger cars so far this year already has exceeded output for all of 1962.

General Motors and American Motors were both off ⅛. Steels firmed at the close after showing an easier trend most of the session. Du Pont declined ¾ in the chemicals. Other chemicals were narrowly mixed.

Owens-Illinois glass rose 1½ but Standard Oil of N.J. declined 1¼. American Crystal Sugar lost 2½ but Polaroid rose 2, High Voltage Engineering 1⅞, Control Data 1⅞ and U.S. Smelting 4½.

Chrysler topped the most active list with 292,700 shares. This was followed by Sperry-Rand, up ⅜, Hupp Corp., up ¼, Studebaker, off ¼ and High Voltage Engineering.

Barnes Engineering finally opened on the American Exchange at 11:12 a.m. (EDT) on a block of 35,300 shares at 36¼ up 4¼ and increased its gain to close up 12⅝. The issue had not opened at all on Thursday because of an accumulation of orders.

Strength in this stock has been attributed to an article in a national magazine describing the Barnes-developed thermograph, a medical diagnostic instrument which scans the human body.

Servo Corp., also on the "AMEX," opened late on two large blocks at 9½ up a point, but cut this in half to close at 9 up ½. The stock rose 3½ on Thursday. Servo is engaged in the manufacture of infrared instruments similar to those used in Barnes' thermograph. Servo currently has a suit pending against Barnes.

Prices on the American Exchange were irregular on a turnover of 1,750,000 shares compared with 1,300,000 in the previous session. Other issues featured on the "AMEX" were Syntex up 5½ and Paddington off 2¾.

GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Uncertainties regarding the possibility of sales of U.S. wheat to Russia brought additional selling of grain futures on the Board of Trade Friday.

The downturn, an extension of Thursday's sharp selloff, was attributed in part to rumors in export quarters that the Soviets are not interested in buying U.S. flour, feed grains, soybeans or vegetable oils at this time.

These reports put selling pressure on corn and oats, resulting in further long liquidation and hedge selling. Earlier it had been reported the Soviets wanted corn and oats in addition to wheat.

At the finish wheat was ⅛ to 1⅛ cent a bushel lower, December $2.02¼-⅛; corn 1¾ to 2½ cents lower, December $1.17¼-⅜; oats ⅜ to 1¼ cents lower, December 70-69⅞; rye 3¼ to 5½ cents lower, December $1.47½-¼; and soybeans 5 to 6¾ cents lower, November $2.65¼-½.

COTTON

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures closed 5 to 65 cents a bale lower Friday.

Commission house liquidation was absorbed through scale down trade buying and short covering. The selling was stimulated by market advances earlier in the week, particularly in the distant new crop months. The expanding cotton crop harvest contributed to the easiness in nearby deliveries.

There were no October delivery notices issued at New York Friday.

Stock Prices Increase In Closing Hour

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices rose from their lows during the last hour Friday and closed mixed.

Dow-Jones industrial average rose 1.03 to 737.98 but Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, which gives a more comprehensive view of the market, declined 0.14. The industrial average had been off 2.53 earlier in the day.

Trading totaled 4,350,000 shares compared with 5,100,000 in the previous session.

Dow - Jones rails were off 0.38 and utilities 0.14.

Trading in Chrysler was suspended at one point because of an accumulation of orders. The stock reopened off 1⅛ but managed to close up a point. The company announced that production of passenger cars so far this year already has exceeded output for all of 1962.

General Motors and American Motors were both off ⅛. Steels firmed at the close after showing an easier trend most of the session. Du Pont declined ¾ in the chemicals. Other chemicals were narrowly mixed.

Owens-Illinois glass rose 1½ but Standard Oil of N.J. declined 1¼. American Crystal Sugar lost 2½ but Polaroid rose 2, High Voltage Engineering 1⅞, Control Data 1⅞ and U.S. Smelting 4½.

Chrysler topped the most active list with 292,700 shares. This was followed by Sperry-Rand, up ⅜, Hupp Corp., up ¼, Studebaker, off ¼ and High Voltage Engineering.

Barnes Engineering finally opened on the American Exchange at 11:12 a.m. (EDT) on a block of 35,300 shares at 36¼ up 4¼ and increased its gain to close up 12⅝. The issue had not opened at all on Thursday because of an accumulation of orders.

Strength in this stock has been attributed to an article in a national magazine describing the Barnes-developed thermograph, a medical diagnostic instrument which scans the human body.

Servo Corp., also on the "AMEX," opened late on two large blocks at 9½ up a point, but cut this in half to close at 9 up ½. The stock rose 3½ on Thursday. Servo is engaged in the manufacture of infrared instruments similar to those used in Barnes' thermograph. Servo currently has a suit pending against Barnes.

Prices on the American Exchange were irregular on a turnover of 1,750,000 shares compared with 1,300,000 in the previous session. Other issues featured on the "AMEX" were Syntex up 5½ and Paddington off 2⅜.

BRICK HOME
Located In
NORRIS PINECREST SUB., W.M.
103 Pineway Dr.

A Nature Blessed Location

Picturesque, high, well-drained land . . . "chock full" of beautiful trees! And that's just the beginning—for this is a restricted area where pride of ownership is evident, where home-value will never decrease! And for an extra bonus, it's convenient to schools, churches, shopping!

A LOVELY BRICK HOME

You will at first glance be impressed with this brick home on its large tree-studded lot! And you'll be equally impressed with the interior design, the quality materials and construction! From the large foyer, enter the large living room with dining area, then to the warm birch paneled kitchen-family room with built-in oven and range, eat-on snack bar, built-in bookcases, and double sliding glass doors to the patio. There are 3 large bedrooms with bi-fold closet doors, and 2 full ceramic tile baths, one with dressing table. To complete the picture, there is central air conditioning and heating for year 'round weather control, double carport, and storage.

Morrison

ABBEVILLE (Special) — "With second — Class leadership, we can never have a first — class state," deLesseps S. Morrison warned Friday as he and his ticket continued a campaign swing deep through south Louisiana.

Speaking in Lake Arthur, Gueydan, Kaplan and Abbeville, Morrison said Louisiana is "a sad, sick state."

"We need a change, and we need it now, "Morrison said, adding that he thought the people are now determined to get "the demonstrated leadership, demonstrated ability and demonstrated integrity which the Morrison ticket represents."

Morrison and Claude B. Duval, candidate for lieutenant governor, both expressed "violent opposition" to the Gessell report, which would give the military a role in implementing integration decrees.

Duval said the report was a flagrant attempt to inject the military into civilian affairs.

Morrison said he is "bitterly opposed to the Gessell report for two reasons. First, it goes too far, and secondly, the military must be kept purely professional and 100 per cent free of politics."

Morrison said he thought a majority of military leaders are also anxious to keep the armed forces" completely untouched by politics."

Morrison and Duval also reaffirmed their position as being unalterably opposed to the federal civil rights program.

Speaking with Morrison and Duval were State Rep. Jack Dyer of Baton Rouge, candidate for insurance commissioner, and Mayor Raymond J. Laborde of Marksville, candidate for custodian of voting machines.

Morrison and members of his ticket were to spend today in New Iberia at the annual Sugar Cane Festival and will be in Lake Charles at 1 p.m. Sunday for a rally sponsored by the Young Mens' Business Club.

Kennon-Dugas

HOMER (Special) — Francis Dugas, campaigning for lieutenant governor on the Robert F. Kennon ticket, said Friday that "it is now clearly evident that the Kennon - Dugas ticket will carry New Orleans and practically all of South Louisiana" in the upcoming gubernatorial primaries.

Dugas said the "independent thinking voters of South Louisiana are now in a majority. Just as I have found in north Louisiana," Dugas said, "the people know that the government belongs to them and not the professional politicians and their machines."

The Thibodaux attorney and former Lafourche parish legislator, stumping with Kennon in northwest Louisiana, said that support for the Kennon - Dugas candidacy "makes it obvious to us that we are the leading candidates."

"It is obvious that the people realize that Bob Kennon is the only candidate for governor who is truly independent and free of any tarnished political affiliations," Dugas said. "He is recognized for his outstanding record as governor and the achievements of his administration are a matter of record," Dugas declared.

"It is all in the Bob Kennon record of 1952-56 — tax reductions, voting machines in every precinct, prison reforms, hospital improvements, effective civil service, increased old age pensions twice, two - thirds rule on taxes and many more," Dugas said.

"His opponents offer promises, Bob Kennon offers a record."

Kennon Speaks

ARCADIA, La. (AP) — Former Gov. Robert F. Kennon said Friday the constitutional civil service installed during his 1952-56 administration made it possible for state employes to become career workers with dignity and job security.

"The fine, dedicated career people employed by the various state agencies remember who gave them a real civil service system," Kennon said. "They know they now cannot be discharged at the whim of some politician who wants to make room for a political favorite."

Kennon said, "It makes just as much sense for the state to offer career status to its employes a it does for any private corporation. It's just plain right in the first place and, secondly, it's a good deal for the state to have experienced people."

State Senate Post Sought By Contractor

JENA (Special) — Sam Wilbanks, 40-year-old Jena contractor and cattle farmer, has announced his candidacy for the State Senate from the 31st Senatorial District composed of Caldwell, Grant, LaSalle and Winn parishes.

"After learning several months ago that the incumbent, Speedy O. Long, was planning to run for a state office and would not be a candidate for re - election, I became concerned about the leadership of our district," Wilbanks said.

"I toured the district discussing the matter with friends in all four parishes. I quickly learned that others were concerned too, and soon realized that the time had come for me to stop talking about the future of the 31st District and do something about it."

"The result is that I am offering myself as a candidate for this most important office," he said.

Wilbanks is a native and lifelong resident of the district. After graduating from Jena High School in 1940, he entered the U. S. Navy and served four years, including 3½ years of sea duty, as an enlisted man. After being discharged, he entered Louisiana State University and graduated with a B. S. degree in 1950.

He is married to the former Kathleen Trichel and the couple has four sons, ages 4 through 17.

Wilbanks is active in civic affairs. He is president of the LaSalle parish Fair Association, the Jena High School Athletic Association and is a member of the LaSalle Cattlemen's Association.

He is a member of the Midway Baptist Church.

For the past 13 years, Wilbanks has been in the well service contracting and home construction businesses.

"Although I have never run for public office before," Wilbanks said, "I feel I have many important qualifications. I profess a political philosophy that reflects the thinking of the people in this district, a willingness to work hard for the benefit of these four parishes and an honest desire to serve the people."

"I stand solidly for segregation and our Southern way of life.

"I am opposed to the present national administration and will support unpledged electors in the presidential election.

"While serving in the senate I pledge to work for broader old age benefits, will oppose any new taxes or bond issues and will sponsor legislation to help deserving boys and girls with their college education.

"I will also work for an increase of funds for education, including teachers and bus drivers, an increase in the State allotment for District road contruction and maintenance and an increase in benefits for low paid State employees.

"In our district we need industry to provide jobs for our children, so they don't have to leave home to find work. In respect to this need, I will devote my efforts to the construction of State institutions and to creating a better atmosphere for private industry in this District. We especially need to use our great supply of wood. Success in these two fields will provide steady and better paying jobs for the people of the 31st District.

"I will work to promote the best possible hunting and fishing conditions for the thousands of sportsmen in the district and will always support porgrams to improve recreational facilities."

Deputies Find Clothes From Fleeing Negro

JACKSON, La. (AP) —Sheriff's deputies Friday found clothing discarded by Andrew Grant, one of three Negroes who fled the criminal ward at the East Louisiana State Hospital here.

Grant remained at large after the capture of St. Paul Favrot, 32, and Alton Martin.

At nearby Clinton, Sheriff Arch Doughty said Grant apparently broke into a house in the Bluff Creek area, in the southern portion of East Feliciana Parish and found a change of clothing.

The sheriff said he believed Grant still was somewhere in the Sixth Ward area.

PERCY W. NICHOLS

Percy Nichols Seeks Election To Police Jury

Percy W. Nichols has announced his candidacy for one of the four posts on the Ouachita Parish Police Jury from Ward 5.

He said he entered the race at insistance of "many concerned friends who believe, as I do, that much can be done in Ward 5 for the benefit of all residents of this area."

Nichols is a native Louisianan, a West Monroe businessman and a veteran of World War II. He is presently president and general manager of the Ouachita Water Co., Inc., The Ridgecrest Water Co., Inc., The Kiroli Water Co., Inc. and the Lincoln Park Water Co., Inc.

He is a Mason, a member of the Bethel Baptist Church and the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, is married and has two children.

Nichols stated that he will conduct an aggressive campaign based on experience and past record of service, and when elected, will consider his first responsibility to be that of representing each and everyone in Ward 5. He added a vote for him will be a vote for progress and honest government.
